It was ten o'clock when he reached Four Forks. A few minutes later he stood on the threshold of that dwelling described by the Four Forks Sentinel as the "palatial residence of John Ashe," and known to the local satirist as the "Ash box." "Hevin' to lay by two hours, John," he said to his prospective son-in-law, as he took his hand at the door, "a few words of social converse, not on business, but strictly private, seems to be about as natural a thing as a man can do." This introduction, evidently the result of some study and plainly committed to memory, seemed so satisfactory to Mr. McClosky that he repeated it again, after John Ashe had led him into his private office; depositing his valise in the middle of the floor and sitting down before it, he began carefully to avoid the eyes of his host. John Ashe, a tall, dark, handsome Kentuckian—with whom even the trifles of life were evidently full of serious import—waited with a kind of chivalrous respect the further speech of his guest. Being utterly devoid of any sense of the ridiculous, he always accepted Mr. McClosky as a grave fact, singular only from his own want of experience of the class.

"Oyes is running light now," said Mr. McClosky, with easy indifference.

John Ashe returned that he had noticed the same fact in the receipts of the mill at Four Forks.

"You don't reckon on having any trouble with any of 'em chaps ez you cut out with Jinny?"

John Ashe, rather haughtily, had never thought of that. "I saw Rance hanging round your house the other night when I took your daughter home, but he gave me a wide berth," he added carelessly.

"Surely," said Mr. McClosky, with a peculiar winking of the eye. After a pause, he took a fresh departure from his valise.

"A few words, John, ez between man and man, ez between my daughter's father and her husband who expects to be, is about the thing. I take it, as is fair and square. I kem here to say thep. They're about Jinny, my gal."

Ashe's grave face brightened, to Mr. McClosky's evident discomposure.

"Maybe I should have said, about her mother; but the same bein' a stranger to you, I says, naterally, 'Jinny.'"

Ashe nodded courteously.

"It is sixteen years ago as I married Mrs. McClosky in the State of Missouri. She let on at one time, to be a widder—a widder with one child. When I say let on, I mean to imply that I subsequently found out that she was not a widder, nor a wife, and the father of the child was, so to speak—onbeknowest. That child was Jinny—my gal."

With his eyes on his valise, and quietly ignoring the wholly crimsoned face and swiftly-darkening brow of his host, he continued:

"Many little things sorter tended to make our home in Missouri ouplease.t. A disposition to smash furniture and heave knives around, an inclination to howl when drunk, and that frequent; a habitoual use of vulgar language, and a tendency to cuss the casoual visitor, seemed to pint," added Mr. McClosky with submissive hesitation, "thet—she—was—so to speak—quite onsuited to the marriage relation in its holiest aspect."

"Damnation! Why didn't—" burst out John Ashe, erect and furious.

"At the end of two year," continued Mr. McClosky, still intent on the valise, "I allowed I'd get a diworce. Et about thet time, however, Providence sends a circus into thet town and a feller ez rode three hosses to onct. Hevin' allez a taste for athletic sports, she left town with this feller, leavin' me and Jinny behind. I sent word to her that if she would give Jinny to me we'd call it quits. And she did."

"Tell me," gasped Ashe, "did you ask your daughter to keep this from me, or did she do it of her own record?"

"She doesn't know it," said Mr. McClosky; "she thinks I'm her father, and that her mother's dead."

"Then, Sir, this is your——"

"I don't know," said Mr. McClosky, slowly, "ez I've asked any one to marry my Jinny. I don't know ez I've persood that ez a bizziness, or even taken it up as a healthful recreation."

John Ashe paced the room furiously. Mr. McClosky's eyes left the valise and followed him curiously. "Where is this woman?" demanded Ashe, suddenly. Mr. McClosky's eyes sought the valise again.

"She went to Kansas; from Kansas she went into Texas. From Texas she eventoually came to California. Being there I've purvided her with money—when her business was slack—through a friend."

John Ashe groaned. "She's gettin' rather old and shaky for hosses, and does the tight-rope business and flying trapeze. Never heyin' seen her perform," continued Mr. McClosky, with conscientious caution, "I can't say how she gets on. On the bills she looks well. That is a poster—" said Mr. McClosky glancing at Ashe, and opening his valise, "thar is a poster givin' her performance at Marysville next month." Mr. McClosky slowly unfolded a large yellow and blue printed poster, profusely illustrated. "She calls herself 'Mam'selle J. Miglawski—the great Russian Trapezista.'"

John Ashe tore it from his hand. "Of course," he said, suddenly facing Mr. McClosky, "you don't expect me to go on with this?"

Mr. McClosky picked up the poster, carefully refolded it and returned it to his valise. "When you break off with Jinny," he said quietly, "I don't want anything said 'bout this. She doesn't know it. She's a woman and I reckon you're a white man."

"But what am I to say? How am I to go back on my word?"

"Write her a note. Say something hez come to your knowledge—don't say what—that makes you break it off. You needn't be afraid Jinny'll ever ask you what."

John Ashe hesitated. He felt he had been cruelly wronged. No gentleman—no Ashe—could go on further in this affair. It was preposterous to think of it. But somehow he felt at the moment very unlike a gentleman or an Ashe, and was quite sure he should break down under Jenny's steady eyes. But then—he could write to her.

"So ores is about as light here as on the Ridge. Well, I reckon they'll come up before it rains. Good-night." Mr. McClosky took the hand that his host mechanically extended, shook it gravely, and was gone.

When Mr. McClosky, a week later, stepped again upon his own veranda, he saw through the French window the figure of a man in his parlor. Under his hospitable roof the sight was not unusual, but for an instant a subtle sense of disappointment thrilled him. When he saw it was not the face of Ashe turned toward him he was relieved, but when he saw the tawny beard and quick, passionate eyes of Henry Rance he felt a new sense of apprehension, so that he fell to rubbing his beard almost upon his very threshold.

Jenny ran into the hall, and seized her father with a cry of joy. "Father," said Jenny, in a hurried whisper, "don't mind him"—indicating Rance with a toss of her yellow hair—"he's going soon, and I think, father, I've done him wrong. But it's all over with John and me now; read that note, and see how he has insulted me." Her lips quivered, but she went on: "It's Ridgeway that he means, father, and I believe it was his hand struck Ridgeway down, or that he knows who did. But hush now; not a word."

So she gave him a fervent kiss, and glided back into the parlor, leaving Mr. McClosky perplexed and irresolute with the note in his hand. He glanced at it hurriedly and saw that it was couched in almost the very words he had suggested. But a sudden apprehensive recollection came over him; he listened, and with an exclamation of dismay he seized his hat and ran out of the house. But too late; at the same moment a quick, nervous footstep was heard upon the veranda, the French window flew open, and with a little laugh of greeting, Ridgeway stepped into the room.

Jenny's finer ear caught the first step, Jenny's swifter feelings had sounded the depth's of hope, of joy, of despair, before he entered the room. Jenny's pale face was the only one that met his, self-possessed and self-reliant when he stood before them; an angry flush suffused even the pink roots of Rance's beard as he rose to his feet; an ominous fire sprang into Ridgeway's eyes, and a spasm of hate and scorn passed over the lower part of his face and left the mouth and jaw immobile and rigid."

Yet he was the first to speak. "I owe you an apology," he said to Jenny, with a suave scorn that brought the indignant blood back to her cheek, "for intrusion, but I ask no pardon for withdrawing from the only spot where that man dare confront me with safety."

With an exclamation of rage, Rance sprang toward him. But as quickly Jenny stood between them, erect and menacing.

"There must be no quarrel here," she said to Rance. "While I protect your rights as my guest, don't oblige me to remind you of mine as your hostess." She turned with a half-deprecatory air to Ridgeway, but he was gone, so was her father. Only Rance remained, with a look of ill-concealed triumph on his face.

Without looking at him she passed toward the door. When she reached it she turned. "You asked me a question an hour ago; come to me in the garden at nine o'clock tonight, and I will answer you. But promise me first to keep away from Mr. Dent; give me your word not to seek him—to avoid him if he seeks you. Do you promise? It is well."

He would have taken her hand, but she waved him away. In another moment he heard the swift rustle of her dress in the hall, the sound of her feet upon the stair, the sharp closing of her bedroom door, and all was quiet.

And even thus quietly the day wore away and the night rose slowly from the valley and overshadowed the mountains with purple wings that fanned the still air into a breeze, until the moon followed it and lulled everything to rest as with the laying on of white and benedictory hands. It was a lovely night, but Henry Rance, waiting impatiently beneath a sycamore at the foot of the garden, saw no beauty in earth, air, or sky. A thousand suspicions common to a jealous nature, vague superstitions of the spot filled his mind with distrust and doubt. "If this should be some trick to keep my hands off that insolent pup;" he muttered, but even as the thought passed his tongue, a white figure slid from the shrubbery near the house, glided along the line of picket fence, and then stopped midway, motionless in the moonlight.

It was she. But he scarcely recognized her in the white drapery that covered head, and shoulders, and breast. He approached her with a hurried whisper. "Let us withdraw from the moonlight. Everybody can see us here."

"We have nothing to say that cannot be said in the moonlight, Henry Rance," she replied, coldly receding from his proffered hand. She trembled for a moment, as if with a chill, and then suddenly turned upon him; "Hold up your head and let me look at you! I've known only what men are; let me see what a traitor looks like!"

"You are ill, Jenny," he said; "you had best return to the house. Another ti—"

"Stop!" she cried, hoarsely; "move from this spot and I'll call for help! Attempt to leave me now and I'll proclaim you the assassin that you are!"

"It was a fair fight," he said, doggedly.

"Was it a fair fight to creep up behind an unarmed, and unsuspecting man? Was it a fair fight to try to throw the suspicion on some one else? Was it fair to deceive me? Liar and coward that you are!"

He made a stealthy movement toward her with evil eyes, and a wickeder hand that crept within his breast. She saw the motion, but it only stung her to newer fury.

"Strike!" she said, with blazing eyes, throwing her hands open before him. "Strike! Are you afraid of the woman who dares you—or do you keep your knife for the backs of unsuspecting men? Strike! I tell you! No? Look then!" With a sudden movement she tore from her head and shoulders the thick lace shawl that had concealed her figure and stood before him. "Look!" she cried, passionately, pointing to the bosom and shoulders of her white dress, darkly streaked with faded stains and ominous discoloration. "Look! This is the dress I wore that morning when I found him lying here—here—bleeding from your cowardly knife. This is his blood—my darling boy's blood!—one drop of which, dead and faded as it is, is more precious to me than the whole living pulse of any other man! Look! I come to you to-night christened with his blood and dare you to strike—dare you to strike him again through me and mingle my blood with his! Strike! I implore you! Strike! if you have any pity on me—for God's sake! Strike! if you are a man! Look! Here lay his head on my shoulder; here I held him to my breast, where never—so help me God!—another man——Ah——"

She reeled against the fence, and something that had flashed in Rance's hand dropped at her feet; for another flash and report rolled him over in the dust, and across his writhing body two men strode and caught her ere she fell.

"She has only fainted," said Mr. McClosky. "Jinny dear, my girl, speak to me!"

"What is this on her dress?" said Ridgeway, kneeling beside her, and lifting his set and colorless face. At the sound of his voice the color cause faintly back to her cheek; she opened her eyes and smiled.

"It's only your blood, dear boy," she said, "but look a little deeper and you'll find my own."

She put up her two yearning hands and drew his face and lips down to her own. When Ridgeway raised his head again her eyes were closed, but her mouth still smiled as with the memory of a kiss.

They bore her to the house still breathing but unconscious. That night the road was filled with clattering horsemen, and the summoned skill of the country side for leagues away gathered at her couch. The wound, they said, was not essentially dangerous, but they had grave fears of the shock to a system that already seemed suffering from some strange and unaccountable nervous exhaustion. The best medical skill of Tuolumne happened to be young and observing, and waited patiently an opportunity to account for it. He was presently rewarded.

For toward morning she rallied and looked feebly around. Then she beckoned her father toward her, and whispered, "Where is he?"

"They took him away, Jinny dear, in a cart. He won't trouble you agin." He stopped, for Miss Jenny had raised herself on her elbow, and was leveling her black brows at him. But two kicks from the young surgeon, and a significant motion toward the door, sent Mr. McClosky away muttering. "How should I know that 'he' meant Ridgeway," he said apologetically, as he went and returned with the young gentleman. The surgeon, who was still holding her pulse, smiled, and thought that with—a little care—and attention—the stimulants—might be—dismissed—and—he—might leave—the patient for some, hours, with perfect safety. He would give further directions to Mr. McClosky—down stairs.

It was with great archness of manner that half an hour later Mr. McClosky entered the room, with a preparatory cough, and it was with some disappointment that he found Ridgeway standing quietly by the window, and his daughter apparently fallen into a light doze. He was still more concerned when, after Ridgeway had retired, noticing a pleasant smile playing about her lips, he said softly:

"You was thinking about some one, Jinny?"

"Yes, father"—the gray eyes met his steadily—"of poor John Ashe!"

Her recovery was swift. Nature, that had seemed to stand jealously aloof from her in her mental anguish, was kind to the physical hurt of her favorite child. The superb physique which had been her charm and her trial, now stood her in good stead. The healing balsam of the pine, the balm of resinous gums and the rare medicaments of Sierran altitudes touched her as they might have touched the wounded doe. So that in two weeks she was able to walk about, and when at the end of the month Ridgeway returned from a flying visit to San Francisco and jumped from the Wingdam coach at four o'clock in the morning, the Rose of Tuolumne with the dewy petals of either cheek fresh as when first unfolded to his kiss, confronted him on the road.

With a common instinct their young feet both climed the little hill now sacred to their thought. When they reached its summit they were both, I think, a little disappointed. There is a fragrance in the unfolding of a passion that escapes the perfect flower. Jenny thought the night was not as beautiful; Ridgeway, that the long ride had blunted his preceptions. But they had the frankness to confess it to each other, with the rare delight of such a confession and the comparison of details which they thought each had forgotten. And with this and an occasional pitying reference to the blank period when they had not known each other, hand in hand they reached the house.

Mr. McClosky was awaiting them impatiently upon the veranda. When Miss Jenny had slipped up stairs to replace a collar that stood somewhat suspiciously awry, Mr. McClosky drew Ridgeway solemnly aside. He had a large theatre poster in one hand and an open newspaper in the other.

"I allus said," he remarked slowly, with the air of merely renewing a suspended conversation, "I allus said that riding three horses to onct wasn't exactly in her line. It would seem that it ain't! From remarks in this yer paper it would appear that she tried it on at Marysville last week and broke her neck."

Civilization a Failure.

[London Fun.]

There is no concealing the fact that we humans are not only prone to "bear the ills we have," but are inclined to turn up our noses at the well of our ancestors. It is the old story of the fox that lost his tail, one of the few fables that have a grain of sense in their bushels of morality. I can remember the case of a Cornish miner who received, in a friendly rough-and-tumble in a public house, a kick from a highly civilized boot somewhere in the region of the diaphram. He doubled up like a clasp knife—you almost thought you heard the snap, and when afterwards "undoubled" by a process something resembling the opening of an obstinate oyster, he gasped out, "Never mind—I—rather like it."

Humanity is very much like that miner. It has received a violent blow from civilization in the very center of comfort, but it gasps, or squeaks, or shreaks that it thinks civilization bliss.

But my dear sir, or madam, you know in your heart of hearts it is a nuisance. To take only the very modern instances, what has civilization done for the inhabitants of Polynesia? It has introduced small-pox, drunkenness, missionaries and other mortal illness. And our ancestors, the ancient Britons, suffered in just the same way from civilization which was forced upon them by our invaders. Civilization, by the by, is an awful liar! It has taught us to talk about the virgin soil of this isle, and Britons who never have been and never will be slaves, and a soil which the foot of no invader, etc,—and all the while, considering our advantages of position as an island, we have been more invaded—and conquered than most people. But I could forgive those who conquered us, if they had only abstained from civilizing us too!

Oh, happy days, when each family got its own wood in its back garden, and tailors and dress-makers' bills were unknown. "Slightly cold, considering our climate!" Yes, but you forgot that in those days civilization had not extirpated the wolf, who was useful not only because you could clothe yourself in his skin in winter, but because he kept down the surplus population, by eating any of your young family who were in excess of the demand.

But the cruelist wrong civilization has inflicted on mankind is toothache, with its attendant curses of dentists, painless extraction, new sets and instant cures. Civilization is, to put it shortly, neither more nor less than neuralgia! When wild in the woods the noble savage ran, he never knew what toothache was. Look at the splendid grinders to be seen in the exhumed skull of any aborigine, who was happy enough to die before civilization introduced him to hot drinks like tea and coffee. Not a sign of decay in those grinning devil-mecare bits of ivory. And as for neuralgia, those happy people never had nerves—they were blessed with ganglions, like that caterpillar, which you may cut in half if you like, whereupon the first half will go cheerfully about its business and the second half would follow it, only having lost its head it does not know which way to go.

No! toothache and neuralgia are the elements of civilization. Who ever heard of Chingachgook using Bunter's nervine! Who could picture Pocahontas with a poultice of camomile and poppyheads! History—which is another product of civilization, and I'll take your opinion upon it when you have accurately given the succession (with dates) of the kings of England—has no record of dental torture till we come to the very civilized reign of John. "You don't think John a very civilized monarch;"—pardon me, he got money from the Jews in spite of their teeth, and that's more than the civilized young noblemen of the present day can succeed in doing. By the way, has anybody ever observed how his victims have carried out the Hebrew law of "a tooth for a tooth?" If not, a glance at the advertising dentists will convince even the most civilized of the truth of what I say.

I almost think that an anti-civilization society might be started; it would be quite as sensible as a teetotal society or an order of Good Templars. We would call it a society for the abolition of toothache, and that would draw everybody except the dentists.

I am prepared to join, for I am at this moment suffering from civilization in my left cheek. It makes intermittent rushes from its cell under my eye, proceeds down a nerve in my cheek by corkscrew-like gyrations until it arrives at a hollow tooth, of which it takes temporary possession. It then proceeds, apparently, to fling all the furniture about the apartments, drives into the walls enough tenpenny nails to hang all the pictures in the royal academy, and then retires, slamming the door! I don't like civilization.

The mate of schooner Annie B., who was so badly injured by the ruffian Robbins in his attempt to murder all hands on board the schooner on the night of May 23d, off Monhegan, died of his wounds on Thursday. Robbins received the announcement of the mate's death with stolid composure. The prisoner is a man about twenty-three years old, with light hair, blue eyes, a Saxon face and fierce, desperate expression. He carries bullet marks on his wrist and head and a bullet in his left shoulder as effects of the scrimmage on the Annie B. The case seems clearly within the jurisdiction of the British government under the extradition treaty, (the Annie B. belongs to one of the British Provinces), and the pirate will probably have the honor of being hung on a British scaffold.

—In Colorado Canon, at the conjunction of Green and Bear rivers, is what is called Echo Park, which takes its name from a wonderful echo heard there. If it is as described the locality is certainly one of nature's most interesting curiosities. When a gun is discharged, total silence follows the report for a moment; then with startling suddenness, the echo is heard seeming at a great distance—say five miles to the south—whence it comes back in separate and distinct reverberations, as if leaping from glen to glen. Louder and quicker grows the sound, until apparently directly opposite, when a full volume of sound is returned; then once more the echo is heard, like the snapping of a cap, far to the eastward.

—Young America, although usually wide awake, in due time becomes sleepy, as did little Dickey, one evening. His grandmother put him to bed, and, as was her custom, read to him a chapter in the Bible, remarking: "Now, Dickey, I have read you a whole chapter, and you must go to sleep." "No, grandma, I ain't sleepy now; read another." The old lady complied, and said: "Now you must go to sleep; I have read you two chapters." "No, not yet; read one more—read 'the rubber,' grandma!" What else could the good woman do?

—A Lewisville, Oregon, lady was recently black balled by a grange. She blamed a man, a neighbor, for casting the vote, and, meeting him at church, proceeded to give him a drubbing. The lady is fifty years old and the man seventy.

Important to the Sensitive.

Persons with active brains and of a delicate organization should never be subjected to violent purgation or any other treatment calculated to prostrate them. Leeching, cupping, starving, and intestinal rasping, are of doubtful expediency in any case, but they are almost certain death to the sensitive and fragile. What such persons need is stimulation, and the very best invigorant they can take is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. To give depleting medicines to the nervous, the debilitated, the infirm, the emaciated, the desponding is like firing broadsides into a sinking ship. Thousands of dyspeptics are killed every year by medicines that sap the physical and constitutional stamina which, if reinforced by that powerful vegetable tonic, would soon prove an overmatch for the disease. It is true that the bowels require to be relieved and regulated, and the liver controlled, as well as the stomach to be toned and the system strengthened, and let it be borne in mind that the Bitters accomplish these objects gently and surely.

Heimbold's Buchu is still in the zenith of its popularity. Notwithstanding the absence of Dr. Heimbold, the celebrated medicine is still manufactured at the laboratory at Philadelphia, and is sold by all respectable druggists. It is warranted for all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Beware of counterfeits. Genuine has proprietor's private stamp. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

Don't be Discouraged. Suppose you have "tried fifty remedies" and received no benefit, is there therefore "no balm in Gilead?" Verily there is. Your liver may be congested, your stomach half paralyzed, your nerves quivering, your muscles knotted with rheumatism, your blood contaminated, your lungs diseased, your blood full of impurities—yet in one week after commencing a course of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS you will feel like a new creature. a29 4w

20,000 Cures of PILES have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the greatest discovery in medicine ever made. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments and quack nostrums always make them worse. ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple permanent cure, acts as a bougee, soothing, poultice and medicine. The relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 45 Walker str., New York.

Sickness is an affliction that waits on us all. None are exempt, and there are none but need relief from its attacks. Whoever can furnish this becomes our benefactor. A conviction prevails that DR. AYER does it. Disorders of the blood have been healed by his SARSAPARILLA, and affections of the lungs by his CHERRY PECTORAL, too frequently and too distinctly to be disputed. HIS AGUE CURE is said, by those who use it, to never fail. Reader, if you must have medical aid, take the best of medicine. Poor remedies are dear, as good are cheap, at any price you have to pay for them.—[Charlestown Courier.]

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and keeps the scalp, by its use, become white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

LANGHAM HOTEL, PORTLAND PLACE, London, W., May 12, 1874.

My Dear Sir: Your favor inclosing the proceedings of the City Government of Portsmouth in relation to the event of landing the Ocean Telegraph Cable at Rye was duly received. I am desired by those interested in laying the cable to express their thanks to the Officers of the city and to yourself for the kind consideration and courtesies proffered, and that they will cordially comply with your wishes so far as it is possible under the exigencies of the case as they may at the time of the arrival of their ships exist. The heavy Cable to be laid from Nova Scotia to New Hampshire is now all on board the "Faraday" and is the greatest weight of telegraphic cable ever put upon any ship at one time, being over 4000 tons. She will leave Gravesend on the 15th and propably arrive off Portsmouth about June 6th. The ships cannot make much if any tarry there, as they are to return immediately and take on board and lay the long cable from Ireland to Nova Scotia, so as to have the whole line complete by the middle of August. Thanking you for kind expressions in relation to myself, and for your earnest wishes for the success of the great undertaking in which New Hampshire is to be connected, I am, with the highest consideration and esteem, faithfully yours, ARTHUR M. EASTMAN.

Resolved! That the chairman of committee on streets be directed to advertise for proposals for building all the sewers the Board have voted to build the last and the present year.

TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the year 1630 to '20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's Island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1800—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the combined canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.
THOS. P. MOSES.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms and with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal opinions rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

Dangers of the Ball Room.

We have ever regarded the ball room as the happy hunting ground of loveliness where eyes spoke love to eyes which spoke again and all that sort of thing; but we can never look upon it now in that light. The glory hath departed, Ichabod! One Dr. Lindeman has been making an investigation of the false hair and chignons worn by ladies, with the most dreadful results. Parasite bodies, known as gregardnidæ, grow at the extremities of the hair, forming in lumps visible to the naked eye. Each of these lumps contains a colony of about fifty, psorosperms. Under the influence of heat and moisture they (the lumps) swell, the granular contents being converted into little spheres and then into pseudonavicellæ. These become free and float in the air and penetrate into the interior of the human organism, producing affections of the heart, Bright's disease and pulmonary complaints! "In a ball room," says the doctor, "containing fifty ladies, 44,000,000 of navicellæ are set free."

Raising a "Row."

[Virginia City Enterprise.]

A few evenings since a fellow rushed into Tinker & Shepard's saloon in a terrible state of excitement. Throwing his hat on the counter he cried out to Dan, the barkeeper; "There'll be the biggest row here in about a minuite that you ever saw! Give me a drink, quick!" Dan set out the bottle, and while the fellow helped himself, began to look to his six-shooter and get his club ready. Leaving his hat on the counter the fellow ran to the door, looked out, then rushed back to the bar and said: "Yes: in less than half a minute there'll be a d—l of a time here! Give me another drink, quickly!" And, seizing the bottle, he proceeded to help himself. He then took up his hat and was coolly marching off, when Dan called out: "See here, you—you fellow there! What's all this about a row? You come back here and pay for these drinks, or I'll club you half to death!" "There you go!" cried the fellow, "There you go! Didn't I say there would be a fearful row here in a minute. I knew it; and there you go!" Dan now saw the point. "Look here," said he; "you can come back and take another drink if you want it, but I wish it distinctly understood that this is to be the last 'row' you ever raise in this house!" "Don't care if I do settle it up that way," said the fellow, grinning amiably as he returned to the bar.

—Petroleum has gone down to $1.25 per barrel in the Pennsylvania oil regions, with prospects of going still lower. Immense quantities are shipped abroad, and the papers of the producing regions are clamorous for an export duty on that particular article. A tax of five cents a gallon, say they, would produce a revenue of fifteen million dollars a year, nine-tenths of which would be paid by foreigners.

FIFTH AND LAST CONCERT

IN AID OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY.

JULY 31, 1874.

In announcing the Fifth and last of the series of Gift Concerts given for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, the Trustees and Manager refer with pride and pleasure to the four which have been already given: The first, December 16, 1871; the second, December 2, 1872; the third, July 8, 1873; and the fourth, March 21st, 1874.

Under their charter, granted by a special act of the Kentucky Legislature, March 16, 1871, the Trustees are authorized to give One More and Only One More Gift Concert. With the money arising from this Fifth and LAST Concert, the Library, Museum, and other departments are to be enlarged and endowed with a fixed and certain annual income. Such an endowment fund is desired, as will secure beyond peradventure, not only the maintenance of this magnificent establishment, but its constant growth.

THE FIFTH GIFT CONCERT

for the purpose mentioned, and which is positively and emphatically announced as the Last which will ever be given under this charter and by the present management.

Will come off in the Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

Friday, July 31, 1874.

At this final Concert everything will be upon a scale corresponding with its increased importance. The music will be rendered by an orchestra consisting of one hundred performers selected for their fame in different lands, and the unprecedented sum of divided into twenty thousand gifts, will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

HENDERSON & CO.,

ANNOUNCE THEIR

SPRING OPENING

—OF—

Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.

The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

From One Cent to One Dollar.

Hats, trimmed,

From 50 cts. to $10.00.

And five dollar Trimmed Hats will compare favorably with any ten dollar one in the city.

FRAMES . . . . . 15 cents each.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
DYSPEPSIA DEBILITY DROPSY AND HUMORS.
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an oilmeal, so easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and gives "a thousand life," simply by Toning up Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Rumors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an an Iron Constitution.
Thousands have been charged by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Daily Chronicle.

A Curiosity.

In an old-fashioned wooden frame, bearing the inscription, "8, Brand, Carver and Gilder, No. 27 High Street, Edinburgh," but exhibiting no other marks by which its age could be decided, was recently found the following document. Apart from any historic value which may be claimed for it, the description is perfect in its simplicity, and presents the picture which is painted by our imaginations, of what might have been the aspect of Jesus of Nazareth to the eyes of the generation that beheld him walking in their midst. The epistle is said to have been taken by Napoleon I. from the public records of the city of Rome.

LETTER OF PUBLIUS LENTULUS TO THE SENATE OF ROME,
Jesus Christ.

It being the usual custom of Roman Governors to advertise the Senate and People of such material things as happened in their Provinces; in the days of the Emperor Tiberius Cæsar, Publius Lentulus, President of Judea, wrote the following Epistle to the Senate:

"There appeared in these our days, a Man of great virtue, named Jesus Christ, who is yet living amongst us, and of the People is accepted for a Prophet, but his own Disciples call him The Son of God—He raiseth the dead, and cureth all manner of diseases—A man of stature somewhat tall and comely, with a very reverend countenance, such as the beholders may both love and fear—His hair, of the colour of a chestnut full ripe, and plain to his ears, but thence downwards it is more orient, curling and waving about his shoulders—In the midst of his head is a seam, or partition of his hair, after the manner of the Nazarites—His forehead plain and very delicate—His face without spot or wrinkle, beautified with a lovely red—His nose and mouth so formed as nothing can be reprehended—His beard thickish, in colour like the hair of his head, not very long, but forked—His look innocent and mature—His eyes grey, clear and quick—In reproving he is terrible—In admonishing, courteous and fair-spoken—Pleasant in conversation, mixed with gravity—It cannot be remembered that any have seen him laugh—But many have seen him weep—In proportion of body most excellent—His hands and arms delectable to behold—In speaking, very temperate, modest, and wise——A Man, for his singular Beauty, surpassing the Children of Men."

Peter Parley.

[Saturday Evening Gazette.]

The earliest recollections in connection with American juvenile literature in the minds of the middle-aged people of the present generation are associated with the name of "Peter Parley." Peter Parley was the pseudonym of Mr. Samuel G. Goodrich, a native of Connecticut, but who long lived in Roxbury, Mass., and a large portion of whose life was devoted to the production of books and of reading adapted to the entertainment and instruction of younger readers. The writings published nominally as of the authorship of Peter Parley are very voluminous. In point of fact, however, Mr. Goodrich wrote very few of them. He may be said to have suggested or edited nearly all; but their real authors were men of far more literary abilities than he possessed. Even so eminent a name in literature as that of Nathaniel Hawthorne is identified with at least one of these books. Mr. Goodrich called around him several promising young men of Boston and its neighborhood. He gave them employment in the composition of the Peter Parley literature. The sums that they received for writing this were not large, but they were more than they could earn elsewhere in the limited market for literary effort in those days. Besides Hawthorne, Mr. Goodrich had, in his staff of writers, George S. Hillard, John O. Sargent (a young lawyer, later known as a popular political writer, and now a resident of New York, we believe), and Epes Sargent, his brother, afterwards distinguished for versatile accomplishments in literature, and in his later years connected prominently with educational books. Mr. Kettell, of the Boston Courier, did much for him for many years; and at one time the most active pen in his service was that of William J. Snelling, a brilliant young Boston Bohemian, who died early, the victim of unfortunate habits. The Parley literature had real merit and rare popularity in its day. Prominent in it was Parley's Magazine, which attained a wide circulation, considering the limited extent of the field open to it, and the comparatively few facilities for distributing it over the country. It flourished while Mr. Goodrich gave the periodical his attention. But, by and by, he went into politics, and was appointed to office abroad, and his young writers passed into other kinds of labor. The magazine languished; different hands took possession of it; at last its name was changed, and soon after it died out altogether.

The Sewing Machine a Failure.

The following remarks are from the pen of a New York fashion writer: In the old days of hand-sewing how pathetically women used to bemoan their fate! Then, the sewing-machine came in as if it were the herald of the millennium. There were never to be any more songs of the shirt. All the sewing was to be done up, in an emergency, by that good fairy of the household, in a trice, before you could snap your fingers or say Jack Robinson. Oh, what oceans of time women were going to have for every conceivable object under the sun! But straightway they wheeled around and almost turned the blessing into a curse.

Instead of doing as they had promised to do, getting through with the sewing and having time for other things, they used sewing machines to turn every article of dress into a mass of unheard of elaboration. What miles of braiding and yards of tucking and forests of flouncing, the sewing machine is responsible for! It is responsible, too, for the elaborateness of style, finish and ornament which has distinguished the fashions since its advent. To it we owe the utter extinction of simplicity in feminine dress. It was so easy to make up a simple dress upon it—like those worn perforce, in the old days of the needle, in a very short time, that the ruffle was not to be resisted by any woman of artistic tendencies—and that means ninety-nine women out of every hundred, for they are nearly all born with more or less artistic instinct for adorning and beautifying—and this trait of feminine character, for lack of proper training and proper channels of outlet, becomes in woman one of her faults when it should have been one of her virtues.

Now the curse of the lady is the burdening of all feminine clothing with a mass of superfluous ornamentation which costs the life and health of woman and is death to all her higher mental aspirations.

If the sewing-machine were used as originally intended—a helper to work off all the sewing of the week in a few hours, then indeed it would be a blessing.

Why not make it so? Why not take a new departure? Why not decree such fashions in outside dress as shall enable any woman to make a new one entire within a few hours from the time she buys the material and the pattern, or to have it done within that time by some one else?

A Race of Educated Man-Eaters.

In the Observer of last week Rev. Charles P. Bush, D. D., gives an interesting account, as follows, of some remarkable savages which have come under his notice:—

The beautiful island of Sumatra, two and a half times as large as all New England, is inhabited by four and a half millions of people, among whom hardly any missionary effort had, as yet, been made. Parts of the island were in possession of the Dutch, and other parts were inhabited by independent tribes or principalities, among whom the Batta people, or Bataks, were represented as the most intelligent and interesting; a tribe or nation of about 350,000 souls, occupying the interior central portion of the island, immediately south of the Achinese, with whom the Dutch are now at war.

The Bataks were generally mild and inoffensive, though fierce and revengeful in time of conflict. In one respect they were the most remarkable people anywhere to be found—educated cannibals. They had a written language and books, and most of the people could read, and yet they were cannibals. They had an alphabet of their own, consisting of twenty-two letters and five vowel points. Their language was quite original, yet simple and melodious, much like the Italian, written like our own, from left to right, easily learned, and much used in all that region.

Their books are written on the inner bark of a species of palm tree, their pen consisting of a mere twig, or a fibre of a leaf; their ink made of a certain gum and the juice of the sugar cane. For ordinary purposes they also wrote upon smooth bamboo sticks, sometimes two inches in diameter and two or three feet long, making a letter, it might be, big enough to knock a person down—convenient for lovers delivering their own epistles, if they should not be graciously received.

Their literary works were really numerous, and yet not very wise, consisting largely of books of divination, jugglery and the most absurd fables about the origin and destiny of the great Batta nation. It will be seen, therefore, that they had some ambition. If they should receive the Gospel, they were in a good position to give it to others. Besides, much of the island was nominally Mohammedan, and so far as the Dutch had sway, they had agreed to protect the Mohammdan religion from all assault or interference from without; but the Battas were simple heathen, and beyond Dutch control. They believed in two gods, one above and one below—one good and one bad; but their ideas were very vague and uncertain, and they felt bound to pay far greater homage to the evil spirit than to the good, as they had most to fear from him.

And yet, strange enough, French infidelity and infidel books had found their way into that country. The missionaries met one of the former, who denounced the Bible as "all a lie," although he confessed that he had never read it, but boasted that he had read Voltaire's insane tirade against it no less than ten times.

And, after all, this cannibalism was of a modified type. They did not seem to feed on human flesh for mere love of it; nor was it their settled habit, as with some other people, to have regular cannibal feasts; but portions of the flesh of their enemies, slain in war, were tasted, as if in revenge, or as denoting complete triumph. The missionaries were, however, invited to one feast, for which a boy seven years of age had been seized and killed, and roasted, to be eaten for the sins of his father, committed six years before the little fellow was born. The missionaries respectfully declined the invitation.

A Rational View of Hell.

It is only a human religion such as that of Buddha, or Thor, or Jupiter, that may fear the growth of intelligence, and that may fade as the light of reason dawns; but of a religion from God, given by inspiration, the first distinguishing principle must be that it will reveal its reasonableness as fast as man unfolds his own intelligence, and still become more glorious where there is the most culture. The mediæval Christianity having been disfigured by ignorance and superstition, the subsequent growth of religion had to express itself in infidelity. When a Dante describes hell to mankind, and his frightful picture became the theology of the church, sweeping through Romanism over into Protestantism until Edwards says God will dash the sinner down on hell's floor and stamp upon him, then infidelity must follow not simply to save a man from such horrors, but to rescue God's blessed name from such unspeakable infamy. In such a hell as Dante's, it is not man that is puuished—it is God that is destroyed. From such ideas we must fly to a more reasonable religion, carrying the cross and our holy faith away from such a degradation. We must, indeed, separate forever the righteous and the wicked; but as the drunkard is punished in this world, and as the murderer accepts of his arrest without blaming God, as the soul feels its own wickedness and does not reproach the Creator, so the lost world is a place, not where God is seen as a cruel monster, but the human free will stands forth in all its divine powers, and reveals a self-punishment over which we can almost imagine the Heavenly Father himself to shed tears. Such is the perdition of reason—a place not where the Saviour and God become an inquisition, but where the sinner's own will and heart have worn themselves into garments of perpetual sackcloth, and where the tears of sorrow fall not from a malicious decree of God, passed from eternity, but fall out of the sinner's own wretched soul and misspent life. Thus, over almost every idea of the Christian religion, there is lying a drapery of reason fresh from the God of infinite wisdom, and beautiful to man, the image of the rational God.

The Postal Service.

The House committee on post offices and post roads have agreed upon an important bill, the object of which is to cut off the previous practice of straw bids, for carrying the mails. It provides that each accepted bidder for a contract to transport the United States mails will be required to give bonds and sureties to the full amount of one year's pay of contract, which bond shall be inspected and approved by a postmaster appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. It is made the duty of such postmaster to examine the solvency of such sureties and to withhold his approval if they are insufficient. The sureties are required to make oath that they own real estate worth double the amount of, bond, over all debts and exemptions. Postmasters who knowingly approve insufficient bonds are made liable for all loss to the government and disqualified from holding office. In case of the failure of any accepted bidder to comply with the terms of his contract, the Attorney General is to bring suit against the bidder and his sureties for all damages which the government may have sustained by reason of his failure. The bill authorizes the Postmaster-General, in case of the failure of a bidder, to contract with the next lowest bidder, but it leaves the whole subject within the discretion of that officer. It is believed that this bill will prevent the frauds which have been so easily perpetrated in the mail service on the frontier during the past dozen years.

John Van Buren's Wit.

The following story is told by the Indianapolis Sentinel:

A lady well known in New York society has recently gone the way of all the living. Her life was a somewhat varied one, and now that it is ended I am forcibly reminded of a story connected with the death of her first husband. That gentleman had, it seems, lost his health in some manner, and as the way is now and was then he went abroad, hoping to regain it. From land to land he journeyed till he died in some far-off country—let us say New South Wales—and the tidings of his decease were sent to his sorrowing partner, together with the information that his body had been preserved in a cask of rum, and was held subject to her order. She at once wrote, requesting that it be forwarded to her address and there the matter rested. But as time rolled on the widow became so much consoled as to enter again into the married state. Thus it chanced that when the cask containing No. 1 arrived at the end of a twelvemonth, No. 2 accompanied his bride to the ship to receive his predecessor. An account of which curious concatenations led John Van Buren to remark in his inimitable dry way: "If poor M—had known who would be on hand to receive him, he would not have come home in such good spirits."

The Fishing Frog.

Writers on natural history describe a hideous reptile known as the fishing frog, which angles for its game as expertly and with as great success as the most adroit fly-fisher. He is a clumsy, awkward swimmer, but Nature has compensated him for his unwieldiness by furnishing him with an equivalent for a rod and line, with bait always ready for use. Two elongated tentacles spring from his nose, which taper away like actual fishing rods. To the end of them is attached by a slender filament, which serves the purpose of a line, a bait in the form of a shiny bit of membrane. The books are set in the mouth of the fisherman down below, and in order to induce the fish to venture within reach of them, the angler stirs up the mud at the bottom with his fins and tail. This attracts the fish and conceals him from their observation. He then plies his rod: the glittering bait glows in the water like a living insect. The dazed fish are taken in great numbers, perfectly circumvented by the trick of the crafty angler.

—They made a rather funny blunder in the lock-up at Malden, Mass., recently. Amos Dean had been imprisoned to await trial on the charge of setting fire to a school house in Melrose, but a man who had applied for lodgings, was put in a cell adjoining Dean's Friday night; the officer who was to release him in the morning let Dean out by mistake, and Dean didn't call his attention to the blunder. When the officer went to the cell to give the supposed incendiary his breakfast, the prisoner remarked, "I guess you've made a mistake; the arson man has gone, and I'm the lodger. I'll take the breakfast, though, all the same."

—Good newspaper writing is becoming more and more common. A Pittsburg editor complains that one of his articles has been subject to misrepresentations as "wild as the glossaries of the Talmud." Another lively writer in Minnesota avers that "our indescribably beautiful sunset scenes come as near representing the opening portals to the celestial republic of souls as anything mortal vision ever beheld." Every day we are more and more firmly convinced that the English language has magnificent resources as yet undeveloped.

—Nothing turns a woman's head like a bonnet going past her.

J. W. Elliot, of Keene, seems to have been the only person to represent N. Hampshire, at the wedding of President Grant's daughter. Young Elliot was with U. S. Grant, Jr., at Exeter Academy, and is now his chum in college at Cambridge.

Important to the Sensitive.

Persons with active brains and of a delicate organization should never be subjected to violent purgation or any other treatment calculated to prostrate them. Leeching, cupping, starving, and intestinal rasping, are of doubtful expediency in any case, but they are almost certain death to the sensitive and fragile. What such persons need is stimulation, and the very best invigorant they can take is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. To give depleting medicines to the nervous, the debilitated, the infirm, the emaciated, the desponding, is like firing broadsides into a sinking ship. Thousands of dyspeptics are killed every year by medicines that sap the physical and constitutional stamina when, if reinforced by that powerful vegetable tonic, would soon prove an overmatch for the disease. It is true that the bowels require to be relieved and regulated, and the liver controlled, as well as the stomach to be toned and the system strengthened, and let it be borne in mind that the Bitters accomplish these objects gently and surely.

Helmbold's Buchu is still in the zenith of its popularity. Notwithstanding the absence of Dr. Helmbold, the celebrated medicine is still manufactured at the laboratory of Philadelphia, and is sold by all respectable druggists. It is warranted for all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Beware of counterfeits. Genuine has proprietor's private stamp. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

Don't be Discouraged. Suppose you have "tried fifty remedies" and received no benefit, is there therefore "no balm in Gilead?" Verily there is. Your liver may be congested, your stomach half paralyzed, your nerves quivering, your muscles knotted with torture, your bowels constricted, your lungs diseased, your blood full of impurities—yet in one week after commencing a course of DR. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments and quack nostrums always make them worse. ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple permanent cure, acts as a bougee, soothing poultice and medicine all in one. Relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker str., New York.

Sickness is an affliction that waits on us all. None are exempt, and there are none but need relief from its attacks. Whoever can furnish this becomes our benefactor. A conviction prevails that DR. AYER does it. Disorders of the blood have been healed by his SARSAPARILLA, and affections of the lungs by his CHERRY PECTORAL, too frequently and too fatally to be disputed. His AGUE CURE is said, by those who use it, to never fail. Reader, if you must have medical aid, take the best of medicine. Poor remedies are dear, as good are cheap, at any price you have to pay for them.—[Charlestown Courier.]

Local Matters.

Memorial Day.

Saturday was a very pleasant day although a southerly wind made it chilly at the South Cemetery. Business was generally suspended, the public buildings were closed and flags were raised. The procession marched from Market Square a few minutes before the appointed time, Post Commander John Moore acting as Chief Marshal. The U. S. Marines under command of Lieut. Russell made a fine appearance, as did the Independent Battalion, Major E. A. Tilton commanding. The "Davy Crockett" engine company, Capt. William Tucker, and the surviving heroes of the Grand Army of the Republic, carrying wreaths and flowers with which to decorate the graves, brought up the rear. The graves at the Catholic Cemetery were decorated in the morning, details having been made from Storer Encampment for that purpose. The procession passed over the route as follows, the American Band of Rochester furnishing some choice selections of music:

From Congress street through Market to Deer street, through Deer to Vaughan and Elm streets to North Cemetery. Countermarched through Railroad Avenue to Deer street, through Deer to Vaughan, through Vaughan to Congress, through Congress and Islington to Cabot, through Cabot to Middle, through Middle to Richards Avenue, to South Cemetery. Returning through South, Pleasant, State, Middle and Congress streets to Market Square.

Arrived at the South Cemetery, where thousands of people had gathered, the following programme was faithfully carried out, after which the procession reformed and marched to Market Square, where it was dismissed;

1 Formed three sides of Hollow Square on ground.
2 Prayer by Post Chaplain.
3 Singing by a double quartette.
4 Promulgation of General Order Post Adjutant.
5 Address by Rev. Carlos Martyn.
6 Volley by firing party.
7 Decoration of graves.
8 Re-assembled and closed with music by Band.

Capt. O. G. Robinson offers in our columns this morning his fine country residence and farm at Greenland for sale, affording one of the finest opportunities in this section of the State to secure a very desirable piece of property. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. The fruit orchard contains about 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and there are 1300 young apple trees in the nursery. Part of the property is woodland, and there is muck enough to last a century on the farm. In the pasture is a never failing spring. Capt. Robinson says he will sell at a bargain, and the estate will probably find a purchaser very speedily.

A base ball match between the Star club of Dover and the Resolute club of this city will take place on Wednesday afternoon at the Plains.

George Cheney, the gate-keeper at the ill-fated Williamsburg reservoir, has been engaged by a man who proposes to take him and the horse on which he rode so swiftly down the valley to warn the dwellers below, on an exhibition tour through the country. The horse was almost ruined by the driver. The showman expects to begin operations this week.

A Little Rock letter states that shooting affrays are very prevalent, and a spirit of lawlessness pervades the whole State of Arkansas.

In the case of the crusaders arrested in Pittsburg, Penn., Judge Stowe gave a decision reversing the judgment of the acting mayor, and ordered the fines to be refunded. The ladies are jubilant over their victory, and held a meeting to decide upon a future plan of action.

A couple of well-known gentlemen were on their way from Montreal to Portland recently by a Pullman sleeping car. They occupied one of the two state-rooms, the other being used by several high Canadian dignities and the daughter of one of them. The sink for bathing purposes lies between the two state-rooms. In the morning one of the Portland gentlemen, in airy attire, proceeded to take his bath. He found on the sink the lady's jewelry, while her garments had been carefully deposited underneath. Her boots also rested on the sink-counter. The gentleman brushed them aside and, with both hands full of water, was just about dousing his face when a feminine scream startled him, and he dropped all the water into the boots. That lady went round all that day with her boots in her hand.

The Capture of Vasquez.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

The full telegraphic dispatches in another column give particulars of the capture of the bandit Vasquez after a more general and active chase than any other robber in California has ever rendered necessary. At intervals, for six months past, he has been the object of vigorous hunts, and has had the ingenuity, endurance and boldness to not only foil his pursuers, but perpetrate the most audacious robberies and murders in unexpected places, and in so doing demoralize and confuse the officers of the law by the rapidity and daring of his movements. He has been greatly aided by the sympathy of the Mexican people in the district which has been the field of his operations. Many of them have looked upon him as a hero, the representative of whatever their nature contains of bravery and generalship, and have deemed his lawless deeds rather a noble warfare against the Americans than criminalities deserving the highest penalties of the law. He was of their blood, sympathized with them, and is reputed to have always spared them in his raids. In addition to this he long carried with him the prestige of success, which always makes friends and followers. He controlled the majority of the Mexicans through their fears, for themselves or the female members of their families. But in time his atrocities became so great as to awaken against him the determination of the people of the entire State that he should be punished. Rewards were offered for his capture, dead or alive, and parties of fearless huntsmen chased him from place to place, over mountains, across plains, through canons, from one to another of his haunts, until his followers were dissipated and he was made to feel that he was in good sooth no hero, but a mere criminal fugitive, in hourly danger and with almost the certainty of ultimate capture before him. Four expeditions in pursuit of Vasquez have started at different times from various portions of the State. The capture of Vasquez is only the beginning of what will be very probably accomplished within a few weeks by some of the same parties. The determination is to effect the capture or death of at least two of his most dangerous followers within a few days. The capture of the others will be undertaken with equal determination, but will be the work of time. The expense of following these men is an item that would astonish the uninitiated.

South Carolina's Costly Error.

[Providence Journal.

Twenty-nine hundred pieces of real estate to be sold for taxes in the county of Charleston, South Carolina, have been forfeited to the State for want of bidders. Rev. James Freeman Clarke, of Boston, who has just returned from the south, said in a sermon that a white Carolinian told him that the trouble had come upon them because, upon the event of reconstruction, the southern whites had not taken the lead of and controlled the negroes. And that is the whole story. The negroes would have at that time been easily governed, politically as well as in other matters, by their former masters. But these latter were mad all through. They would not condescend to treat the negroes as men having, or entitled to have, opinions. They thought it "smart" to let the newly enfranchised work out their own political salvation; and so, standing back, the carpet-bagger took the place they should have assumed and held. The negro must have somebody to lead off; he took the first offer. He got badly cheated, but not nearly so greatly fooled as the white man, who deceived himself. No doubt it would have been disagreeable to the late owner to discuss questions of State policy with the freedman, but it would have been better to have done it. Those who have trusted the negroes fairly and frankly in pecuniary matters, have retained their confidence. The ex-slave who will trust his former master with his earnings, will not hear a word from him as to who shall be justice of the peace; but this is because in the one case the white man has dealt with him in a way he could understand, and in the other he has stood aloof. The situation is a terrible one; no one can see the end, much less what it will be, but the harvest is the natural yield of the seed sown. Rebellion is a costly luxury, and the first generation does not succeed in paying the cost.

—"Now, Willie, do have a little courage. When I have a powder to take I don't like it any more than you do, but I make up my mind that I will take it and I do." "And when I have a powder to take," replied Willie, I "make up my mind that I won't take it and I don't."

HENDERSON & CO.,
ANNOUNCE THEIR
— OF —
Bonnets, Hats,
Flowers and Ribbons.
The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.
The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a
NEW BONNET.
It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:
First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.
Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.
Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.
Hats, not trimmed,
From One Cent to One Dollar.
Hats, trimmed,
From 50 cts. to $10.00.
And five dollar Trimmed Hats will compare favorably with any ten dollar one in the city.

TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1616 to '20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

A Look Ahead.

[From "International Vanities," in Blackwood's Magazine.]

In the present condition of the world, coats of arms and flags and crowns may advantageously remain in the shape they originally assumed; but pigtails, wigs, and stocks would be as out of place in the uniforms of to-day as the horse-pistols of last century in a combat of artillery at 5000 yards. And this last consideration leads us to other thoughts. Judging from past experience, the smart coats which warriors wear, and which are identified in every country with the national idea of force, will go on changing, not only as a result of varying taste in dress, but also as a consequence of the development of weapons. The time may come when the token which we now call "uniform" will disappear altegether; when, after passing through an intermediate stage of cuirassed armies, in which regiments, like ships, will be sheathed in six-inch plates, the battles of the world will be fought, at ranges of several degrees of longitude, by the scientific employment of the forces of nature. If ever this occurs, the soldiers of the future will doubtless be enclosed in laboratory bottles, and be surrounded by opaque vapors; generals will wear diving-dresses, and carry safety-lamps into action; while reconnaissances will be made by spectrum analysis. The effects of such a change as this would not be limited to the mere suppression of variegated coats and trousers; they could scarcely fail to simultaneously extend to other details too. Under such conditions of belligerence actual emblems would lose their value; nations would probably discard them, and adopt, instead, devices more in harmony with the new methods which each of them would then employ in war. France, for instance, might give up the tricolour and adopt "portable democratised earthquakes" as her badge; England might abandon the ugly Union-Jack, and send her troops to fight beneath an oriflamme of "chemistry and dynamics;" Russia would replace the Byzantine eagle by "explosive ice;" while Italy would put "utilized volcanoes" in the place of the white cross of Savoy. United Germany, on the contrary, would continue to employ the practical but touching motto which she has recently adopted, "Blood and iron;" in this respect, as in in so many others, she is far away ahead of her contemporaries, and is showing them the mottoes of the future. For the moment this view of coming emblems may seem exaggerated; but science is progressing very fast, and some day, perhaps, a good deal more than even this may come to pass.

If so, it is not unlikely that our successors will look back with a sort of envy to what, in their time will be geologically known as the "flag-period" of the earth's existence. The fossilized relics of the happy generations who went to war with gunpowder will be preserved in the museums of the future side by side with the shreds which may then remain of their standards, their coats of arms, their liveries, their cockades. Fathers will take their children on Sunday afternoons (unless at that period the world employs a chemical substitute for Sunday) to gaze with curious sympathy on the skulls and thigh-bones of the simple races which used breech-loaders for weapons and coloured stuffs for emblems. In the then state of destructive inventivity our epoch will be regarded as a golden age of peace, ignorance, and love, and our ensigns and other symbols will come in for a just proportion of the admiration which our retrospective innocuity will provoke. Professors of archæology will teach their pupils that the Prussian Eagle was an accepted sign of gentleness and maiden diffidence; that the Stars and Stripes stood universally for bashful modesty; and that the British Lion was a type of self-sacrificing unselfishness. We really ought to be very proud to have such a future before us; we do not suspect that it is waiting for us (we know ourselves too well for that); but if really it comes to pass, our shades will look on approvingly, and will murmur to each other, "Posterity is right; we always said our flags were full of noble meaning."

A Living Pop-Gun.

There is a little fish, the chætodon, abounding in the Eastern seas, from Ceylon to Japan, which secures its prey by means of an instrument like the blow-pipe used by mischievous school-boys for projecting peas and other means of torment. The nose of the fish is a kind of beak, through which he has the power of propelling a drop of water with force enough to disable a fly, preparatory to swallowing it. His aim is accurate, and he rarely misses his object. The unsuspecting fly sits on a spray of weed, a twig, or a tuft of grass, near the water, pluming himself in the warm rays of the sun. The fish cautiously places himself under the fly, stealthily projects his tube from the water, takes a sure aim, and lets fly. Down drops the little innocent to be swallowed by the fish.

Following a Bad Example.

They are having a sort of Baxter-Brooks war in one of the school districts of Waterford, Ct. A member of the committee hired a woman to teach school for the summer, without consulting the other two members; but they didn't propose to have things run that way, so they appointed a man. On Monday morning the pedagogue took possession of the school-house and blockaded the door. The young lady soon made her appearance and began coaxing and threatening, but in vain. She was finally admitted as a visitor, however, but no sooner had she got in than she assumed command, and whatever he told the pupils to do she told them not to do. Neither has yielded yet, and there is great excitement in the district, but no blood has been shed.

TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. None, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1615 to '20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's Island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign parts. These performances ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a deceased son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post office.

The Bowdoin College Troubles.

An account of the circumstances preceding the present outbreak at Bowdoin College is given in the Bangor (Me.) Whig, from which it appears that some time since, in accordance with an act of Congress and a request of the college authorities, the United States Government detailed Major Sanger, an accomplished officer of the regular army, to act as instructor of military science at Bowdoin. The Government also furnished the college with rifles and equipments, and at a later date with a complete battery of artillery.

The military exercises and studies were incorporated as a part of the college course, and regular hours assigned for drill and recitations. At first the new exercises were very popular, but after a while more or less hostility was manifested in the older classes members of which regarded the drill and discipline as rather irksome and obnoxious to collegiate dignity, and the younger were soon influenced by the force of example, until a general discontent made itself apparent in various ways. Prior to the last Commencement, it was understood that a large number of students were fully determined that the military feature should be abolished, and a petition to that effect was presented to the college boards at their annual meeting. They declined to accede to the demand, but they so modified the requirements as to remove the principal objections urged by the students. Thus, during the past year, the latter have been relieved from the purchase of a full uniform as before; the Seniors have recitation in military science in place of drilling; the Juniors have been required to attend artillery exercises only, and the infantry drill has been confined to the Sophomore and Freshman classes.

The students, however, having made a point of determing to force the abandonment of the military exercises, were not pacified by the partial deference to their wishes, and they seem to have received encouragement in their contest with the Faculty by the words and actions of certain strong opponents of President Chamberlain and his policy. The first outbreak occurred in the Junior class, a few weeks ago, when a midnight salute was fired from the battery, and on the following night the guns, loaned by the courtesy of the United States Government, were dismounted and rendered useless by spiking.

The next overt act occured a week ago Saturday night, when blasphemous inscriptions were painted over the door of the chapel. On the next day, when the Juniors were dismissed from the artillery exercise, several of them were overheard indulging in profane language concerning the drill, and on the following day the instructor informed the class that such language or other offensive demonstrations would not be permitted. Notwithstanding this caution, a number of students gathered in a group on breaking ranks, and gave vent to "three groans for the drill." The parties were recognized, reported, and subsequently five of the offenders were suspended and one dismissed. This was resented by the Juniors in a class meeting lasting till after midnight, at which it was resolved to "cut" the drill in a body.

On Friday the Sophomores and Freshmen also held class meetings, and, with two or three exceptions, signed an agreement never to drill again while in college. On Saturday morning members of the Faculty held interviews with the classes separately, and sought without success to induce them to reconsider their course. Subsequently a mass meeting of the students was held in the chapel, at which the Juniors signed the pledge against the drill, and the three classes resolved to stand to the last, and that the punishment of any one would be resented by all.

Small Business.

[Rochester Courier.]

Notices that his seat in the legislature would be contested, having been served on Charles F. Caverly, the hearing was commenced on Wednesday of last week, at the Town Hall, and it still drags its slow length along, at a snail-like pace. Thos. J. Smith, Esq., of Dover, is attorney employed by——for the purpose of keeping Mr. C. out of his seat in the legislature; Joseph H. Worcester, Esq., of this village, is attorney for Mr. Caverly, and Jacob B. Smith, of Strafford, is Justice. A long array of witnesses have been examined upon everything which could possibly have any bearing upon the case, and many that could not were also brought forward. Jos. L. Davidson, who came to this country when a boy, served four years in putting down the rebellion, and who has voted, unchallenged, for the last ten years, is asked why he dares to exercise the rights of an American citizen. And "Joe" replied that his father was naturalized many years ago, and that when he (Joe) became of age, he, by his father's papers, was an American citizen. Another case was that of Mr. Gotts, a well known citizen of East Rochester, who has voted many years in town, unchallenged, but whose naturalization papers were destroyed by the fire at the counting room of the manufactory at East Rochester a few years since. This fact was made known at the time, but no one has heretofore denied Mr. G.'s right to vote. Then the case of Enos Rewitzer, better known as "Miller," an old veteran who lost a leg in the rebellion, was brought up. Miller has had sickness in his family and has himself been unable to do much work, and finding it difficult to pay the tax on his little home, he so stated to the selectmen last fall, and they caused a partial abatement in his taxes. A month since, he called upon the selectmen, and again told them of his inabilities to pay his tax, and like wholesouled men, they wiped it all out, and let the one legged, broken-down veteran go on his way rejoicing. Was there anything very bad about that? On the contrary wasn't it an act that even small-souled men approve? There was lots of evicence given by John W. Roberts and others who counted the check list after election. The evidence, however, was really of no importance, nor did we learn that any important evidence upon the matter has thus far been brought out at any stage of the proceedings.

It seems to be "Much Ado about Nothing," and we have been told so by some of the best men in the democratic party, who said they had no hand in the matter, and denounced it to us.

The question has been asked hundreds of times, "Who furnishes the money for this expense of hundreds of dollars?" Certainly not the democratic party of Rochester, for they say that their treasury is empty, and their monied men won't pay such an enormous bill, for they are not all hand in hand with this movement. There is but one answer, and every man who has attended the hearing for any length of time, has solved the problem and knows full well where the money comes from.

The answer is, that the "Massachusetts Liquor Dealers' Association" have a million dollars at their command with which to advance the interest of the Association. They know full well that with a license law in the State of New Hampshire, the market for rum in this state is improved, and their sales augmented. They are bound to have that law one to suit them, and with this object in view, aided as they are by the "New Hampshire Liquor Dealers' Association," they will leave no stone unturned that is in the way for its accomplishment. Charles F. Caverly is in favor of the present prohibitory law, or one even stronger, and belongs to class of men they don't want. A majority of the members of the legislature were elected upon a license platform, yet it may be a hard thing to repeal our present prohibitoro law, and the keeping of Caverly from his seat will make a gain of one for license. We again say that we don't believe that the democracy of this town furnish the money to carry on this hearing, for the Legislature will be democratic enough to elect their Governor and transact all party measures they desire, except, perhaps this one thing, repealing our liquor law.

Hence, it is self evident that the "king behind the throne" is King Alcohol, in the shape of liquor associations. This is what we denounce. and we do it boldly. If these associations are to interfere with our local elections, what shall the end be? If these associations are to commence their rule of iron over the voters of New Hampshire, who can guess when, or where, or how, this mighty element of corruption shall explode and heave the calm surface of things into chaos and night.

Daily Chronicle.

TUESDAY, JUNE 2, 1874.

A New Party.

A Washington special to the Graphic says the new party movement is at length fairly under way. Some nineteen western members of Congress have recently adopted a platform, which they propose as a nucleus of a new party organization. This platform runs somewhat as follows:

1. A call for a constitutional convention to effect several changes in the fundamental laws of the United States, among which will be (a) the election of President, Vice-President and senators directly by the people; (b) subordinating all corporations to the national government; (c) disallowing special provision to any corporation; (d) adding largely to the authority of the general government in matters affecting transportation and trade of the country, (e) and making such banking provisions as will allow the general government to institute banks under its own authority.

2. An immediate agitation for admitting Congress and the nation at once to the carrying out of the scheme of the five great artificial water routes recommended by the transportation committee of the senate.

3. The constitution of at least two direct freight railways, under the authority of the general government, so as to regulate the charges on the main lines of the country.

With regard to the currency question, the majority of those who attend are in favor of inflation, but as yet it is not made a cardinal doctrine of the new party. They will await the course of events. The new combinations are made without reference to old party lines, and it is stated that no less distinguished a politician than Senator Morton will be its leader. It is said the movement has the countenance of Logan, but the bulk of adherents are members of the house.

Readables.

The Cincinnati papers complain bitterly of the arrogance manifested by the clergy of that city regarding the temperance crusade. The Enquirer in particular thinks they imagine themselves possessed of the power wielded by their predecessors two centuries ago. The fulminations of Pope Gregory could not be more haughty and uncompromising, and the denunciations which he launched at recusant Catholics not more terrible than the doom assigned the poor Cincinnatians by those modern ecclesiastics.

At an amateur game of base ball in Hartford, on Saturday, three players were injured and the game ended with the fifth inning. One had his finger broken, one had his jaw broken and six teeth broken out, and the third received a severe cut on the head, which threatens a fatal result.

Flags were displayed at half-mast and minute guns were fired on Monday at the navy yards in memory of the late Rear-Admiral Shubrick.

In the inquest on the Mill River disaster, on Saturday, one of the contractors for the dam, virtually admitted the truth of all the charges brought against the dam, and testified that even the vague specifications were not adhered to.

Mr. and Mrs. Sartoris arrived safely at Queenstown Sunday night.

Six of the oldest conductors of the Pennsylvania Railroad, New York division, have been removed for general mistakes, and eight more will probably follow.

Collector Simmons of Boston, whom the morning papers so zealously opposed, seems to be the right man in the right place. The Herald says he has been making a very thorough examination of the employes at the custom house and the manner of doing business there. As a result, several inefficient officials have been removed and the places held by persons whose services are not needed, have been abolished. The reduction of expenses for the ensuing fiscal year will be $40,000. This is the result of the appointment of a clear-headed man for Collector who attends to his business, rather than some Beacon Hill aristocrat who would think it beyond his dignity to do anything beyond drawing his salary.

The Bostons have won two games from every other club except the Chicagos, with whom they have not played. The relative standing of the clubs is best shown by the percentage of games won, which is as follows: Boston, 88; Mutual, 55; Athletic, Atlantic and Chicago, 50; Hartford, 36; Philadelphia, 33 1-3; Baltimore, 20.

The first of the new inventions for getting rid of the sea motion in the channel passage will be ready for launching at Blackwall, England, to-day. Captain Dicey's idea of twin ships connected by an arch throughout, and worked by paddles, in what may be called the tunnel between the two keels, has been very ably carrried out by the naval architect of the company. Should the experiment prove successful, the short rolls, or chops of the cross seas, will be counterbalanced by the double keel, while the pitching may be overcome to a great extent by the length of the vessel.

Chicago had a $250,000 fire Monday.

Ship British Admiral has been wrecked on King's Island, near Australia, with a loss of 73 lives.

The public debt statement for May shows a reduction of $4,456,838.

Secretary Richardson resigned on Monday. The President nominated him to be Judge of the Court of Claims, and Gen. H. B. Bristow of Kentucky to be Secretary of the Treasury. The latter accepts the office on condition that he shall have the appointment of subordinates. This means that Assistant Secretary Sawyer must leave.

The democrats and republicans of Oregon have fraternized to such a degree that they have coalesced for the sake of defeating the independents. The republicans take the Congressional nomination, and the democrats the Governorship. This looks something like John Henry Millenium's speedy approach!

Stratham has canker worms.

The dwelling-house, barn and out-buildings of Joseph Eastman, Concord, were burned on Saturday; loss, $6000; insured for $3000.

Mr. William Quimby and Mrs. Eveline Quimby were married in Franconia on May 18th, both having passed their three score and ten years, and having great-grandchildren.

Two little boys, children of John Whitehead, aged 4 and 6 years, were drowned at Lake Village, on Saturday, while playing on a raft. Their bodies were recovered.

The Amoskeag Company, at Manchester, filled a case with a thousand yards of such goods as would be most desirable for the sufferers by the Mill River disaster, and sent it to them by express, free of charge on the 26th ult.

The Methodist camp meeting will begin on August 24, at the Weirs camp ground.

Tame pigeons build their nests in trees at Exeter.

On the 24th ult., as a gang of lumbermen were at work on Brown's "drive," on Diamond Stream, driving logs into the Magalloway, a man named Smith, from Ellsworth, Me., got caught in a jam, and was drowned.

The Rochester Courier learns that a man named Foss, living at Gonic, while near his home in that village, was met by some persons with a wagon, who got out of the wagon, and beat Mr. F. unmercifully, and he now lies in a critical condition. The beating was done on Tuesday evening and Mr. F. was unable to tell who his assailants were.

The legislature meets on Wednesday. The most recent indications point to a close contest between Jos. Burroughs and A. R. Hatch for Speaker, the former being aided by the railroad magnates in the northern and central parts of the State. The Manchester Union, (democratic,) counsels discretion on the part of the outsiders who are not members and who desire to push schemes which may not be practicable. The Union suggests that the legislators "save the State $50,000 and go home to their haying in good season," considering it of "not much consequence what else they do or omit to do." The Union might urge a fly to leave a molasses barrel, with equal chances of the advice being heeded.

A few days since a woman went through Hampton Falls, begging money with which to buy her a house, the refusal of which she said she had at thirty-nine dollars.

Some men who were engaged on Friday in repairing the Derry road in Hudson unearthed the skeleton of a man. It was in a good state of preservation, and the fact that the skull was broken leads to the suspicion of foul play. The road has been built more than a century, and so far as the knowledge of the oldest resident extends, there has been no burial by the roadside. There were no indications of a coffin, and it is believed the remains must have been interred less than twenty years ago. The place, circumstances, and everything considered, leads to the conclusion that somewhere in the past a murder was committed.

Important to the Sensitive.

Persons with active brains and of a delicate organization should never be subjected to violent purgation or any other treatment calculated to prostrate them. Leeching, cupping, starving, and intestinal rasping, are of doubtful expediency in any case, but they are almost certain death to the sensitive and fragile. What such persons need is stimulation, and the very best invigorant they can take is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. To give depleting medicines to the nervous, the debilitated, the infirm, the emaciated, the desponding is like firing broadsides into a sinking ship. Thousands of dyspeptics are killed every year by medicines that sap the physical and constitutional stamina which, if reinforced by that powerful vegetable tonic, would soon prove an overmatch for the disease. It is true that the bowels require to be relieved and regulated, and the liver controlled, as well as the stomach to be aroused and the system strengthened, and let it be borne in mind that the Bitters accomplish these objects gently and surely.

Helmbold's Buchu is still in the zenith of its popularity. Notwithstanding the absence of Dr. Helmbold, the unrivalled medicine is still manufactured at the laboratory at Philadelphia, and is sold by all respectable druggists. It is warranted for all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Beware of counterfeits. Genuine has proprietor's private stamp. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

Nature's Diadem.—Is your hair falling out? Is your hair growing dry and lifeless? Is your hair less pliable and glossy than of yore? It wants a good healthful hair dressing to help exhausted nature to recover itself.

Try BEARNE and mark the change. 5

Don't be Discouraged. Suppose you have "tried fifty remedies" and received no benefit, is there therefore "no balm in Gilead?" Verily there is. Your liver may be congested, your stomach half paralyzed, your nerves unstrung, your muscles knotted with torture, your bowels constricted, your lungs diseased, your blood full of impurities—yet in one week after commencing a course of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS you will feel like a new creature. a29 4w

20,000 Cures of PILES have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the happiest discovery in medicine ever made. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments and quack nostrums always make them worse. ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple permanent cure, acts as a bougee, soothing poultice and medicine. The relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker str., New York.

Sickness is an affliction that waits on us all. None are exempt, and there are none but need relief from its attacks. Whoever can furnish this becomes our benefactor. A conviction prevails that DR. AYER does it. Disorders of the blood have been healed by his SARSAPARILLA, and affections of the lungs by his CHERRY PECTORAL, too frequently and too distinctly to be disputed. His AGUE CURE is said, by those who use it, to never fail. Reader, if you must have medical aid, take the best of medicine. Poor remedies are dear, as good are cheap, at any price you have to pay for them.—[Charlestown Courier.]

Blessings brighten as they take their flight.—If you have a good head of hair take care of it; once gone and we realize its loss far more than we appreciate its presence. The BEARNE is taking the place of all other hair dressings, because it is healthful to the hair and delightful to use.

THE "LIGHT RUNNING" "DOMESTIC"

KING OF SEWING Machines.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

It affords me great pleasure to be able to announce to my friends (and to all others interested,) that the "Domestic" Sewing Machine Company has fully resumed the manufacture of its UNRIVALLED MACHINE, and will expand its business with increased energy. Its new factories will soon be completed, and every machine will be as nicely constructed as possible. All who have used the Machine for four years or less, pronounce it

THE LIGHTEST RUNNING,
EASIEST TO KEEP IN ORDER,
THE MOST DURABLE,

—AND DECIDEDLY—

The Nearest to Perfection

of any Sewing Machine in the market. It is the intention to have the

"DOMESTIC" SEWING MACHINE

Supercede all others in this City and Vicinity.

—THE—

"DOMESTIC" SEWING MACHINE

—IS THE—

"Best Machine to Use,"

—AND THE—

EASIEST TO SELL.

IT IS DURABLE

AND WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME,

Every Machine

I sell is warranted to be all I claim for it, and a

Written Guarantee

WILL BE GIVEN TO PURCHASERS IF DESIRED.

ALL MACHINES ARE FURNISHED—WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE—WITH CASTORS, A HEMMER AND FELLER, QUILTING GAUGE, BRAIDER, THUMB-SCREW AND GAUGE, A DOZEN OF ASSORTED NEEDLES, HALF A DOZEN BOBBINS, WRENCH, SCREW DRIVER, OILER, BOTTLE OF OIL AND BOOK OF INSTRUCTIONS.

THE "DOMESTIC" WILL

Hem, Fell,
Bind, Braid,
Cord, Quilt,
Tuck, Ruffle,
Embroider, Gather,

AND SEW ON AT THE SAME TIME.

THE GATHERING ATTACHMENT

As applied to the "DOMESTIC" is made on an

ENTIRELY NEW PRINCIPLE.

No other Machine in the United States having any thing for this purpose that can be compared with this late invention. It is applied directly to the presser bar, and is operated by the movements of the Needle Bar.

ITS ACTIONS ARE POSITIVE—ITS MOTIONS PERFECT.

As some of my friends, connected with the sale of other kinds of sewing machines, have interested themselves so much during the past winter as to falsely represent that the "Domestic" S. M. Co. had failed, and that there could be no parts obtained for the "Domestic" Needles, etc., etc., I will state that the "Domestic" Sewing Machine Co. has been making steady progress from the first, and as to parts of the machine, needles, etc., being obtained, I keep them constantly on hand. But although the "Domestic" where it has been sold may be run "from morn until eve" without tiring the operator. We have had scarcely any call for extra parts and are pleased to state that we have not so much business in that way as some of our neighbors. If however any one owning a "Domestic" should in any manner be disinfected, all matters will be made right by calling at my office. I will further state that as heretofore I shall keep on hand all kinds of

SEWING MACHINE NEEDLES,
TUCKERS,
GATHERERS,
EMBROIDERERS,
HEMMERS,
BRAIDERS,
CORDERS,
ETC., ETC., ETC.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and recommended by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

Local Matters.

The Portsmouth Grange.

On one of the jambs of the doorway leading to Craig's Insurance office, the Mercantile Library room, etc., on Congress street, among other signs, appears in neat and appropriate green lettering, in Ed. Coffin's good style:

Portsmouth
Grange,
No. 22,
P. of H.
3rd story.

Now probably it would not be fair to suppose that Mr. Craig is in any way responsible for the introduction of the Grangers here, merely because his name appears on the same door-post; but as it will be recollected by many readers that Mayor Miller thus discoursed of farmers and grangers in his machine poem at the Mechanics' celebration, last winter:

The Farmer must come first of all,
Since all others we better could spare—
A subject bold men to appal,
For who now the Grangers can dare?

But take alphabetical range,
Let us see whom we have in our crew;
Though if I keep out of the Grange,
I can scarce tell you much that is new;

the Mayor is naturally under some suspicion of complicity with the hayseed Order. And Gersh. Melcher—who don't belong either, not as we know of—says he can always tell when the Grangers are coming, oho, oho, by the long string of teams—not string teams, you know,—all along his side of Congress street. Glowing accounts have been rumored all along, of the growth of the Portsmouth Grange, and the Boston Transcript of Thursday, under the head of "The Portsmouth Grangers' Junketting," had this item:

"The Grange of Patrons of Husbandry from Stratham visited their brethren and sisters of this city last evening, and, report says, sat down to a feast of good things, gustatory and social. The hall was beautifully decorated with flags and streamers, with the word "Welcome" at either end. Possibly if what they know about farming was not increased by the pleasant visit, the ten-mile drive home by moonlight might have improved the chances of husbandry among some of the young folks. Secret Orders of all sorts have long flourished astonishingly here, and the Grangers appear to be no exception. Portsmouth Grange is No. 22 in New Hampshire, and contains many leading citizens. Haven L. Scott, superintendent of the city farm, is Master, and Mayor Miller is Lecturer. William G. Brown, the noted young farmer who raised Fearnaught, is Master of the Stratham Grange."

To which we will add that we were allowed to peep into the sacred precinct before the conclave of farmers, and the decorations, which we were told were wholly the work of Mr. C. B. Mason, Overseer of the Grange, were very tasteful and pretty, and the well-loaded tables looked most inviting.

Street Sprinkling.

Mr. Wm. Plaisted sprinkled the streets of this city for several years, receiving each year a small sum from the city, and depending for the rest of his pay upon private subscriptions. He always said he found it a losing speculation, and finally gave up the business, some three years ago. Mr. E. M. Balch then took it up, and for two years past has done the work to general satisfaction,—but not to his own profit, the city's appropriation and the private subscriptions together not amounting to more than enough to pay actual expenses. This year Mr. Balch asked the city to appropriate $500 for sprinkling the streets, which with private subscriptions would leave some margin for profit; but only $300 has been appropriated by the Common Council, which Mr. Balch says will not pay him for the work required, and if no more is finally appropriated he will follow Mr. Plaisted's example,—sell his gear and give up the business. It is not likely any man will work at a loss, but we hope to see the sprinklers moving around the streets during the hot weather which has got to come.

Laconics.

Mr. George Dockham, a conductor on the Eastern Railroad, ran the first trip on the ten-o'clock Newburyport train fourteen years ago and has run it ever since until last Saturday, when he was transferred to the Danvers route.

The flags at the navy yard and on board the receiving ship were placed at half-mast, and a salute of thirteen minute guns fired from the "Sabine" on Monday in respect to the late Rear Admiral Wm. Branford Shubrick, U. S. N., who died in the city of Washington on the 27th ult., aged 84 years. Rear Admiral Shubrick was senior officer on the retired list, having entered the navy in 1806 at the age of sixteen and "served his country faithfully and well for 68 years." He early distinguished himself in battle while a lieutenant on board the frigate Constitution, during the war of 1812.

Mr. Albert H. Fernald has been engaged as pianist at the Interval House, North Conway, for the summer season.

The navy yard was visited on Monday by large numbers of ladies and gentlemen—stockholders of the P. S. & P. Railroad, attending their annual meeting at Kittery.

Mr. Daniel Neal, foreman sparmaker at the navy yard, has been removed and Mr. Charles W. Wendell of this city appointed to the position.

The Granite State base ball club of this city won a victory over the Dirigo club of Kittery on Saturday, by a score of 19 to 12.

The American Band, of Rochester, had rather "a hard row to hoe" on Memorial day, to give any kind of satisfaction to the people of this city, who are accustomed to the excellent music of the Marine Band; but their performance was very creditable, and gave a pleasant surprise to many persons, who did not anticipate such good music from an up-country organization. The Rochester band is one of which the town has a right to be a bit vain, and which deserves the encouragement of the people of that place. As no fair comparison can be drawn between that band and the Marine Band of this city, with the latter's government patronage, we shan't draw any.

The Mayor and committee on streets visited Mont Vernon, Monday, (in response to a petition to open it to the South pond,) and were unable to conclude whethe the result desired would be arrived at most economically by buying the property or tunnelling the hill!

Mark H. Wentworth, Esq., of this city, was presented on Saturday, by B. F. Prescott, Esq., in behalf of the State, with a set of the Provincial Papers, seven volumes, beautifully bound in half morocco antique. It was a slight testimonial on the part of the State in recognition of the munificence of Mr. Wentworth in presenting the elegant portraits of the Governors Wentworth.

Messrs. George W., William H. and Charles E. Fernald are home from Iowa,—the latter after seven years' absence.

Six hundred votes were cast at the P. S. & P. Railroad meeting at Kittery on Monday, and the old board of directors was re-elected with the exception of one member.

The train due in this city from Boston at 7 o'clock Monday evening, ran into a platform car at Jones' turn-out and was delayed half an hour. The car was placed in the way by some boys.

Fearnaught Prince—whom many regard as prince indeed of all the Fearnaughts,—is to make the season at Portsmouth Trotting Park in charge of Mr. Storer H. Gates.

C. E. Walker & Co., have just concluded a contract with the Manchester Print Works to supply them at once with 10,000 tons of coal. Boston parties have heretofore had the contract.

There is a well authenticated report that Secretary Fish has unofficially informed some parties interested in the new Atlantic cable that the government will interfere and prevent the cable from being landed at Rye Beach, as proposed, claiming that the company has not yet obtained the necessary authority. The company claim this right under a charter granted by Congress in 1866, which the English company purchased for two hundred thousand dollars.

First Christian Church of Newcastle.

[F. R. W. in Herald Gospel Liberty.]

Three miles from the city of Portsmouth lies the island—Newcastle. A trinity of bridges links the little islet to the only seaport of New Hampshire. Here Mark Fernald and Elias Smith, with others of the pioneer fathers, planted the seed of Christ, watered the growing germ of some Paul, and known as the "First Christian Church of Newcastle." To rehearse its history would be to give short chapters from many of the advancement of the prayer that they might be one. Then, passing a long period of ups and downs, we will only write of it in its present state. One year ago, in answer to a telegram, we accepted the call to become their pastor, succeeding Brother Graves. We found plenty of work on the trestle-board, but if the work was much, there were willing and earnest hearts to labor with the pastor, breathing forth at all times prayers and encouraging words for his benefit.

To the church edifice they added a beautiful belfry, in which, on New Year's day, 1874, they hung a bell, knowing that no "bills payable" would destroy the sound or mar the beauty of the added parts. In the Sabbath-school library a good number of books took the place of the read and reread ones. To the increasing of the library thanks are returned to the churches at Rye, New Hampshire, for eighty-five volumes, Rev. A. H. Morrill, pastor, and at Freetown, Massachusetts, for eighty-five more, our brother, Rev. William G. Wade, pastor. There are other incidentals that called for work without failing to receive it. Had the church, at the commencement of the year, been requested to appropriate $300 for repairs, $50 for Sunday-school, and $250 for pastor's salary, there would have been, as in other societies, a feeling of "can't raise it;" yet they did raise the amount without a very great effort. Beside that we received seventy-five dollars in cash and tokens, above our salary, which was paid in full quarterly.

HENDERSON & CO.,
ANNOUNCE THEIR
— OF —
Bonnets, Hats,
Flowers and Ribbons.
The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.
The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a
NEW BONNET.
It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer: First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.
Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1870 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.
Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.
Hats, not trimmed,
From One Cent to One Dollar.
Hats, trimmed,
From 50 cts. to $10.00.
And five dollar Trimmed Hats will compare favorably with any ten dollar one in the city.

Our Slaughtered Innocents.

(Lawrence Eagle.)

The recent arrest and conviction of one of our soi disant doctors has brought to public notice a subject which, although as vital and important as it is to the nation's prosperity, either through delicacy or ignorance, is scarcely ever alluded to by the public press. The increasing distruction of foetal existence is one of the most gigantic evils of this country, and the most accursed sin of modern civilization.

Every physician is cognizant of the alarming extent to which it prevails in modern society. The murderer's hand visits the mansions of the rich, the hamlets of the poor, and with its annihilating power sacrifices its innocent legions to no end but to demoralize society, undermine the nation's health, and act like a blight upon social and domestic happiness. There are Herods among us whose victims far outnumber those in biblical history, yet they are tolerated by our people, and walk the streets with their hand still imbued with the blood of their innocent sacrifices.

In every community they carry on their infamous practices, so culpable before God and so destructive to the increase and prosperity of our race. Our Statutes recognize the act, either attempted or accomplished, of destroying foetal existence, a crime—a heinous crime, not only against the progeny but against the woman, against the domestic circle and against Heaven. But the American nation, let her blush as she acknowledges it, has popularized it, and the sequels attending it are, to-day, witnessed in the degenerate health of her native population. This cannot be denied, and it is due time that reformatory measures be adopted to correct this evil, punish the culpable and save our nation from what threatens its physical and moral destruction. Proud should Lawrence be of an officer so sentient to justice, so efficient in duty, as to follow and secure the punishment of an assassin who deliberately committed a crime of this character. Let the ranks of societies be freed from these murderers of the innocents, no matter under what disguise they be found, whether regular or irregular practitioners of the noble science of medicine, or the accomplice in woman's garb, who by her counsel and aid, accomplishes the deed.

Longer silence by society would seem criminal. Let each member of it rise up in indignation and bear their share of the responsibility in quelling this gigantic evil which is stalking through our land. Let us have no sympathy with the law that extenuates the crime, or the men who would extend leniency or pardon to the culprit found guilty of the offence.

The Divorce of Mrs. Stokes.

Mrs. Stokes, less than a fortnight since, privately obtained, through her counsel and the counsel for Stokes, a decree of separation from her husband.

At the time of the Fisk tragedy it was thought strange that Mrs. Stokes, who is a beautiful and cultivated woman, was not brought to public view. It was said that she was in Europe, and that Stokes had maltreated her and then abandoned her. It was well known that she did not see him in the Tombs while he was on trial for his life; or after conviction. Her whereabouts were known only to her own family and a few friends, who said she was in Paris.

Stokes, while passing the ordeal of a trial, told those who spoke to him upon the subject of his wife's absence that he had not neglected her, and had always cared for her, and had not given her cause to desert him. He was unwilling to speak of her, and never mentioned her name.

Upon learning that a decree of divorce had been obtained by Mrs. Stokes, a reporter visited Stokes in Sing Sing, Saturday, and learned that the prisoner desired no secrecy about the divorce, although he was of the opinion that the other side did. In justice to himself, he wished the story that he had abandoned his wife and child contradicted. He declared that he had never been guilty of such a contemptible act. He was married when scarcely twenty-one to Maria Southack, daughter of a gentleman of wealth, and his life ever since had been wretched. Their temperaments were diametrically opposite, and her society became distasteful to him. His little daughter, of whom he was over-fond, created so strong a link between him and his wife, that he preferred to endure almost anything rather than insist upon a separation. He always treated his wife with kindness, and every luxury that money could buy was lavished upon her. She had her carriages and servants, and no one in New York was more comfortably situated than she. In the spring of 1871 he sent her to Europe with her daughter and aunt. She parted from him affectionately, and he sent her one thousand dollars in gold a month. He received endearing letters from her by every steamer until January, 1872, when she reproached him for neglecting her. She referred to her daughter's progress in her studies, and begged of him that he would not ask her to return home while his quarrels with Fisk continued. The letter was signed "Anna," the name of his little daughter, and this was her first attempt at penmanship. This was the last time he ever heard from his wife. The letter was handed to him in the Tombs, three days after the tragedy. He wrote to her several times, but no answer came. A trifling remembrance he sent to his daughter on her birthday was returned, and he could learn nothing from her. Mrs. Stokes concluded to remain in Paris; the atmosphere was more salutary, and altogether more pleasant than to visit a husband in the confines of a Tombs dungeon, and particularly when he had such prospect of speedy execution. She returned to this country some months ago, and is in New Jersey with the child. They mutually agreed upon a divorce a short time ago. He made no opposition to her application, and a decree was privately granted in her favor.

Stokes had nothing further to say about the affair, and concluded the interview with the remark that were he in her place and she in his, he would hasten to her relief.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. IRON IN THE BLOOD.
DYSPEPSIA DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protoxide Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Body Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot, and do not hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

The Eastern Railroad Conductors.

[American Justifier.]

A considerable number of these officials have been called into the "sweat box" in the Lowell station in Boston to undergo a cross-examination by Mr. George, a New Hampshire lawyer, and counsel for the Lowell Railroad. It is understood that Mr. Hatch is usually present as an interested and doubtless interesting spectator. These proceedings are of a somewhat inquisitorial character, and reporters are not admitted, but somebody has sent in the following report of the examination of two of the conductors whose fate may interest a wide circle of friends because they run to Boston & Maine as well as Eastern stations.

The first was Mr. Webber, conductor of the South Reading Branch.

Mr. Webber on coming into the room shook hands cordially with Col. George and Mr. Hatch. Both these gentlemen responded feebly, but seemed amazed that a conductor should seem so glad to see them under such circumstances. Mr Webber took off his hat, sat down in a fine arm chair, and putting his feet upon the table said very meekly, "Gentlemen, I am at your service."

Mr. George was evidently disconcerted, but waited to proceed, because here he saw he had a subject in hand who had some peculiar information to offer, and the following colloquy ensued.

Q—Mr. Webber, we have been asking the members of your profession a few questions, and I want to know if you keep horses.

A.—Nary a hoss, but I am delighted for once to have my branch noticed by somebody.

Q.—Do you drink intoxicating liquors?

A.—No, sir. I'm a member of the Band of Hope, a temperance organization of many years' standing.

Q.—Does your wife keep a pet lamb?

A.—No, sir. We can't afford animal food. We are vegetarians for economy's sake.

Q.—How many fares do you take on an average each day, and what is the average amount of each?

A—I take one fare most every day to the amount of five cents, and that one I get between Wakefield Junction and Wakefield Centre. They growl terribly about it, but I make them all pay. Some of them say they have come from Boston, and others say they have come from Salem, and have paid that fare when they bought their tickets, but I make them all pay.

Q.—Do you mean to say that you take no other fares?

A.—I do, sir. My branch is run to drive away, not to attract, travel, and when a man offers me money, I tell him I can't change a bill, and stop the train and let him get out. This has worked a complete cure of the great evil of paying in the cars, and no one pretends to offer me money except as I have named.

Q.—Why do you say "My Branch?"

A.—I beg pardon, gentlemen, but I have got into that way. The driving away policy has worked so well that I usually ride alone in my train. No official ever comes near me except the paymaster, and he gives me very little satisfaction, although I go farther into Boston than any other of the conductors. I have got to feel that I own the branch, and think seriously of raising my own pay. The fact is, Mr. George and Mr. Hatch, this is the first time that I have been taken notice of at all, and I feel very much indebted to you for inviting me into this splendid depot, which must have cost a million and a half, and devoting to me and my little branch so much of your valuable time. I am really much obliged.

"Thank you," Mr. George replied. "You can go. We have no charges against you; but you will be suspended from next Saturday night till Monday morning to keep you alive to the importance of returning honestly all the money of this corporation which may fall into your hands."

The next candidate was Mr. Nason of the Lawrence branch. Mr. Nason came into the room at rather a halting pace as if anxious to know what was to be done with him. He remained standing, when Mr. George began abruptly.

Q.—Have you ever kept horses?

A.—Never since I was a milkman.

Q.—Then you were formerly a retailer of the lacteal fluid?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—And were you an honest one?

A.—I tried to be. I never watered my milk, nor gave my cows that kind of food which would make them give large quantities of watery milk, a recognised method of cheating practiced by the more pious of my former associates. I used to pour out my milk honest measure, then I would give a little bit more; and sometimes I did this twice, even going back for the purpose after I had gone a few steps. As I was driving for another man I tried to be honest between employer and customer.

Q.—Do you drink spirituous liquors?

A.—Nothing stronger than milk: not even tea, coffee or small beer. My salary will not allow me to.

Q.—Are you fond of the ladies?

A.—Not much, they make me so much trouble, always asking questions and the like, and then them that has season tickets go and wear veils so that I can't see who they are, and then expect me to recognize them, but I always make them show their tickets. Women are a deal of trouble on a train, and I have a good many of them.

Q.—Do you think you get all the tickets on your train, and do you get any money?

A.—I think I get all the tickets—every one of them. I wear glasses, and make every one show something, season ticket or something. They tell me I ought to remember faces, but I think they want to cheat me. I get some money, not much, but what I get I return promptly, every cent of it.

Q.—You call yourself an honest conductor, do you?

A.—I do. I try to be honest on a small salary, but I am afraid that would not do it alone. If I did not have strength from the Throne of Grace I am afraid I should steal at present wages and present prices. But still I should think it mighty mean business for any man to steal from a company as terribly hard up as the Eastern is to-day. I think if I was going to do any thing of that sort I should want to go on to a road that was paying good dividends, just from a feeling of delicacy, you know, or else wait till the Eastern begins to prosper if it ever is going to.

Q.—Now that is all very nice, but, Mr. Nason, on the 25th of last September you were seen to call on a man between Danvers and Beaver Brook for his fare. Quite a parley ensued, and it is to be presumed that you did your duty and collected his fare, but you made no return of that 18 cents.

A.—I don't recollect so long ago, but is there any other charge nearer this time that I might remember? Or can you give me any hint about the case you refer to?

Q.—We have another case. A woman got into your train on Monday morning for Swan's crossing, three weeks since, and you neither took tickets nor fare from her.

A.—The last case I remember. It was an ignorant Irish girl. A man brought her to the station, bought a ticket and handed it to me before the train started, pointing out the girl and asking me to see that she got off at the right place. We got 30 cents out of her, when package tickets to that station are only 17 cents. I guess there was no loss there. The other case I think I remember. It was the editor of the Justifier. He refused to pay me his fare. He said he had given me the ticket, and that I had taken it between Peabody and Danvers. I thought he was trying to cheat, and it was my duty to ferret him out of all others. So I took out all my tickets and looked over every one of them carefully on the spot till I came to the one he said he had given me, and I was so much provoked that I went through the motions, as near as I could, to make the other passengers think I had got the money. But I didn't get a cent out of him, and of course returned nothing, but if I had known that anybody in particular was watching me I would have paid it out of my own pocket, rather than have it known that I got nothing after taking so much trouble to add 18 cents to the receipts of the road.

Mr. George was deeply affected at this recital, and shed tears, while Mr. Hatch laid his head on his hands in deep abstraction. Here was evidently one of the most honest and persevering men called up to answer for a petty discrepancy in accounts; the least they could do was to give him a week's vacation, which Mr. Hatch proceeded to do gracefully, assuring Mr. Nason that he should hold his present position as long as he lived if only he would never ask for increase of wages.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3, 1874.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29.

The Statistical Report brings down the exports and imports to the close of the year 1873, and gives in another column the imports and exports of the same items for the year 1872. The aggregates are as follows: Imports, 1873, $624,997,487; exports, $677,523,921; re-exports, $24,968,204. This makes our exports exceed our imports $77,494,648. For 1872, our imports were $677,146,703, our exports $597,194,810, and our re-exports $25,086,083,—the imports exceeding the exports $54,866,010. We have at last exported more than we import, but not enough to pay the interest on what we owe abroad.

There have been great changes in the amounts of some of the articles imported and exported. In 1873 we imported sixteen millions and a half less of iron than in 1872, fifteen millions less wool, nine and a half millions less of silk and silk goods, two millions less of woolen dress goods, a million less of kid gloves, four and a half millions less of flax, and flax and cotton goods, a million less of chemicals, a million less of fruit, three millions less of hemp and jute, a million less of watches, a million less of paper rags, four million less of tea, and six millions more of coffee.

Our exports of corn fell off ten and a half millions, while our exports of wheat and flour increased forty-six millions; cotton increased twenty-five millions, tobacco eight millions, oil twelve millions, beef one million, bacon and hams seventeen millions, cheese three and a half millions. We fell off a million in seeds and sewing machines, but made it up from the increase in sailing vessels and railroad cars.

Croakers will notice that we have commenced to redeem our lost position as carriers of ocean commerce. We are building iron steamships for ocean commerce, as well as sailing vessels, and 1874 will show a larger percentage of our commerce in American bottoms. We shall have less absentees abroad this year than last. The passengers from New York are but little more than half as many as last year. That will stop a heavy drain upon the country, by persons who draw their resources from American labor and spend it for the benefit of foreign labor. The profuse expenditures of our shoddy snobs in Europe have made travelling more expensive, and the tendency is to bring more European travellers here, and keep more of our own at home. There's some good, even in snobs.

The warm weather stimulates extra work in Congress, so members can be getting home to attend to business,—and their chances to get back to Congress again. A great many of them will have hard roads to travel, beset with dangers on every hand but in the west chiefly from the Grangers. That organization, though beginning to crumble and divide, will probably be strong enough to control most of the more western States the coming Fall. The inflationists maintained a sturdy show of unbroken strength in amending and passing Sherman's financial bill in a form to suit them. As I have said before, my opinion still is, that there will be no currency measure passed.

The vote of more than two to one in the House, in favor of restoring the income tax in case any more revenue is needed to meet current expenses, was surprisingly large. It is a tax which has many annoyances, but is the most just tax ever raised, and about the only one paid by wealth. Most of the others are passed over in some way upon the shoulders of productive and consuming labor.

One more reference to the investigation of District matters. An engineer who remeasured the work charged to Uncle Sam reported that the old gentleman was shamefully overcharged. That was a matter of course, as he is a legitimate subjet for plunder. The facts and evidence are kept secret regarding the safe burglary, but many queer rumors are in circulation, which (if there is any truth in them) seem to show the Asst. Dist. Attorney and his associates not more than three removes from idiocy, in planning a scheme of wanton and malignant knavery which must blast forever any claim for sense or character.

The last weeks have put out the trees with their full foliage, and everything looks beautiful. The prospect of grass is very fine; but the lateness of its getting started was terrible for the poor cattle. It is pretty safe to say that not one cow in a hundred is in decent condition. In looking over the market you see its effect in the veal there on sale. Not one in ten could be sold at any price in any northern market. Blue and poor is no name for it. There is a common saying that such a person's cattle is in a lifting condition,—that is, they are so poor and weak they can't get up without help. EXE.

Readables.

Gen. Bristow, the new Secretary of the Treasury, was one of the original Union men of Kentucky. He early entered the service and has an excellent military record. At the close of the war he resumed the practice of law, and was soon appointed United States district attorney at Louisville. Here he rendered most efficient service to the government, acting in closest accord with General George H. Thomas in suppressing the Ku-Klux. His efficiency in the office caused his selection, without his seeking it, for the office of solicitor-general upon the creation of the department of justice. At the close of two years' service in this position he resumed the practice of law at Louisville, in partnership with General John M. Harlan, and their firm today is one of the most prominent in the State. He did not seek the office and has, in fact, taken it with very great reluctance, and only after united urging on the part of many friends. The President did not consult him, even indirectly, until after it had been decided to make the nomination.

The committee on the District of Columbia have agreed to report in favor of abolishing the present form of government. They do not feel confident that they can perfect a plan of government before adjournment.

Three thousand immigrants arrived at New York Monday.

McCollough, a painter, while on one of the bridges on Three Sisters Island, Niagara Falls, fell off the scaffold and was carried by the current near the edge of the falls, but managed to grasp and hold to a rock and was eventually rescued.

Two caulkers at work on a vessel at Penfield, Me., were killed on Friday by the vessel keeling over and crushing them.

The dam of the Colchester wheel works in Colchester, Conn., broke away on Monday morning, carrying with it a building used as a spoke mill and two bridges. One hundred feet of the most substantial part of the dam, which had been built twenty years and was considered perfectly safe, was carried off.

The census just taken shows the population of Providence to be 99,593. The prolonged suspension of work at the delaine mills diminished the population about 2000. The old city has gained 15,569 or 22 1-2 per cent. in four years, and 15,120 have recently been annexed from North Providence.

The refractory Bowdoin College students have decided to return and renew their matriculation pledge, looking upon the ultimatum of the faculty as a compromise. There is little doubt that the military drill will be abolished at the end of the current collegiate year.

The New York stage drivers' strike has ended in the success of the employers.

Philadelphias 10, Atlantics 0. Athletic's 10, Baltimores 0.

A terrific tornado passed over the towns of Cambridge and Harmony, in Somerset county, Me., May 31st. In Harmony seven large barns were utterly demolished. In Cambridge the roof was torn off Masonic Hall, and barns and dwellings in the same town were partially unroofed. The store of R. G. Whitney was also much injured, while Bailey's Hotel was more or less damaged. It is rumored that serious damage was done in other towns in the vicinity of those above mentioned.

Suicide.

The Boston Advertiser of Tuesday says Charles Kehoe, a young man, attempted to murder his wife at 163 Endicott street at about nine o'clock Monday evening, and failing, attempted suicide by shooting himself. Kehoe, who is a bartender, for several weeks has not lived with his wife, who about four weeks since gave birth to a child. After Mrs. Kehoe left her husband, she went into the employ of the family of Mr. Alexander Smith, and from the time of the separation until Sunday they had not seen each other. On Sunday night, he called at Mr. Smith's and asked Mrs. Kehoe to go and walk with him. Mrs. Kehoe told Mrs. Smith she was afraid to go with him, for fear of being shot, which remark was heard by Kehoe, who, with an oath, threatened to shoot her then and there. The wife escaped by jumping from a second story window into a back yard, but fortunately escaped with slight injuries. Kehoe soon after hastily left the house, but returned again, gaining access by some unknown means, and was on his way up stairs, when he was discovered by his wife, whose room was on the second floor. Mrs. Kehoe slammed the door in his face, but had hardly done so, when he fired through the door, but the ball did not hit her. Another shot followed the first, and Kehoe was heard to fall heavily on the floor, with loud groans, by inmates of the house down stairs, who on coming to him, found he had shot himself in the left side. Dr. Street was called, and he found that the ball had passed close to the heart, but failed to find the ball. Kehoe was taken to the city hospital, where little hopes are entertained for his recovery. The persistency of Kehoe in visiting the house of Mr. Smith a second time, after what had occurred on the first time, seems to show conclusively that murder was fully premeditated.

Business Notices.

Important to the Sensitive.

Persons with active brains and of a delicate organization should never be subjected to violent purgation or any other treatment calculated to prostrate them. Leeching, cupping, starving, and intestinal rasping, are of doubtful expediency in any case, but they are almost certain death to the sensitive and fragile. What such persons need is stimulation, and the very best invigorants they can take is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. To give depleting medicines to the nervous, the debilitated, the infirm, the emaciated, the desponding is like firing broadsides into a sinking ship. Thousands of dyspeptics are killed every year by medicines that sap the physical and constitutional stamina which, if reinforced by that powerful vegetable tonic, would soon prove an overmatch for the disease. It is true that the bowels require to be relieved and regulated, and the liver controlled, as well as the stomach to be toned and the system strengthened, and it be borne in mind that the Bitters accomplish these objects gently and surely.

The Public, or at least that portion of it which travels, will be interested to know that the favorite American House, Boston, has decided to make a discrimination in prices to transient guests, according to the location of rooms. The hotel will continue to be kept at its previous highstanding.

The Best Medical Talent of New England endorses W. Baker & Co.'s Cocoa Paste for the use of invalids and persons in health. Travellers and students find it most convenient, as it may be prepared for use in one minute, without boiling. Your Grocer has it. Established in 1780.

Dyspepsia Destroys the Teeth,

Helmbold's Buchu is still in the zenith of its popularity. Notwithstanding the absence of Dr. Helmbold, the celebrated medicine is still manufactured at the laboratory at Philadelphia, and is sold by all respectable druggists. It is warranted for all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Beware of counterfeits. Genuine has proprietor's private stamp. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

20,000 Cures of PILES have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the happiest discovery in medicine ever made. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments and suppositories always make them worse. ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple permanent cure, acts as a bougee, soothing poultice and medicine. The relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker str., New York.

Sickness is an affliction that waits on us all. None are exempt, and there are none but need relief from its attacks. Whoever can furnish this becomes our benefactor. A conviction prevails that DR. AYER does it. Disorders of the blood have been healed by his SARSAPARILLA, and affections of the lungs by his CHERRY PECTORAL, too frequently and too distinctly to be disputed. His AGUE CURE is said, by those who use it, to never fail. Reader, if you want safe, sure, and pleasant medicine, take the best of medicine. Poor remedies are dear, as good are cheap, at any price you have to pay for them.—[Charlestown Courier.]

GEO. B. JONES.

THE "LIGHT RUNNING"

"DOMESTIC"

KING OF SEWING Machines.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

It affords me great pleasure to be able to announce to my friends (and to all others interested,) that the "Domestic" Sewing Machine Company has fully resumed the manufacture of its UNRIVALLED MACHINE, and will expand its business with increased energy. Its new factories will soon be completed, and every machine will be as nicely constructed as possible. All who have used the Machine for four years or less, pronounce it

THE LIGHTEST RUNNING,
EASIEST TO KEEP IN ORDER,
THE MOST DURABLE,

—AND DECIDEDLY—

The Nearest to Perfection

of any Sewing Machine in the market. It is the intention to have the

"DOMESTIC" SEWING MACHINE

Supercede all others in this City and Vicinity.

—THE—

"DOMESTIC" SEWING MACHINE

—IS THE—

"Best Machine to Use,"

—AND THE—

EASIEST TO SELL.

IT IS DURABLE

AND WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME,

Every Machine

I sell is warranted to be all I claim for it, and a

Written Guarantee

WILL BE GIVEN TO PURCHASERS IF DESIRED.

ALL MACHINES ARE FURNISHED—WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE—WITH CASTORS, A HEMMER AND FELLER, QUILTING GAUGE, BRAIDER, THUMB-SCREW AND GAUGE, A DOZEN OF ASSORTED NEEDLES, HALF A DOZEN BOBBINS, WRENCH, SCREW DRIVER, OILER, BOTTLE OF OIL AND BOOK OF INSTRUCTIONS.

THE "DOMESTIC" WILL

Hem, Fell,
Bind, Braid,
Cord, Quilt,
Tuck, Ruffle,
Emboider, Gather,

AND SEW ON AT THE SAME TIME.

THE GATHERING ATTACHMENT

As applied to the "DOMESTIC" is made on an

ENTIRELY NEW PRINCIPLE.

No other Machine in the United States having any thing for this purpose that can be compared with this late invention. It is applied directly to the presser bar, and is operated by the movements of the Needle Bar.

ITS ACTIONS ARE POSITIVE—ITS MOTIONS PERFECT.

As some of my friends, connected with the sale of other kinds of sewing machines, have interested themselves so much during the past winter as to falsely represent that the "Domestic" S. M. Co. had failed, and that there could be no parts obtained for the "Domestic" Needles, etc., etc., I will state that the "Domestic" Sewing Machine Co. has been making steady progress from the first, and as to parts of the machine, needles, etc., being obtained, I keep them constantly on hand. But although the "Domestic" where it has been sold may be run "from morn until eve" without tiring the operator. We have had scarcely any call for extra parts and are pleased to state that we have not so much business in that way as some of our neighbors. If however any one owning a "Domestic" should in any manner be disaffected, all matters will be made right by calling at my office. I will further state that as heretofore I shall keep on hand all kinds of

SEWING MACHINE NEEDLES,
TUCKERS,
GATHERERS,
EMBROIDERERS,
HEMMERS,
BRAIDERS,
CORDERS,
ETC., ETC., ETC.

A Pretty Kettle of Fish.

Messrs. Editors: In Tuesday's CHRONICLE you give "a well authenticated report that Secretary Fish has unofficially informed some parties interested in the new Atlantic cable that the government will interfere and prevent the cable from being landed at Rye Beach, as proposed, claiming that the company has not yet obtained the necessary authority." A pretty kettle of fish, truly. Our suburban city, Rye, and the metropolis, Portsmouth, have both graciously given their assent to the landing of the cable,—and now this old Fish (he's "very like a whale") threatens to come along and disturb the placid waters so that the cable cannot be landed. Sound aloud the clarion, ye defenders of our liberties,—ye editors; give us the Marseillaise, (metaphorically, through the columns of your paper,—not literally, for I fear were you to sing that noble hymn in public it might be regarded as a more terrible affair than the obstruction of the cable-laying business by a whole school of fish,) and rouse the people of Portsmouth, Rye and Newcastle to a deadly determination to defend their rights and "administer a deserved rebuke to the administration" for this high-handed outrage. The world's eyes are upon us; forty centuries are squinting in this direction; let us not be recreant to our trust. We have good precedents for prompt and energetic action; a noble soul of Kittery, fired with democratic disgust at government's refusal to tax government bonds, tried to get the town of Kittery to do it; and the New Hampshire democracy, acting on the advice of the patriot statesman, Eben F. Pillsbury of Maine, announce their intention of disfranchising all employes of the national government, with a few "judicious exceptions;" why, then, should we not act? Let Portsmouth and Rye arise in their might, and notify that old Fish that if he comes fooling around here he will be promptly transported to Gerrish's island, made into a chowder, and devoured. So shall our liberties be saved.

Yours truly, MARS.

Not Afraid of the Railroad.

The engineer of the 11.30 A. M. train for Boston observed a colored man on Tuesday lying on the narrow walk of the iron bridge at the Creek. Slowing down, the train passed beyond him and stopped, the conductor and baggage-master returning to pick up the fragments, if any there should be, for it was thought as they passed the individual must be frightened and would inevitably move and be caught under the wheels. On reaching him, however, they found him unharmed and still lying face down, industriously feasting on lobsters, crackers and cheese! In reply to a question of a "Creek Indian" who ran up from the street to hear his dying words, the dusky son of Africa remarked; "Why; yer don't spose I'se 'fraid of the kyars and's go'n' to be run over by the railroad, does yer?"

Laconics.

Chief Engineer George D. Emmons is ordered to duty at the navy yard.

Thornton K. Lothrop of Boston, Nathaniel Hooper of Boston, Ichabod Goodwin of Portsmouth, John Wooldridge of Lynn, S. Lothrop Thorndike of Beverly, John R. Brown of Portland, and Charles E. Barrett of Portland, are the Directors of the P. S. & P. R. R.

Mr. Francis Murphy will address the citizens of Kittery on Saturday, on the subject of temperance.

Lent's New York circus exhibits here on Friday afternoon and evening. The handbills and advertisements promise a good deal, but our exchanges intimate that all he promises are fulfilled. The Boston Journal says "no circus entertainment ever given in Boston has afforded half as much satisfaction to the public," and a Providence paper says "every pledge of superiority was completely realized." See advertisement for particulars.

The saloon of Mr. James Rutledge, near the Eastern Railroad depot, was broken into Monday night and $150 worth of cigars and liquors stolen, the thieves also capturing about $6 in money.

Clothes-line thieves stripped sheets, pillow slips and table cloths from the lines of Mr. Lawrence Lydston, corner of Hanover and High streets, Monday night.

The cable steamer "Faraday" arrived at Torbay, N. S., on Saturday, and on Sunday commenced laying the cable to Rye Beach. She was expected off this coast some time during last night, and has probably arrived ere this,—four days ahead of her time. The revenue cutter Levi Woodbury arrived from Portland early this morning, to render any assistance possible.

State News.

Hober Jackson, a teamster, of Claremont, was very severely hurt on Thursday by the dumping of a load of coal weighing about three tons upon him by the breaking of the short tongue, or reach, of the cart, upon which he was sitting.

The first vouchers in the case of the State of New Hampshire against the General Government were audited and approved on Saturday, and the remainder of the claims will now be paid.

The valuation of Manchester is $12,716,000, and the per cent of taxation $2.46.

The law term of the supreme judicial court began at Concord Tuesday, beginning with the business of Rockingham county.

"The Sons of the Merrimack" have issued a card to the daughters of New England, desiring their presence at Contoocook Island, near Concord, June 17, on which occasion the Dustin statue, which commemorates the faith and valor of the New England mothers, will be unveiled with appropriate ceremonies. The monument is to be formally presented to the State of New Hampshire through the governor and his council, who are to be in attendance to accept the gift.

Mrs. D. Thurston of Claremont was seriously burned while burning out worms' nests in her garden with a candle dipped with kerosene oil.

The paper mill establishment of Carr, Baker & Hughes, (consisting of mill, stockhouse, storehouse and large wood shed containing about 200 cords of wood,) was totally destroyed by fire on Sunday morning, about one o'clock. Loss $15,000; insured for $12,500. E. F. Bailey loses about $500 in stock stored in the stock house. S. C Baker's mill opposite suffered to the extent of $200; fully insured.

It is claimed that twenty-one democratic members of the legislature will oppose the repeal of the prohibitory law.

During the "investigation" into the way in which election matters have been managed in Rochester, instituted by the democrats with the avowed determination of in some way preventing the republican representative elected from taking his seat, it was charged that the republican selectmen had put the names of voters on the check-list after voting had commenced, and the chairman acknowledged it, claiming a right to do so as the parties were known to the selectmen as citizens, and their names had inadvertently been omitted from the list. Here was a fine pretext for turning Mr. Caverly out of his seat, and the demos were jubilant at last; but when it turned out that every one of the names so added represented a democratic voter, one at least of whom was very active in the "investigation," the investigators seemed to lose all interest in that phase of the matter. It is understood that Mr. Caverly is to be put out anyway, as the Rum League is not sure of its power and Mr. Caverly is a temperance man; but this farce of an investigation has not furnished a shadow of a pretext for doing so. That will make no difference, however.

James Foley, a lad of 16, ran away from a Nashua school Tuesday forenoon, and while playing about the cars at the Concord station was caught between the bumpers of some cars and fatally injured.

Frank La Sage, a Frenchman, was shockingly injured at Nashua, Tuesday, by the bursting of a barrel of beer which he was moving. He was thrown more than ten feet into the air. The physician thinks his recovery extremely doubtful.

The State debt was reduced $305,000 last year.

The returns of the Oregon State election indicate that Lafayette F. Grover (democrat) is re-elected Governor by a small plurality. The independent candidates for Judges of the Supreme Court are elected beyond doubt.

An insane woman mortally wounded her husband with an adze, and then killed her three children with a flat-iron, in Brooklyn on Tuesday.

Ship Portus sank at sea on the voyage from Italy to New York. The crew took to the boats, one of which was picked up and the crew of six men landed at New York, but nothing has been heard of the other two and they are supposed to be lost.

Governor Talbot of Massachusetts has vetoed the bill repealing the constabulary law.

A young daughter of Mr. S. Adams, in Northfield, Vt., died recently, and the symptoms attending her sickness were so marked as to cause little doubt that her death was from oleander poison, not from contact with or eating it, but from living and sleeping in the same air with an oleander tree of some size during the winter and spring.

OF

Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.

The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1871 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

From One Cent to One Dollar.

Hats, trimmed,

From 50 cts. to $10.00.

—A Chicago hackman charged a New Yorker $29 for an hour's work, and rather than have any fuss about it came down to $1.75.

—A Vermonter got aboard of a steamer for the first time, and fell through the hatchway into the hold, when, being unhurt, he was heard to express his surprise; "Well, if the darned thing ain't holler!"

—Can he ever again have confidence in a pretty, smiling woman's face? He was an ex-editor of a Jersey City paper, and was on his way to Albany. As he approached the Grand Central depot, New York, he noticed two very pretty and elegantly dressed young ladies who came up and treated him as an old acquaintance, and he thinking it a case of mistaken identity thought he would carry the thing through and have some fun. They informed him that they had procured a section in the drawing-room car and invited him to take a seat therein. He did so, and enjoyed a very pleasant ride of two hours. On the arrival of the train at Poughkeepsie both the ladies put their arms around his neck, and hugged and kissed him good-bye. He stepped in the dining-room and ate some lunch and returned to the train, when to his dismay and alarm, he was minus his pocket-book, containing two ten-cent stamps and a five-cent piece.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall raise them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. HEDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters appertaining to the same. Copies of the claim of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved to inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of pushing their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THREE applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Order of Steele history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the year 1614 to 20; the aboriginal Indians, in the canoe and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been quite a large craft for constructed above water with Gerrish's island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embroidered canvas with all classes of interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether desired to purchase or not—at the Author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.
This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very severe and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, which action produces disease in those parts where they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

Daily Chronicle.

THE SOURCE OF THE WILLIAMSBURG CALAMITY.

[The following was written by Willey McComber, a marine who has been confined for nearly a year in jail at the Navy Yard for the crime of desertion. Since his confinement he has been permitted to read but few books or newspaper, being held with all the rigors of military law. He was sold of the Williamsburg disaster, and, to use his own language, "this is the way he thought of it." Under the circumstances, the poem is remarkable. A. C. H.]

Deep in the secret bowels of the earth,
Where fierce volcanoes struggle into birth,
And grinning goblins shriek in horrid mirth;
Where noxious vapors fill the poisoned air,
And Gnomes their revels hold in lurid glare:
In a large cavern where fell flame-tongues leap,
And evil sprites unending revels keep:
Where serpent hiss, and slimy reptiles creep,—
A spectral brood, with death and ruin rife,
Were met, in plottings dark 'gainst human life.

Fierce Conflagration with his burning brand,
And dark browed Murder with his gory hand,
Steel-coated War, grim, pitiless and grand;
And all the mighty multitude of foes
Who help to swell the tide of human woes.
But in their midst stalked one huge spectre tall,
Gloomy and dark, high tow'ring over all,
Whose glances seemed e'en demons to appal;
And, on his brow in characters of flame
Was written,—"Carelessness"—the spectre's name.

Some stood aloof, as if in reverie,
While others sported in wierd gayety,
And waked wild echoes with their ghostly glee.
But soon a swathy crowd of shouting Gnomes
Raised the loud cry: "He comes! The Monarch [comes!"
Then bowed in adoration each proud head,
And over all reigned silence deep and dread,
As Terror's King stalked in with noiseless tread.
Each spectre waited, with abated breath,
The grim opening of the Court of Death.

Upon a ghastly heap of fleshless bones,
And broken sceptres, crowns, and levelled thrones
Sat the dread monarch, and in awful tones
That echoed through the cavern hoarse and loud
He thus addressed that grim, bloodthirsty [crowd:—
"Time flies, prized followers, I must away;
But ere I go, I fain would hear you say
What plan ye have conceived to spread my sway.
First, I will hear your chief some plan propose,
By which we may destroy our puny foes."

Then up rose Carelessness in conscious pride,
And moved toward the throne with lordly stride;
And, standing by the grisly monarch's side,
He gazed around upon that dreadful crew
And said—"I greet ye all, disposed and true!
Mighty, though secret, is the power I wield.
I go before you and prepare the field,
That to your strength it may more victims yield.
E'en War and Pestilence do owe to me
One half their carnage, and their butchery.

Some time ago, as round the world I flew,
Reaping, of lives, a paltry score or two,
I scanned its surface, for more work to do.
As upon all below my glances fell,
I espied a crowd or mortals in a dell:
O'er hoarding water was their genius bent;
To hold it 'tween the hills was their intent:—
I quick descended and my counsel lent.
I whispered in their ears the maxim old
Of risking lives, and saving precious gold.

They heeded my advice,—the greedy fools,—
And, in my hands, became most willing tools
To set a trap to catch a feast for Ghouls.
To-morrow morn that started vale will ring
With shouts of agony. The trap will spring.
Long, loud and shrill the shout of fiendish glee!
Each sullen fiend smiled in expectancy
Of gloating over so much misery.
And e'en the King, forgetful of his pride,
Bowed low before the demon at his side.

No longer need this sable fluid flow;
No longer need this dismal story grow;
Its dreadful sequel all the world doth know.
It knows the tide of that engulfing flood
Was crimsoned with the flow of human blood.
It knows that while Destruction held his sway
The labor of long years was swept away
Like chaff beefore the wind, in one dark day!
It knows, too, that those human tools of Death
Still clog the earth; still draw their craven [breath.

Modern Dress.

[Cornhill Magazine.]

Are we more civilized in our dress than in our dwelling? Not a whit. Our guide and ruler here is that irresponsible tyrant we call fashion, and neither comfort nor beauty has a word to say. To be sure, men have discarded many absurdities, though they have retained more. They hold to their stiff shirt-collars, which rasp their neck; their wide expanse of linen front, which the very act of fastening rumples; their meaningless swallow tails, their hideous hats, their tight-fitting military uniform and all the mysteries of seam and gusset and band, which are mere symbols of the art of cutting out, and not necessary to the comfort and shape. But, even with the follies they retain, they can move about with ease and unhampered.

Women, on the contrary, torture themselves in the name of fashion with touching fidelity. They would as soon forego their nationality as their stays, and the thirty-nine articles are less sacred to them than their multiplicity of garments, all hanging from the waist. It is to keep these up, and to lessen their heavy weight, that they put themselves into steel cages which destroy all grace of line and all comfort of movement, save in walking. The beauty of simplicity is a thing dead and done with in their code. Heads are loaded with false hair stuck about with lace, feathers, flowers, and colored glass; ears pierced, that bits of crystalized earth, or imitations thereof, may be hung in the holes; health is destroyed, and the tender vital organs which Nature has so sedulously protected by the outer casing of ribs, are compressed and crushed; that the waistband may be reduced to seventeen inches; and the highest efforts of millinery genius are directed to the most elaborate method of sewing one bit of stuff on to another bit of stuff, to the confusion of anything like a leading-line, or an intelligible idea.

We laugh at the Chinese "golden water lilies," the Papuan head-dress, the Hindu nose-ring, the African lip-distender; we laugh while we look in the glass, and complacently brush out our frills, and congratulate ourselves on looking "stylish" and "well got up." But our highest efforts culminate in partial nakedness in the middle of winter if we are women, in black broadcloth in the dog days, if we are men, —in absurd lengths of silk trailing after us as we walk in the one case, in a ridiculous pennon meandering at our backs in the other; they culminate in fashion, not in use or beauty of simplicity; but while we do thus dress without personal convenience or artistic meaning, we have no true civilization in the matter of our clothes. Modern millinery is neither art nor Nature. It is our translation of the primitive man's delight in rags and gaudy colors, and there is no essential difference between the two. What difference there is consists simply in conventional acceptance, but the æsthetic base of each is the same.

THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1874.

The Legislature.

The House organized on Wednesday by the choice of Hon. Albert R. Hatch, of this city for Speaker, Mr. Hatch receiving 176 votes, and Hon. James W. Emery 163. One democrat and one republican were absent.

The remaining officers of the House, being the democratic nominees, were chosen as follows: Clerk, Charles H. Smith of Newmarket; Assistant Clerk, John B. Mills of Dunbarton; Sergeant-at-Arms, Clark F. Rowell of Keene; Doorkeepers, James M. Burnham of Hopkinton, Dennison R. Currier of Enfield and Oscar G. Farmer of Hooksett.

The Senate organized temporarily by the choice of Henry Abbott of Winchester, republican, as President, and Luther S. Morrell, republican, Secretary.

[Special dispatch to Chronicle.]

CONCORD, June 3d, 8 P. M.

The House and the eight Senators elected met in joint convention this afternoon and filled the vacant seats in the Senate, then proceeded to the election of Governor. James A. Weston received 181 votes and was elected. There only being 179 democrats it is reasonable to suppose that the independent members and the prohibition members voted for Weston, but this may not have been the case.

The democrats have a majority of 13. A great many would have gone from here to the laying of the cable at the invitation of Collector Howard had it been possible.

KENT.

Readables.

The nominations of General Bristow for Secretary of the Treasury and Mr. Richardson as judge of the court of claims were confirmed by the senate Tuesday.

The moiety bill as amended by the senate finance committee raising the salaries of collectors at various ports, has been again amended so as to restore the salaries to the ratio as they now exist, at the following eastern points: New Haven, Bangor and Bath, Salem and Beverly, Plymouth, Portsmouth, Newburyport, Wiscasset, Kennebunk and York, Maine.

The Oregon election returns come in slowly. Grover, the democratic candidate has a much lighter vote than was anticipated. His vote everywhere is behind that of his party. The contest for Congressman will not vary much from the governor's vote, except that Ludlow (dem.) has more votes than the governor, and Davenport (ind.) runs behind Campbell.

Philadelphias, 8; Mutuals, 7. Athletics, 17, Atlantics, 3.

It is a Sunday amusement for boys and men in Troy to gather close to the windows of the insane asylum and excite the lunatics to frenzy by teasing them. Their sport has been the death of one of the unfortunate inmates.

"Good morning," said a foreman printer to the head of a flourishing family. "Have you any daughters who would make good type-setters?" "No; but I have a wife who would make a very good devil."

The Maine editors will start on their annual excursion July 13th, going to Gorham, thence to the Glen House, up Mount Washington and back, then to Glen station and by cars over the Portland & Ogdensburgh Railroad to the Crawford House at the Notch, thence to the Profile House, down the Pemigewasset Valley, across Winnipesaukee Lake to Wolfeboro', and thence to Alton Bay, returning to Portland via Dover on the 18th. A most enjoyable trip. The New York editors have been on a trip through Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia.

The family of the late Rev. Mr. Ryder, of Great Falls, will receive about two thousand dollars from the Masonic and Odd Fellows' Relief Associations, he being a member of both Orders.

Old Time Chronicles, No. III.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

Epping lies west of Exeter, and was once a part of it. The date of the incorporation is Feb. 12, 1741. It was the twenty-seventh town chartered in this State.

June 28, 1710, Indians surprised and killed Col. Winthrop Hilton of Newmarket, in what is now Epping, while engaged in peeling bark from timber for masts. Belknap says he was fourteen miles from home; if so he must have been at the west part, near what is now Raymond; but it is believed he was in the easterly part, and in the vicinity of where the camp meeting is held yearly. Two others were killed at the same time, and two taken captive. The early families in town were in great fear of the savages. There were three garrison houses; men carried their guns to the places where they went to work, and to the place where they assembled for worship on the Sabbath, stacking them a little way from the church door, and placing a sentinel in charge, to give the alarm if the enemy came.

The first meeting house was one-fourth of a mile easterly of where the Methodist meeting house is now, but was not used many years. The second was near the spot now occupied by Hoyt's shoe manufactory. Near that were the stocks. It is said they were for the punishment of those guilty of minor offences, such as bad behavior at meetings, tumults and quarreling. Whether they were much used or not, cannot be stated.

Of Friends (usually called Quakers) some were here before the Revolutionary war. They came from Newton, where there was a society, and perhaps a few from Brentwood, where some lived then. In 1769 Jonathan Norris was imprisoned for refusing to pay a tax for the support of the minister of the town, but the next year the town voted to release the constable from the tax. Some years later, Benjamin Folsom refused to pay a tax, supposed to be devoted to support a war then going on, and the constable was about to take him to Exeter jail. Like Wm. Penn on another occasion, he said: "I know the way and will go alone." He was locked up, but a Mr. Blake, living not far from Folsom's, took a load of Folsom's boards at the mill, carried them to Exeter and with the proceeds paid the tax, and the offender was released. Whether the operation met his views or not, we cannot tell.

Epping never has had any considerable village. At an early date it had quite a population. In 1775 it was 1569. Its greatest was in 1850, it then being 1663. Then it fell off, and in 1870 was but 1270. There has been no lack of enterprise, but emigration has been considerable, and farms left have been divided and added to others.

Rev. Josiah Stearns was probably its most celebrated divine. He was pastor from 1758 to 1788. Gen. Henry Dearborn was not a native, but resided here before the war of the Revolution. Hon. Wm. Plumer, born in Newbury, Mass., came here when young, was a lawyer, a member and presiding officer of both branches of the Legislature, Senator in Congress and four years (ending in 1818) Governor of the State. Hon. David L. Morrill was born here, was for a time minister in Goffstown, member of both branches of the Legislature, Senator in Congress and for three years (ending in 1826) Governor. Hon. Wm. Plumer, son of the Governor, had an education for the bar, but devoted himself mostly to literary pursuits, was a member of the State Legislature and Representative in Congress. He was born in Epping, as was also Dr. G. W. Kittredge of Newmarket, who was Representative in the State Legislature, Speaker of that body and Representative in the Thirty-Third Congress. Others of this place have been distinguished in different callings. So much we have put down, and ask

"Where's the town, go far or near,
That does not find a rival here?"

Pastgraphy.

The idea so long discussed of a universal written language seems about to be realized. A pasigraphical dictionary has already been issued by Messrs. Trubner, in London, edited by Dr. Bachmaier, of Munich, in which the 4,000 or 5,000 commonest words of a given language are arranged alphabetically at one end, each with its numerical equivalent. At the other end the numbers run consecutively, paired with the words answering to them. The same numbers express the same ideas in all the languages. Grammar there is scarcely any, and what there is is expressed in the simplest way by means of diacritical points or dots, or lines scored over, under or through the numerical groups. Thus, 553, which means book in English, livre in French, buch to a German, when underscored, denotes the plural, books. A through-scored verb is in the past tense, an over-scored one in the future, and so forth. Elegance and exactitude are sacrificed to utility. They are no more aimed at than in transmitting messages by the Atlantic or Indian cables. Hence, no doubt, mistakes are possible, and without gumption on the part of pasigraphers, will scarcely be avoided. But the telegraph also sometimes makes mistakes, if not always so serious as when the honorable member for Blankshire was thunderstruck on receiving at the House the amazing message from his wife, "I flee with Mr.——; pray for me!" Chance, if not the malice of some wicked lady clerk, had made the uxorious senator's spouse say "flee" for "tea," and "pray" for "stay."

It is the feature of extreme simplicity that marks Dr. Bachmaier's system with the stamp of true inspiration. For we find that the ingenious device of denoting notions by numbers, though original, is by no means absolutely new. Nay, it is actually of English invention, and that more than two hundred years ago. On April 30, 1657, Cave Beck, a forgotten Ipswich worthy, published at London his very remarkable work, entitled "The universal character, by which all nations in the world may understand one another's conceptions, reading out of one common writing their own mother tongue."

As an example of Dr. Bachmaier's method, we give the following letter with the interpretation, as made out from the Dictionary:—

"2887, 1534, 2255, 708, 2436, 1545, 1895.
1492, 785, 1728, 533, 1183, 709, 4293, 2240.

Dear Sir: When you call here I have some small books for you. Yours truly, Independent Journalism.

Mr. E. B. Haskell, of the Boston Herald, responded as follows to a toast offered in honor of the "Press," at a recent banquet of the "Ancient and Honorables:"

Independent journalism is not such an acrobatic performance. Its motto is to tell the truth and shame the devil. Ah! it is a blessed occupation. It has to correct so many lies told by other people—especially party organs and politicians—that it scarcely has time to tell any itself—even for fun. We might have an excuse if we did lie a little. Congress teaches us to lie by lying promises to pay money, which it does not try to keep. Parties lie to us in platforms as false as dicers' oaths. Interested persons lie to us to obtain credit not due them or evade deserved blame. We are expected to sift all these lies and give the public nothing but truth. You see what a task is put upon us. But we can stand it. We do not complain. Welcome any sacrifice if we can make the world wiser and better. Anything, anything to lift up poor struggling humanity. I rejoice that all newspapers are becoming independent. Only a few years ago the great newspapers were all party organs. Now the great newspapers, the far-reaching newspapers—the successful newspapers—are independent. The people like them, though the politicians do not, and patronize them. So may it be more and more so until independent journalism is also both ancient and honorable.

—The word "elsewhere" is still used more than any other by the Chicago journals. A man asked a Chicago editor, the other day, "Where are the best newspapers in the United States published?" "Elsewhere," replied the editor abstractedly.

—A modest Missouri girl, after many blushes and much confusion, addressed Mr. Shurtz as Mr. Shimmy.

Food and Digestion.

In dyspepsia the gastric juice which should dissolve the food is only formed in small quantities, and whatever may be the feeling of emptiness and weakness in such cases, the dyspeptic should eat sparingly. To remedy the evil, the mucous membrane of the stomach, which secretes and emits the gastric fluid, should be stimulated and toned, and the best, in fact the only sure preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does this admirable stomachic promote an sufficient and steady supply of the solvent which converts the food to the purposes of life, but it also regulates the flow of bile, controls the bowels, and has a most invigorating effect upon the nerves. The glow which the first dose diffuses through the system is an earnest of the more permanent vitalizing effects which are produced by its persistent use. It improves the appetite, cheers the spirits, and renders the body hardy and strong.

HAIR VIGOR. In common with many others we have felt a lively interest in the investigations which DR. AYER has been making to discover the cause of failure of the hair, and to provide a remedy. His researches are said to have been much more thorough and exhaustive than any ever made before. The result is now before us under the name of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. We have given it a trial, and with full satisfaction. It equals our most favorable anticipations. Our gray hairs have disappeared, or resumed their original color; and a visible crop of soft, silken hair has started on a part of the scalp which was entirely bald.—[Democrat, Abingdon, Va.]

Quack Medicines.—We never puff, but ANAKESIS, the great western PILE remedy, has cured thousands, after lotions, ointments, and all manner of nostrums have failed. It is the discovery of Dr. Silsbee, an eminent western physician, and has been endorsed by medical men of all schools. It is a simple medicated suppository, acts as an instrument, poultice and medicine, affords instant relief from pain, and is pronounced an infallible cure.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker street New York.

The Public, or at least that portion of it which travels, will be interested to know that the favorite American House, Boston, has decided to make a discrimination in prices to transient guests, according to the location of rooms. The hotel will continue to be kept at its previous highstanding.

Helmbold's Buchu is still in the zenith of its popularity. Notwithstanding the absence of Dr. Helmbold, the celebrated medicine is still manufactured at the laboratory at Philadelphia, and is sold by all respectable druggists. It is warranted for diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Beware of counterfeits. Genuine has proprietor's private stamp. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

Nature's Diadem.—Is your hair falling out? Is your hair growing dry and lifeless? Is your hair less pliable and glossy than of yore? It wants a good healthful hair dressing to help exhausted nature to recover itself.

Try BEARINE and mark the change. 5

Don't be Discouraged. Suppose you have "tried fifty remedies" and received no benefit, is there therefore "no balm in Gilead?" Verily there is. Your liver may be congested, your stomach half paralyzed, your nerves quivering, your muscles knotted with torture, your bowels constricted, your lungs diseased, your blood full of impurities—yet in one week after commencing a course of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS you will feel like a new creature. s29 4w

THE "LIGHT RUNNING"

"DOMESTIC"

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

It affords me great pleasure to be able to announce to my friends (and to all others interested,) that the "Domestic" Sewing Machine Company has fully resumed the manufacture of its UNRIVALLED MACHINE, and will expand its business with increased energy. Its new factories will soon be completed, and every machine will be as nicely constructed as possible. All who have used the Machine for four years or less, pronounce it

THE LIGHTEST RUNNING,
EASIEST TO KEEP IN ORDER,
THE MOST DURABLE,

—AND DECIDEDLY—

The Nearest to Perfection

of any Sewing Machine in the market. It is the intention to have the

"DOMESTIC" SEWING MACHINE

Supercede all others in this City and Vicinity.

—THE—

"DOMESTIC" SEWING MACHINE

—IS THE—

"Best Machine to Use,"

—AND THE—

EASIEST TO SELL.

IT IS DURABLE

AND WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME.

Every Machine

I sell is warranted to be all I claim for it, and a

Written Guarantee

WILL BE GIVEN TO PURCHASERS IF DESIRED.

ALL MACHINES ARE FURNISHED—WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE—WITH CASTORS, A HEMMER AND FELLER, QUILTING GAUGE, BRAIDER, THUMB-SCREW AND GAUGE, A DOZEN OF ASSORTED NEEDLES, HALF A DOZEN BOBBINS, WRENCH, SCREW DRIVER, OILER, BOTTLE OF OIL AND BOOK OF INSTRUCTIONS.

THE "DOMESTIC" WILL

Hem, Fell,
Bind, Braid,
Cord, Quilt,
Tuck, Ruffle,
Embroider, Gather,

AND SEW ON AT THE SAME TIME.

THE GATHERING ATTACHMENT

As applied to the "DOMESTIC" is made on an

ENTIRELY NEW PRINCIPLE.

No other Machine in the United States having any thing for this purpose that can be compared with this late invention. It is applied directly to the presser bar, and is operated by the movements of the Needle Bar.

ITS ACTIONS ARE POSITIVE—ITS MOTIONS PERFECT.

As some of my friends, connected with the sale of other kinds of sewing machines, have interested themselves so much during the past winter as to falsely represent that the "Domestic" S. M. Co. had failed, and that there could be no parts obtained for the "Domestic" Needles, etc., etc., I will state that the "Domestic" Sewing Machine Co. has been making steady progress from the first, and as to parts of the machine, needles, etc., being obtained, I keep them constantly on hand. But although the "Domestic" where it has been sold may be run "from morn until eve" without tiring the operator. We have had scarcely any call for extra parts and are pleased to state that we have not so much business in that way as some of our neighbors. If however any one owning a "Domestic" should in any manner be disaffected, all matters will be made right by calling at my office. I will further state that as heretofore I shall keep on hand all kinds of

SEWING MACHINE NEEDLES,
TUCKERS,
GATHERERS,
EMBROIDERERS,
HEMMERS,
BRAIDERS,
CORDERS,
ETC., ETC., ETC.

Local Matters.

That Cable

Didn't arrive yesterday, although its arrival was signalled from the Shoals on account of a misunderstanding in the delivery of a message sent there. Capt. Fengar, who commands the revenue cuttter Levi Woodbury, estimates that as the distance from Berry Head, Torbay, Nova Scotia, to Rye Beach cannot be less that 450 miles, and the Great Eastern laid but 100 miles of cable per diem, it was hardly to be expected that the Farraday would reach here before to-day or to-morrow. There is a great interest shown by our citizens in the matter, and thousands will doubtless congregate near Straw's Point to witness the landing of the cable, which will consume the largest part of a day. Curiosity is manifested to visit the Farraday, which is so large a vessel that she will probably not come within two miles of the shore. It is expected that good opportunities will be afforded those desiring to inspect the vessel. The town meeting at Rye, Tuesday, refused to appropriate $1000 for a celebration of the event, thinking epicureans might as well purchase their own clams.

Those ladies and gentlemen who have received invitations through the courtesy of Collector Howard to take a trip in the revenue cutter Levi Woodbury in search of the Faraday, are requested to be on board the boat, which is lying at Commercial wharf near the foot of State street, this morning at eight o'clock, should the weather be favorable.

Col. Arthur M. Eastman, agent of the cable company, arrived here last evening and is stopping at the Rockingham. Commodore J. E. Howell, commanding the navy yard, has accepted an invitation, and will embark in the tug Blue-Light, with the Naval Band.

Col. Eastman explained several matters which puts the delay of the laying of the cable in a new light. He informs us that the cable is about five inches in circumference. The Faraday has 4000 tons of it, including the Nova Scotia end, but, was unable to carry the whole amount, there being thirty miles more needed to finish. This thirty miles of cable weighs 15,000 pounds to the mile, and was put on board the steamship Ambassador while the Faraday was en route to Nova Scotia. The latter vessel was ordered to proceed slowly and lay the cable toward Rye, while the Ambassador is to form a junction on the sounding line on which the cable is to be laid. The latter vessel was to sail directly in this direction in a day or two after Col. Eastman left. The steamship in which he took passage encountered dense fogs between the Banks and Sandy Hook, and it is probable that these fogs have delayed the Faraday. Without accident, the two vessels should be now within a hundred miles or less of this port, in which case the passengers on the Levi Woodbury will be able to see the process of cable-laying before night-fall.

Navy Yard Items.

Mr. Octavius A. Tarbox has been removed from his position as foreman painter at the navy yard and is succeeded by Mr. John Younge of Saco.

Mr. Thomas E. Webb, naval constructor, U. S. N., has received orders for his detachment from this yard. Mr. Theodore H. Wilson, lately appointed naval constructor, is ordered to succeed Mr. Webb.

Orders have been received at the yard to launch the U. S. S. "Enterprise" on the 13th.

Newcastle.

It is evident that "the good time coming" is very near our vicinity. By the time "The Wentworth" is completed it will be here. As "The Wentworth" is a commodious, pleasantly situated building, we expect it will be well patronized.

The "good natured man" of our island is having his store (once the Union store) converted into a French-roof dwelling house.

The Christian church, having obtained a new organ, have engaged Miss Ella Curtis as their organist.

The Spring term of the grammar school commenced on the 20th of May.

The Congregational church is without a settled pastor. A. W.

Laconics.

The democratic members of the legislature held an exciting caucus, Tuesday evening, reporters being excluded. The friends of Mr. Joseph Burrows, the nominee for Speaker last year threatened to break things generally if he should not be renominated. This caused great commotion, and Mr. Burrows was labored with and finally unanimously renominated. Then he was pacified and resigned; after which Albert R. Hatch, Esq., of Portsmouth, was nominated and accepted. The republicans renominated Hon. James W. Emery of this city for Speaker.

Pilot John Hall, of Newcastle, fell overboard from his boat while boarding schooner, J. C. Terry off Odiorne's Point, and was rescued by Capt. Rand of steamer Clara Bateman, which was alongside at the time.

The body of Mr. John Harris, of York, who has been missing from Hannibal, Mo., since Feb. 3d, has been found near Quincy, Ill. Everything was found on his person, so that the presumption that he might have been murdered for his money was incorrect.

Mr. T. Warren advertises "wonderful manifestations" of "spirit power seen in the light." The agent says spirit hands are plainly seen and flowers are "brought to the audience by hands plainly seen." The performance comes off at Mechanics' Hall at eight o'clock.

A telegram from Washington places the salary of the Collector of this port at $987.

Capt. John E. Salter, a respected and veteran ship-master of this port, died in this city on Wednesday after a protracted illness, aged 58 years.

A Miserable Being.

[Gulena Gazette.]

In the battle-field, many an unfortunate detachment has been placed between two fires, which have carried death and destruction to their ranks, while in the journalistic field, which is less sanguine, writers are the centre of fire from every side, and exceedingly active must the man be who successfully dodges the innumerable shots which are continually flying about his head. The most unsatisfactory, the most laborious and least appreciated, and the most difficult avocation which a man can follow, is that of an editor. If he pleases one class of his readers, he displeases the other. If some shower upon him encomiums for his outspoken sentiments, others cover him with curses. If he approximates to immorality the community proclaim him a despoiler of society, a reprehensible character, whose utterances are demoralizing to society, while a war waged against vices, trivial or great, will bring down upon his head a storm of indignation and a withdrawal of support from the less conscientious, from which latter source (be it said to their credit), the bulk of newspaper patronage is obtained. We have come to the conclusion that a majority of people do not take papers merely to familiarize themselves with the news of the day, but to criticise and find fault with their contents. If an editor strikes a vein of humor in his productions, that class of readers whose tempers are rigid and unmoved by wit, sneer at and satarize them, while a larger class entirely ignore those newspapers which are filled with long-winded and stale editorials, statistical matter and dissertations on scientific topics which the average mind is incompetent to grasp. The faults of men outside of the newspaper world are overlooked, while those of editors are criticised, regarded as heinous, and are never forgotten or forgiven. Papers are pounced upon by hyena-like critics, sentence by sentence undergoes sharp scrutiny, and each foible is picked from the mass and rolled as a sweet morsel under the tongue. A model editor never lived. Humanity never produced sapience enough to make one. The wisest of the sages combined would be totally inadequate. We know of but one way to please the various classes of newspaper readers, and that is, to publish an organ especially for each subscriber; but not having the collateral to successfully undertake so stupendous a task, we throw ourselves upon the tender mercies of our friends, and drink in consolation from the thought that there is a final retreat for editors, "where critics cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

Merit vs. Pretension.

A really modest and meritorious person will never make pretensions of any kind. His manner and expressions will always have a tendency to underrate his ability, not because he will pretend to be less capable than he really is, but because so many men have become pretensious in their manners and expressions, he fears he may be considered as such. We are, in consequence, too apt to consider the extent of the capacity of those we meet a little below the standard indicated by their acts and expressions. Therefore, true merit is seldom properly appreciated, and its cultivation is never greatly encouraged. On the contrary, pretense is most successful. He who is pretentious affects the interest of society in the same manner as the swindler. He induces men to doubt the capacity of others, and often to refuse aid and employment, because they measure the merits of all by those of the pretentious fop and conceited ignoramus. Many an honest and skillful man, and many a valuable improvement, have been refused support and adoption because the pretentious swindler has previously misled the people, and imposed upon them outrageously. Prententious of every kind are the true indications of a weak mind or a would-be swindler.

—There is more than one prominent American politician who might have sat to George Eliot for this portrait: "The squire's cute enough, but it takes something else besides cuteness to make folks see what'll be for their interest in the long run. It takes some consience, and belief in right and wrong; I see that clear, pretty clear. You'd hardly ever bring round the old squire to believe he'd gain as much in a straightfor'ard way as by tricks and turns."

—One great peculiarity of Arkansas is the way in which farm hands are paid. Instead of being fed and allowed so much a month as wages, they are given a share of the profit derived from the land which they cultivate. The landlord or planter furnishes land, houses, teams and tools; while the laborer gives all his time and supplies his own food. When the crop is harvested and ready for the market, it is divided between the master and servants. In this way an industrious and economical farm hand, with wife and three or four children, estimating a that the family will assist at the lighter work during the busy season, can cultivate about fifteen acres of cotton and five acres of corn the product of which can be sold in avearge seasons for about $1250. Of this sum, according to the share system, the laborer receives about $400, and the master the balance. In addition to the money thus earned, the hand is allowed a small garden of his own, and in the prairie district "a range," on which to feed his cows and hogs. The mules and oxen are the only stock that are stall-fed during the working season.

SPRING OPENING

— OF —

Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.

The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices,

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

From One Cent to One Dollar.

Hats, trimmed,

From 50 cts. to $10.00.

And five dollar Trimmed Hats will compare favorably with any ten dollar one in the city.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

A Colorado Editor Interviews A Chinaman.

We asked him if he didn't want some advertising done. He stopped work long enough to say that he charged a dollar a dozen, without ironing. We explained that it wasn't washing we wanted, but advertising. We told him how much his business would be increased, how he'd be richer than the king of Sandwich Islands in six months if he'd only advertise. This seemed to be clear to him, and his face brightened up as he said: "Business belly slow; nobody got no money." We calmly took out a paper at that. We carefully explained to him all about fifteen cents a line—one of these things clear across here every time the paper was printed. The people, we told him, would read this and then come to him for washing. He took a deep interest in the whole story, and paid marked attention to our few remarks.

"You see, Mr. Hong Lee," we said, thinking he was getting along first-rate in English, "this is a paper—this here" (putting a finger on it). "When people read they rush off frantically and buy of everybody whose name they see in the paper. Do you understand?" He said he did, and wanted to know how many pieces we had—whether they were big or little. We felt discouraged. We had worked hard for half an hour already, and he all the time thinking that we were talking about washing! With an imprecation on the whole race we went over the whole story again, even going so far as to figure out to him how many papers we printed and how many we expected to print. He was all attention as before, but when we stopped for breath he spirted water on a batch of clothes through his teeth, and then said, as coolly as a mummy, that if we brought the clothes on Monday he would have them done Wednesday.

—A Chinaman entered a store in Helena, Montana, and walking up to the counter, deposited a grasshopper there, saying, as he gazed upon the clerk with a confiding look: "He too much hoppe; all hoppe—stop him." The obliging clerk at once commenced measuring off mosquito bar, to the intense delight of the heathen. The grasshopper had been destroying his garden, and wanting to purchase some mosquito bar, but not knowing the name of the article, he brought the destroyer with him, and the clerk understood in a moment the article needed.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a open boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1630-40; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been completely in view and connected above water with Gerrish's island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," as called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether desirous of purchasing or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.
This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia, and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements of the digestive organs of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they destroy, and whose ambulance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Rheum, Scald Head, Ulcerous Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucrhorrhea arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. A Submerged El Dorado.

For over 150 years, ever since the galleons laden with Spanish gold vanished in the dark waves of the harbor of Vigo from the grasp of the conquering Dutch and English fleets, efforts to bring them again to the light of day and make them disgorge their gorgeous cargoes have been many and fruitless. These riches thus took to themselves fins and swam away, it will be remembered, in 1702, during the war of the Spanish succession. Spain was accustomed to draw all her sinews of war from her possessions in South America, and her drafts were always duly honored, but value received was apt to get into the pocket of the wrong parties. The seas swarmed with Dutch and English privateers which made easy prey of the Spanish treasure-ships, rendered slow sailors by their unwieldy build. Owing to these repeated anticipations of the modern Custom-house seizures, Spain from 1698 to 1702 imported no treasure, but at last her necessities became so great that she resolved to brave the Dutch and English Jayne of those days.

Accordingly in the spring of the latter year a fleet of twenty-three galleons, laden with a treasure which had accumulated to a larger amount than ever before through the interval of non-importation, and convoyed by twenty-three French line-of-battle ships, (France being the ally of Spain,) and nearly the entire Spanish fleet, set out from the Spanish South American parts bound for Cadiz, and evading the Anglo-Dutch fleet sent to intercept them arrived safely in the harbor of Vigo on the 22d of September. The treasure-ships were brought within the lower bay, the narrow channel leading to which was lined with forts, and to make assurance doubly sure a boom was thrown across the entrance. Some technicality due to Spanish etiquette caused a delay in landing the treasure, which the enemy's fleet took advantage of, and on the 21st of October, it, after a severe struggle, cut through the boom and triumphantly entered the supposed secure inner bay. The Spaniards, seeing these dreaded despoilers thus successful abandoned all thoughts of resistance and only thought of preventing the spoils from falling into the hands of the victors. They immediately began to burn, sink and scuttle the treasure-ships, with such success that only nine fell into the hands of the conquerors, two of which had to be abandoned, and one—the richest prize of the entire fleet—taken by the English frigate Monmouth, struck on a rock when leaving harbor, and was lost. The English and Dutch made off in triumph with their six captures, and the remaining seventeen galleons with their treasures have remained at the bottom of the harbor of Vigo to the present day. The amount of treasure on board the galleons at the outset is estimated at 50,000,000 pieces of eight, which is equivalent to that number of dollars in gold, from which is to be deducted the amount landed, which is computed at 7,000,000, and the amount captured, 6,000,000 more, leaving 37,000,000 pieces of eight, or $37,000,000, now submerged in the harbor of Vigo. During the last century, before the diving-bell had been invented, it was out of the question to attempt the recovery of what was thus, though lost to sight, dear to the memory of the Spaniard. But in 1825, an Englishman named Dickson, armed with a concession from the Spanish Government, made an unsuccessful attempt to rob Vigo's harbor of the treasure it had guarded so long. In 1859 another Englishman succeeded in finding two of the galleons, but not having capital enough to raise them, abandoned the undertaking. Ten years later Colonel Gowen, an American, who had distinguished himself by raising the Russian fleet of seventy vessels, with all their armament and outfit, which had been sunk in the harbor of Sebastopol during the Crimean war, was applied to by the Spanish Concessionaire, and he having satisfied himself of the feasibility of the project formed a company in England to carry it out. The Spanish authorities took advantage of some technicality to transfer the concessions to a French company, which however was prevented from pursuing the project very far by the breaking out of the Franco-Prussian war. It succeeded, however, in recovering several bars of gold and silver, which on being tested, fully sustained the estimate made of the value of the entire treasure, and Colonel Gowen succeeded in purchasing the good-will of the French company, which he has transferred to an American association which intends immediately to enter upon the finding of the lost treasure.

Rochefort's Reception.

[Cincinnati Times.]

M. Rochefort is receiving a great deal of newspaper attention in this country, and deservedly so; for he is a man of brilliant, if unbalanced, intellect, and one who has figured largely as a maker of late European history. His great and criminal fault consists in an absorbing desire to dismantle and dismember the existing state of affairs, without any definite plan to shape or any power to build the new structure which is to take its place. He would utterly tear down and root up the State and social system, and trust to the moment for replacing it with something better. History has shown us, on two or three occasions, how this procedure works. The execution of Charles I., and the murder and plunder of the Cavaliers did not sustain the Commonwealth; the guillotine of the Reign of Terror did not establish a Republic; and the blood and fire to which Rochefort so largely contributed was powerless to uphold the Commune. It is trite to say that though such revolutions fail in form they perpetuate many of their ideas, for the main question in such issue would be whether the end justified the terrible means. But we submit that all great and lasting reforms have been the result of more quiet, manly and deliberate procedure, backed by force, when necessary, but force guided by reason, not furiated lunacy. The English barons forced Magna Charta from John Lackland, but it did not occur to them as necessary to burn up London, and set the Thames on fire; our forefathers told George III. that they could not get along with his interference in our affairs, but they did not in consequence proceed to the sacking of cities and the cutting of their own throats.

M. Rochefort is, par excellence, an "agitator," and a very unsafe one to have in the national family. It may be that his past experience has taught him something, and that his really brilliant parts will hereafter be turned into wiser channels of reform. His present modest demeanor certainly points to that hope, and if realized the man may yet be of service to France. But he has a bloody record to wipe out.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1874.

To the Victors, etc.

A newspaper correspondent who served on Sherman's staff during the "march to the sea," relates the particulars of a fight which occurred near the end of the campaign, when Wade Hampton's men surprised Kilpatrick's and despite the most desperate fighting drove the Union cavalry from their camp with heavy loss. A disastrous defeat seemed inevitable for the Union troops, but the rebels were hungry and at once turned all their attention to plundering the captured camp; and in their eagerness to make the most of their victory they gave the routed Union men a chance to resume the offensive, which was done with such vigor that Hampton's troops were finally driven back with great loss of men and without any plunder at all.

It is quite possible that something similar will take place in this State, as the indications now are that the democratic leaders will not be able to prevent their followers turning all their attention to plundering the captured camp—seventeen years of fasting has made the democratic army fearfully hungry. The Manchester Union counsels quick dispatch to the democratic legislators as it matters little what the legislature does or leaves undone, so it adjourns early; but the enemy's camp has got to be thoroughly plundered. The Liquor Men's Associations will probably insist on the judicious "counting out" of obnoxious temperance republicans,—enough of them to make the repeal of the anti-rum law certain,—and as the rum-power (which includes the so-called prohibitionists) gave the State to the democrats the democrats will have to obey the rum-power; this will take up some valuable time. Then there is any amount of judicious re-districting to be done; the senatorial, councillor and congressional districts must be remodelled; Portsmouth, which is as fairly divided as it can be, with but three wards, is to be split into half a dozen or more, so judiciously that the democrats will have a majority in the City Councils even with a large republican majority in the city, and the veto power is to be taken from the Mayor, as it wouldn't do to have a republican chairman retain that power over a democratic board of aldermen, for that would defeat the ends of the most judicious gerrymandering; Manchester, which has never been fairly divided since the old whig gerrymander, is to be so judiciously split up that it will be more unfairly divided than ever, only the democrats will be the favored ones this time; the time of holding the municipal election in this city is to be changed, that the plunder of the camp may fall into democratic hands as soon as possible, and the law closing the polls at six o'clock is to be repealed, as our democratic brethren love darkness better than light when they have any heavy counting out or in to do, and any measure in the interests of good order and decency militates against the democratic party; the judiciary is to be overhauled and fixed up anew; all employees of the national government, "with judicious exceptions," are to be disfranchised; and—but that's enough to start on.

An energetic and thorough plundering of the camp is arranged for,—and little else. Possibly it may work all right for the victors; possibly not; but we want to see it done, and the more thoroughly the better. The democracy cannot carry their partizanship too far to please us; and if they only do—or attempt to do—one half they have threatened, they will give the republicans all the political ammunition they will need in the next State campaign.

Great Cry and Little Wool.

The democratic inquisition into the manner of conducting the last election in Rochester, instituted in the hope of discovering some plausible excuse for doing what the democrats had no doubt determined to do at any rate,—to turn Mr. Caverly, the republican representative from Rochester, out of his seat in the legislature,—closed on the evening of June 1st and left the investigating patriots without a shadow of just cause for unseating Mr. Caverly. The democrats did indeed swear that the republican selectmen added names to the checklist after voting had commenced, and the selectmen acknowledged it; but they proved that the names so added were those of men known to be old citizens of the town, and that they were all democrats! Then complaint was made that an old man named Miller whose tax had been remitted, had voted; this, too, the democrats proved,—the selectmen defending their action by pleading that the man was industrious and very poor, and lost a leg in the democratic war of secession. This losing a leg in putting down a democratic rebellion was bad enough, but a still more heinous offence on the part of the old soldier is his persistent voting of the republican ticket. This case of Millers', and that of one man who was proved to have voted illegally without any fault on the part of the selectmen, is the sum total of all the investigators managed to unearth. Another man's taxes were abated, and he voted; but he did not ask any abatement, the selectmen doing it of their own accord, believing it their duty as the man was in poverty. On being examined by the defence this man stated that he voted the straight democratic ticket at the last election,—and never voted anything else! All the evidence produced (and there was a mighty lot of it) tended to show that the republican selectmen of Rochester did their duty conscientiously and to the best of their ability, and that the inquisition was inspired by the bitterest partizanship on the part of the democrats, and not by any belief that wrong had been done or that there was any abuse to rectify.

The Legislature.

On Wednesday, the vacancies in the Senate were filled by the election of James Priest for District No. 2, William H. Farrar for District No. 5, Thomas P. Peirce for District No. 7, and William H. Gove for District No. 8.

The committee appointed to count the votes for Governor at the last election reported as follows:

Whole number of votes	71,893
Necessary to a choice	35,947
Scattering	45
John Blackmer	2,097
Luther McCutchins	34,143
James A. Weston	35,608

showing that Mr. Weston lacked 339 votes of being elected by the people.

William H. Gove, of Weare, was chosen President of the Senate. This action of the Senate is but a just reward of perseverance, for no patriot has more perseveringly chased office than Mr. Gove, and few have caught it oftener. No matter where the office has taken refuge—in the democratic party, the republican, the "liberal," or the democratic again—Mr. Gove has followed it through thick and thin, and stuck to it like a hero when he caught it. In these days of venality and corruption such a shining example of "devotion to principle" deserves its reward. Thomas J. Smith, of Dover, was chosen Clerk, and Charles A. Jewell, of Plymouth, Assistant Clerk.

The House and Senate in convention, Thursday, filled the vacancies in the Councillor Districts, electing John S. Robinson of Deerfield in No. 1, John C. Moulton of Laconia in No. 2, Albert McKean of Nashua in No. 3, all democrats.

Maudsley's Morbid Impulse.

[Cincinnati Times.]

If Dr. Hammond of New York pursues much longer the peculiar course which he has followed for the past year, his sad fate will inevitably be a national reputation for sterling common sense, profound thought, and sound conclusions. His latest achievement has been to take up, in a lengthy and very interesting lecture, the subject of "Morbid Impulse to Crime," as set forth in the late work of Dr. Maudsley. The volume created even a greater sensation in medical circles than we predicted at its publication, and Dr. Hammond, with most of his profession, is unable to disagree with the majority of its premises. His conclusions, however, are widely different, and briefly to the effect that the criminal's diseased impulse to commit crime, however clearly marked, and however irresistible, in no wise lessens his danger to society, or the necessity of preventing the further gratification of his "impulse." His citation of cases and incidents is even fuller and more interesting than Dr. Maudsley's and his summing up is clear and conclusive, to wit: That a person aware of the existence of an impulse to commit crime, should put himself at once under restraint, or that the authorities should do it for him; that an individual who has yielded to such impulse is far too dangerous to go at large, as the unvarying history of such cases shows a tendency to repeat the crime; that morbidly constituted individuals who commit crimes for the pleasure of it—such as Pomeroy and the late Waltz—should be treated exactly like other criminals, as the motive is plain—pleasure in the deed; and, finally, in the Doctor's own words:

"The plea 'I could not help it' is one which every member of the criminal classes can urge with as much force as the subject of morbid impulse, and when it stands alone in an otherwise sane individual should be absolutely disregarded by juries and judges."

The New York press is making much of the lecture, and wisely, for a healthier and stronger attack upon the evils of our present system of medical jurisprudence has not been made for these many years.

—"Now, gentlemen," said a peripatetic lecturer, to a somewhat noisy crowd, who had gathered to one of his seances in an eastern village, "how would you like a blackguard story? All in favor will raise their hands." Nine-tenths of the dexter paws present instantly went up, and there was a sudden hush of all noisy demonstrations. The lecturer went on with his original subject for a minute, when some incautious individual broke out with, "Say, where's that story?" "Bless you," was the reply, "I did not intend to tell any such story. I only wanted to know how many blackguards were present." You might have heard a pin drop any time during the lecture, after that.

—It is remarked that wood will last much longer if left for the woman folk to saw and split.

Bret Harte Loses $10.000.

[New York Letter to Boston Times.]

The recent announcement of the suspension of the Lakeside Monthly brings to mind the earnest desire of Chicago that Bret Harte, after he had left San Francisco, and was on route to the East, should become the editor of that magazine. The leading citizens of the Northwestern metropolis prepared an elaborate entertainment in honor of the Californian author, and bade thereto some of the most prominent people in town. The hour for dinner was fixed for eight o'clock. All the guests assembled except Harte. Fifteen minutes passed, half an hour, three-quarters, and still no Harte. A feeling of uneasiness and awkwardness spread through the company; everybody wondering and some asking, "Where is he?" "What has become of him?" Nine o'clock came, and the host, surrendering all hope of his special guest, invited his friends to the luxurious board.

Under Harte's plate had been deposited a check payable to his order, for $10,000, designed as an inducement for him to remain in the Garden City, and undertake the conduct of the Lakeside. Not only did the humorist not appear on that occasion; he never even gave any reason for his absence; nor has he done so to this day. Many reasons have been given for his failure to keep the engagement, though none of them are known to be true.

One thing, however, may be depended on, if Harte had been aware that a check for that amount had been awaiting him, he would, unquestionably, have been present. He has never been in a condition, financial or temperamental, to decline the offer of money, and he must regret exceedingly, if conscious of what he missed, that he stayed away from an entertainment promising a result so pecuniary.

The check was cancelled, and the gentlemen who had made up the amount were just so much better off in consequence of Bret's caprice.

There is something droll in the idea of the brilliant raconteur depriving himself of $10,000, when he might have had it without the asking. He has the reputation of being so perpetually embarrassed for lack of money that his remembrance of that circumstance should henceforth teach him the value of punctuality.

Food and Digestion.

In dyspepsia the gastric juice which should dissolve the food is only formed in small quantities, and whatever may be the feeling of emptiness and weakness in such cases, the dyspeptic should not eat yet. To remedy the evil, the mucous membrane of the stomach, which secretes and emits the gastric fluid, should be stimulated and toned, and the best, in fact the only sure preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does this admirable stomachic promote a sufficient and steady supply of the solvent which converts the food to the purposes of life, but it also regulates the flow of bile, controls the bowels, and has a most invigorating effect upon the nerves. The glow which the first dose diffuses through the system is an earnest of the more permanent vitalizing effects which are produced by its persistent use. It improves the appetite, cheers the spirits, and renders the body hardy and strong.

HAIR VIGOR. In common with many others we have felt a lively interest in the investigations which DR. AYER has been making to discover the causes of failure of the hair, and to provide a remedy. His researches are said to have been much more thorough and exhaustive than any ever made before. The result is now before us under the name of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. We have given it a trial, and with full satisfaction. It equals our most favorable anticipations. Our gray hairs have disappeared, or resumed their original color; and a visible crop of soft, silken hair has started on a part of the scalp which was entirely bald.—[Democrat, Abingdon, Va.]

Quack Medicines.—We never puff, but ANAKESIS, the great sealers PILE remedy, has cured thousands, after lotions, ointments, and all manner of nostrums have failed. It is the discovery of Dr. Silsbee, an eminent western physician, and has been endorsed by medical men of all schools. It is a simple medicated suppository, can be used as an instrument, poultice and medicine, affords instant relief from pain, and is pronounced an infallible cure.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker street, New York.

The Public, or at least that portion of it which travels, will be interested to know that the favorite American House, Boston, has decided to make a discrimination in prices to transient guests, according to the location of rooms. The hotel will continue to be kept at its previous highstanding.

Helmbold's Buchu is still in the zenith of its popularity. Notwithstanding the absence of Dr. Helmbold, the celebrated medicine is still manufactured at the laboratory at Philadelphia, and is sold by all respectable druggists. It is warranted for all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Beware of counterfeits. Genuine has proprietor's private stamp. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

Nature's Diadem.—Is your hair falling out? Is your hair growing dry and lifeless? Is your hair less pliable and glossy than of yore? It wants a good healthful hair dressing to help exhausted nature to recover itself.

Try BEARINE and mark the change. 5

Don't be Discouraged. Suppose you have "tried fifty remedies" and received no benefit, is there therefore "no balm in Gilead?" Verily there is. Your liver may be congested, your stomach half paralyzed, your nerves quivering, your muscles knotted with torture, your bowels constricted, your lungs diseased, your blood full of impurities—yet in one week after commencing a course of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS you will feel like a new creature. m29 4w

Costiveness is aggravated by

The use of strong purgatives. The only rational treatment is some gentle laxative and tonic like DR. HARRISON'S PERSTALTIC LOZENGES. These never weaken, but gradually restore nature. They remove Oppression, Dizziness, Headache, and every form of Indigestion; also, the only proper remedy for Piles, either bleeding or otherwise. Trial box 30 cts. Large box, 60 cts., mailed free for this last price.

DR. HARRISON'S ICELAND BALSAM, a splendid cure for Coughs, Hoarseness, and all Throat and Lung complaints. For sale by E. S. HARRISON & CO, Proprietors, No. 1 Tremont Temple, Boston, and by all Druggists. m14 1m

Chapped Hands, face, rough skin, pimples, ringworm, salt rheum and other cutaneous affections cured, and the skin made soft and smooth, by using the Juniper Tar Soap, made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York. Be certain to get the Juniper Tar Soap, as there are many imitations made with common tar which are worthless. f3

THE "LIGHT RUNNING"

"DOMESTIC"

KING OF SEWING Machines.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

It affords me great pleasure to be able to announce to my friends (and to all others interested,) that the "Domestic" Sewing Machine Company has fully resumed the manufacture of its UNRIVALLED MACHINE, and will expand its business with increased energy. Its new factories will soon be completed, and every machine will be as nicely constructed as possible. All who have used the Machine for four years or less, pronounce it

THE LIGHTEST RUNNING,
EASIEST TO KEEP IN ORDER,
THE MOST DURABLE,

— AND DECIDEDLY —

The Nearest to Perfection

of any Sewing Machine in the market. It is the intention to have the

"DOMESTIC" SEWING MACHINE

Supercede all others in this City and Vicinity.

— THE —

"DOMESTIC" SEWING MACHINE

— IS THE —

"Best Machine to Use,"

— AND THE —

EASIEST TO SELL.

IT IS DURABLE

AND WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME.

Every Machine

I sell is warranted to be all I claim for it, and a

Written Guarantee

WILL BE GIVEN TO PURCHASERS IF DESIRED.

ALL MACHINES ARE FURNISHED—WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE—WITH CASTORS, A HEMMER AND FELLER, QUILTING GAUGE, BRAIDER, THUMB-SCREW AND GAUGE, A DOZEN OF ASSORTED NEEDLES, HALF A DOZEN BOBBINS, WRENCH, SCREW DRIVER, OILER, BOTTLE OF OIL AND BOOK OF INSTRUCTIONS.

THE "DOMESTIC" WILL

Hem, Fell,
Bind, Braid,
Cord, Quilt,
Tuck, Ruffle,
Embroider, Gather,

AND SEW ON AT THE SAME TIME.

THE GATHERING ATTACHMENT

As applied to the "DOMESTIC" is made on an

ENTIRELY NEW PRINCIPLE.

No other Machine in the United States having any thing for the purpose that can be compared with this late invention. It is applied directly to the presser bar, and is operated by the movements of the Needle Bar.

ITS ACTIONS ARE POSITIVE—ITS MOTIONS PERFECT.

As some of my Friends, connected with the sale of other kinds of sewing machines, have interested themselves so much during the past winter as to falsely represent that the "Domestic" S. M. Co. had failed, and that there could be no parts obtained for the "Domestic" Needles, etc., etc., I will state that the "Domestic" Sewing Machine Co. has been making steady progress from the first, and as to parts of the machine, needles, etc., being obtained, I keep them constantly on hand. But although the "Domestic" where it has been sold may be run "from morn until eve" without tiring the operator. We have had scarcely any call for extra parts and are pleased to state that we have not so much business in that way as some of our neighbors. If however any one owning a "Domestic" should in any manner be disaffected, all matters will be made right by calling at my office. I will further state that as heretofore I shall keep on hand all kinds of

SEWING MACHINE NEEDLES,
TUCKERS,
GATHERERS,
EMBROIDERERS,
HEMMERS,
BRAIDERS,
CORDERS,
ETC., ETC., ETC.

Local Matters.

A Short Cruise.

The members of the press and other invited guests to the number of 125 or more took passage in the revenue cutter Levi Woodbury, Capt. Fengar, at 11 o'clock, Thursday morning, for the purpose of making a junction with the cable ships should they be in sight. Capt. Fengar did everything for the comfort of his passengers, as did Collector Howard, by whose efforts the presence of the cutter was secured. Among the guests of the occasion were Ex-Gov. Fred Smyth and wife, and Col. George Riddle, wife and daughter, of Manchester, Hon. E. Ashton Rollins, of Rollinsford, Hon. Gilman Marston of Exeter, John R. Varney, Esq., of the Dover Enquirer, Col. Arthur M. Eastman; Col. A. H. Young, Mayor Horton and Hon. Oliver Wyatt, of Dover, Hon. Warren Brown of Hampton-Falls, and many of our own citizens, including Revs. James DeNormandie and Hardy, and Judges Odell and Page. The boat took the party about twenty miles beyond the shoals, but there were no signs of the approach of the steamets looked for, and Capt. Fengar decided to return, as many of the passengers were feeling uncomfortable, while a few were rendering unto Cæsar the things that were Cæsar's. The boat touched Commercial wharf at 3.30 P. M.

A bountiful collation was spread in the cabins by the Messrs. Peirce of the Rockingham, and after it had been disposed of Col. Andrew H. Young was chosen chairman, and the fun commenced. Witty speech and repartee followed each other and a merrier company never, we venture to say, trod the decks of the Levi Woodbury. When nearing the harbor, one young man ventured aloft and was captured by the sailors, who bound him to the shrouds and left him to his reflections; but Frank was equal to the emergency and came down the jib stay just as three jolly tars rushed aloft to capture and bind a Postmaster—who had been there before. There were rumors of bribery and bravery when the sailors returned to the deck without endeavoring to accomplish the task, some averring that the beaming faced official had bribed them, and others as stoutly maintaining that he had frightened them.

The fog became more dense as the boat neared shore, and shut out all view of the Shoals, and as the Levi Woodbury will not go out in search of the electricians again until the smoke of the steamers is seen from the custom-house, it is within the range of possibility that the people at Straw's Point may discover the arrival first.

Lent's Circus

Exhibits in this city this afternoon and evening. The advertisement in another column promises much, but the Springfield Republican says Mr. Lent does "precisely what he advertises to do," furnishes "an entertainment which is in every respect unexceptionable," and that there is "nothing but what is strictly decorous" in the show, which the Boston Herald says "is the very best of the many exhibitions that visit Boston."

Laconics.

Schooner Clara Simpson will be launched from Fernald's yard on Saturday afternoon at high water if the weather should be favorable.

After the arrival of the cable fleet, steamer Appledore will make two trips per day to the scene of interest. Fare 50 cents.

Revenue cutter Levi Woodbury will not return to Portland, but will be replaced there by the new steamer Alexander J. Dallas, July 1st. Capt. Fengar, who has made myriads of friends hereabouts, is attached to the Woodbury temporarily.

State News.

Gov. Weston was inaugurated on Thursday. We shall print his message to-morrow.

Sullivan county now owes only a little over $11,000 and seems to be in a fair way to get out of debt.

The tent show from Providence, called the Great Metropolitan Pavilion, has disbanded at Laconia, the property having been attached for unpaid bills.

Harding H. Masters was shot dead at Nicholasville, Ky., by W. H. Soper, son of the proprietor of a liquor saloon which Masters visited to request that no more liquors be sold to his sister's husband.

Daniel Leary, the steward of the Bridgewater (Mass.) Almshouse hospital, who was charged with cruelly treating a pauper and causing his death, has been acquitted and exonerated by a coroner's jury.

Wintermute, who killed Gen. McCook in Dakota, has been convicted of manslaughter in the first degree, the only homicide he could be convicted of without having the death penalty affixed. The penalty is in the discretion of the court, but is not less than four years' imprisonment.

Those who are now reading the glowing accounts of New Mexico and Colorado should remember former instances, as stated by the Cincinnati Gazette. "When Oregon was created a State the lying was gorgeous. It was told that she had near 100,000 inhabitants, and was growing at a tremendous pace. The census taken some years after her creation showed but 52,465, of all sorts, and that of 1870, but 90,923. Nevada was a splendid fabrication. In 1870, after she had been a State eight or nine years, she had a population of 42,924."

A hundred and forty-five grangers in Cass county, Indiana, are candidates for the office of Sheriff of the county.

The following accidents in Maine are reported as results of the thunder storm of Sunday night: The barn of Ruel Patten of West Pittsfield was struck by lightning and a pair of oxen killed; the barn of Albert Mudgett in Dixmont was struck by lightning and burned with ten tons of hay and straw; Wm. Fessenden's barn at South Bridgton was struck and set on fire, but was saved, a horse and a cow having been killed by the shock; Abel Taylor's barn in Hebron was struck and burned, together with a horse, three or four calves, some pigs and sheep and other contents of the building.

A letter has reached New York from Havana by a Cuban merchant, from which the following is an extract: "Bayamo is in the possession of the insugents since the 30th of last month. They went in and are holding the places so far. Gen. Figueras was defeated by Gomez and also Bazoones. Figueras had 4000 men. The insurgents went into Puerto Principe and took away all they wanted. Around Cienfuegos another fight took place, where it is said Col. Santol, the demon who was the terror of Guanabacoa, got killed and his whole column was cut to pieces. Manzanillo is having the insurgents at her doors, who may get in any moment. This news has sent gold up to 150 per cent. The Spaniards in Havana commence to grumble and say that Concha has come to sell them out like sheep, but they will string him up before he will get the chance of leaving with his booty. Bayamo is the capitol of the Oriental department and it was there that Cespedes first proclaimed Cuban independence."

The Massachusetts Press Committee on Excursions have arranged a magnificent excursion for this year. They are to leave Boston June 19, and go over the new route that day to Montreal, quartering at the St. Lawrence. Saturday will be spent in Montreal doing the Rapids, etc. Saturday night go to Quebec, and spend Sunday and Monday in that quaint and curious old city. Monday return via Grand Trunk and Massawippi Railways to Lake Memphremagog, and thence to Boston early Tuesday morning. To this is appended a supplementary trip for those who desire it, which includes a trip up the Saguenay river, spending Monday meanwhile in Quebec, and spending Tuesday and Wednesday on the St. Lawrence and Saguenay rivers, and home. Friday via Lake Memphremagog. Those who prefer can reach home Thursday night.

—An Indianapolis man who went to attend the opera at Cincinnati tells a pleasant story on the high-toned musical audiences of that place. The piece was "Faust," and when the curtain fell on the chapel scene closing with the death of Marguerite the audience applauded, the bibulous ones rushed out as usual to get their inter-act drink, while the remainder of the listeners began chatting and fanning, awaiting the next act. Finally, when the boy wanted to turn off the gas, he was obliged to explain that the singers had gone home and the opera was "out." The Indianapolis man says he never heard an audience get out of a place so silently and promptly as that one left the Pike.

—It is not always safe to arrange elopements in the advertising columns of a newspaper, even although your announcements are in cipher. A gentleman duly inserted one, telling the lady the time and place, which she promptly answered and expressed her willingness to go. But it seems the husband read and interpreted the message also, and so when the fair and frail young wife "kept tryst" with the Lothario, there was a third person there which made matters a little awkward. The lady, however, returned with her husband quite contentedly, philosophically remarking that perhaps it was just as well she hadn't gone off, as after a certain length of time all men were bores.

—A young lady in San Jose, Cal., about a month ago, secretly married the man of her choice, and then went right along attending to her business as if nothing had happened. But the other day the happy couple concluded to publish their marriage in the Mercury, and the old man saw it. Showing the notice to his daughter, he sternly demanded, "What does this mean? Is it a joke, Maria Jane, or is it reality?" The daughter raised her head, her face suffused with blushes, and answered, "Yes, father, it is a joke on you!" The old man weakened.

—"What are you hallooing about, Bill?" said a mother at the stair-foot, one evening, after her two boys had been put to bed. "Please, mother," said Bill, "Jem wants half the bed." "Will," says she, "let him have it, and you take the other half." "Yes, mother," says Bill, "but he will have his half out of the middle, and make me sleep on both sides of him."

HENDERSON & CO.,

ANNOUNCE THEIR

SPRING OPENING

—OF—

Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.

The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

From One Cent to One Dollar.

Hats, trimmed,

From 50 cts. to $10.00.

And five dollar Trimmed Hats will compare favorably with any ten dollar one in the city.

SASH RIBBONS, - - - - - - - - 25 cents per yard.
SILK TIES - - - - - - - - - - 20 cents each.
FRAMES - - - - - - - - - - - 15 cents each.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

Absent-Mindedness Cured.

The story of the absent-minded man, who, meeting his own son in the street, shook hands with him and asked him how his father was, has been equalled by the forgetfulness of a Wisconsin farmer. This man drove to town to transact some business and was accompanied by his wife. Leaving her at a dry goods store he proceeded to carry out his intention. Having finished his business he forgot all about the little circumstance of bringing his wife with him, and started home alone. Arriving there he put his horse out and proceeded to do the chores. In the meantime his wife had learned that her husband had left town without her. Hiring a conveyance, she was driven home. She didn't wait to take off her things, but seizing a press-board made her way to the back yard.

The husband was just seating himself on a milking stool, and had just opened a conversation with the cow on the subject of "thisting," remarking frequently that it was "so, boss." He was just getting settled down to business when a whistling sound, as if something rapidly cleaving the air, came from the other side of the cow. It was the press-board, and the wife was on one end of it. An instant after it fell with crushing weight upon his knees. The cow, having conscientious scruples about standing between husband and wife, left very suddenly, and in her hurry kicked the unfortunate man in the immediate vicinity of the vest pocket. The unhappy victim of circumstances scrambled up on all fours, when the press-board again descended, striking him opposite to where the cow had left her tracks. His wife then asked him if he would ever forget her again, and his answer was plain and to the point, "Not much."

—Among the waiting passengers at the Central depot, Saturday, says the Detroit Free Press, were a widow woman and five children, and by and by a man who was waiting the same train opened a conversation with the widow and soon remarked that he'd like to marry just such a little woman. "Here, Susan, hold this satchel!" turning to the oldest daughter, and then reaching for the man's arm she continued: —"I've been looking for you about five years!" Everybody shouted and jumped in glee, and when the scapegoat backed flat down they said he ought to be dumped in the river.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall cart them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vendor of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 12. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 26. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 32. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 13. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Daily Chronicle.

Gov. Weston's Inaugural Address.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

Established custom requires that the Governor of the State, when entering upon the duties of his office, shall communicate to your such information relative to the condition of public affairs as may be at his command, and make such suggestions and recommendations as will in his judgment be conducive to the public good. Gratefully acknowledging the honor conferred upon me by my fellow citizens, I approach this duty with diffidence and with a full consciousness of the responsibilities imposed, and with a sincere desire to merit the confidence so generously bestowed.

Governments, like individuals, are dependent upon the Supreme Ruler of the Universe for whatever blessings may be accorded to them. It is proper, therefore, that we should first seek His aid and guidance to enable us to determine what measures will best promote the honor and interests of the State, and to rightly perform the labors before us. And while some sections of our country have been visited with the merciless fire and the no less devastating flood, our hearts must swell with grateful emotions that no such afflictions have befallen our State, that its varied industries have been generally crowned with success, that peace prevails within its borders, and that all classes of its people are blessed with health, happiness and general prosperity.

SPECIAL LEGISLATION.

That your session may be brief and useful, it is necessary that you avoid so far as may be the labyrinths of special legislation. This evil has grown to such unwieldy proportions, that most of the States which have recently revised their respective constitutions, have erected barriers against it in the fundamental law. It is probable that we shall do the same when a constitutional convention shall be held, and until then it may not be possible to provide an effective remedy. But we should guard against this evil, which is first seen in the frequency of trifling legislation, and ends in chaos on the statute book. The proper subjects of legislation can be largely reduced, partly by the enactment of general laws, and in part by remanding purely local and trivial matters to the management of the towns or the courts. I trust you will refuse to consider those matters for which provisions have already been made, and that you will group all subjects of minor importance under the provisions of general laws, so far as may be practicable.

FINANCE.

The financial affairs of the State, always a subject of special interest, appear to be in a sound and satisfactory condition. Notwithstanding the monetary derangements of the past year, every obligation has been promptly met, and the financial credit of the State is unquestioned. The report of the State Treasurer, soon to be laid before you, embraces an exhibit in detail of the business of his office, with a statement of the present indebtedness of the State. By his courtesy I am able to present the following summary:

REVENUE FOR YEAR ENDING MAY 31, 1874.

Receipts from State tax	$600,600.00
Receipts from other sources	140,022.34
Total revenue		$740,622.34
State expenses, ordinary and extraordinary	$174,893.05
Interest	259,798.77
Total expenses for the year		$434,691.82
Excess of revenue		$305,570.42

This sum is represented by cash on hand, and by the reduction of the State debt. Briefly stated, this debt compared with that of last year, is as follows:

Liabilities June 1, 1873	$4,191,955.48
Less assets in Treasury	50,805.04
Net liabilities June 1, 1873		$4,132,108.44
Liabilities June 1, 1874	$4,102,166.49
Less assets in Treasury	275,576.47
Net indebtedness June 1, 1874		$3,826,590.02
Reduction of the debt during the year		$305,570.42

Authority was granted by the last Legislature to issue bonds to the amount of $500,000, with which to pay off the Temporary Loan then existing to the amount of $226,000, and to meet other maturing obligations. These bonds were put upon the market, and have been negotiated at par, the proceeds being applied according to the original intent. As will be seen by the preceding statement, the present total indebtedness of the State is $3,826,590.02, all of which is funded, and will mature within the next thirty-one years, in nearly equal amounts annually.

Even carefully prepared estimates, based upon an economical administration of the Government, it is apparent that an annual State tax of $400,000 for a few years, with the income from other sources, will be adequate to meet these obligations as they mature, together with the current expenses of the State, and leave a handsome margin besides. The annual tax may then be reduced, or the surplus can be used to anticipate the payment of the longer bonds, as shall be deemed expedient. I therefore recommend that a tax of $400,000 be levied the present year, and I am not aware that any further legislation on this subject will be required.

ECONOMY.

The ordinary expenses of the State are not large as compared with those of some others; but within a comparatively few years they have been greatly increased; and at a time, too, when the people, burdened by other and extraordinary expenses of an imperative character, cannot well afford to bear them. It is our clear duty to reduce them; for if there have been sufficient reasons in past years for the increased expenses which have been made, those reasons no longer exist, and reductions can and should be made. I will not anticipate the result of the inquiries you will institute, by any specific suggestions; but I beg you to bear in mind that the people strongly, and rightly too, demand retrenchment, wherever it may be found possible. We must forego some improvements, though desirable, until we can better afford them; and if it shall be proved, as I apprehend it will be, that the State gets no just equivalent for some of its expenditures, they should be lopped off with an unhesitating hand. The present tendency to private and public extravagance is unwarrantable. Let us then, at least in our official and fiduciary capacity, resist this tendency. If we can maintain a pure, simple, and inexpensive government, extinguish our debt at an early period, and thus assist in relieving the people of the great burden of taxation, we shall do better for the State as a whole, and the people individually, than can be done in any other way.

BANKS.

There is but one discount bank doing business by State authority, while there are forty-six National banks and private banking houses in successful operation. But it is the savings banks, where the pecuniary affairs of so large a number of our people are involved, that demand our solicitude and watchfulness. These institutions have been gradually growing in favor, and increasing in numbers and strength till their deposits now amount to $28,829,376.83, being an increase of $366,836.85, during the past year. Within that period three have been organized, making sixty-four in all, having 92,788 depositors.

In almost every instance they have been successful, and afforded a safe and profitable investment.

The magnitude of the interest involved, however, admonishes us to use every means possible to protect the individual depositors, many of whom have placed therein their scanty savings—the result of years of toil and self denial.

As the relations which different business interests sustain to each other are constantly changing, it will be advisable to inquire whether the rules regulating the conduct of these institutions may not be improved to meet the demands of the times.

EDUCATION.

The theory upon which our school system is based is that "knowledge and learning generally diffused through a community are essential to the preservation of free government." The aim of legislation in this State is to require that the towns shall provide means for the education of all the children in corporate communities so far as it may be necessary for their usefulness and happiness. It has not often assumed to do more than this, while a large margin of discretion has been left to the towns, and this has been still more enlarged by custom, until scholars often pass directly from the public schools to the college. Of this, the State will not be likely to complain, as the advantages, especially to those of moderate means, are so apparent; but I earnestly invite you to consider whether our educational interests may not be advanced by some changes in the existing laws. At present the Governor and Council, with the Superintendent of Public Instruction, constitute the Board of Education. It can hardly be expected that a Board thus composed, selected as they are with little reference to their qualifications for this position, would combine the taste and talent requisite to perform this duty in the most advantageous and acceptable manner. Would not the cause be better subserved, and the public funds more judiciously applied, by the establishment of a State Board of Education, composed of suitable and experienced persons, say, one from each county, who should be the Trustees of the Normal School, and should also have a general supervision of public education in the State? Such a change would involve a modification of the duties of the Superintendent, which could be enlarged and the system modernized without any increased cost.

Another subject deserving of special attention, affecting the efficiency and economy of our schools, is the arbitrary district system. Our changing, and, I am sorry to say, in many towns, greatly reduced population, has left a very small number of pupils in many districts, and in some there are none.

Towns have authority to remedy this evil, by uniting all their districts under the town organization, and I am glad to know that some of them are concentrating their strength with a view to secure better schools with less expenditure of money. I am not aware that additional legislation would be useful. The work and the responsibility belong to the several towns, and it is hoped that such action will be taken by them as will elevate the standard of our public schools. Here lies the groundwork of the education of the people, and as it is the most essential and useful, so should it be the most watchfully guarded part of the structure.

The Normal School is reported to be in a prosperous condition. There can be no doubt of the utility of an institution specially designed to prepare teachers for their important work. By the maintenance of nearly four thousand schools in the State, a demand is created for thoroughly trained and educated teachers, and no doubt those who propose making teaching a business will gladly avail themselves of the advantages afforded by this institution, thus ensuring for it a prosperous career in the future.

The report of the Trustee of the New Hampshire College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts will be laid before you. I am not informed what action they will recommend, or what assistance, if any, they will ask from the State. I honor the motive in which this institution had its origin, and trust it will be the means of much good. In my judgement, the theory is that in due time such institutions should become self-sustaining. Dependence upon one's own resources and energies works the same benefit in these as in the prosperity of individuals. Self-reliance is generally the surest guaranty of success, and I believe in adopting that principle in this case.

As related to this topic, I would call your attention to the Board of Agriculture, which is of recent origin. The object sought to be attained is a worthy one, bearing, as it does, on the leading interest of the State; but it is quite probable that its expense may be materially lessened without affecting its efficiency. Your attention is respectfully invited to the subject.

ASYLUM FOR THE INSANE.

The report of the trustees of the Asylum for the Insane will be laid before you. It is conceded that this is one of the best managed institutions of its kind in the country; and it has always merited and received the most generous aid from both public and private funds. I have no doubt it will receive such consideration as it deserves at your hands.

STATE PRISON.

By the reports of the Warden and the Committee of the Council on the State Prison, it will be seen that its affairs are in a prosperous condition, particularly those pertaining to its finances. There is now a much larger number of convicts in this institution than usual, and hence a proportionally larger income, as the State receives a per diem compensation from the contractor for all the convicts who are able to attend the work assigned them. The net receipts for the past year are $10,611.61, which added to previous earnings makes a balance in favor of the Prison of more than $30,000. This is principally invested in the bonds of the State.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

The Geological Survey of the State which has been going on for the past five years is approaching completion. The last Legislature made provision for the publication of the final report, one volume of which will be completed next month. The operations in the field are to cease with the present season, and the second and last volume is expected to be ready for distribution in about one year from the present time. About fourteen hundred pages will be occupied in the entire work, which will be illustrated by numerous plates and accompanied by an atlas. This has been a somewhat expensive undertaking to the State, the printing alone, including plates and maps, being estimated to cost about $10,000; but as it is so near completion it may not be deemed advisable now to interrupt it.

REFORM SCHOOL.

The report of the Trustees and Superintendent of the Reform School will claim your careful consideration. While the institution is apparently expensive, it is a very important one to the State, and its usefulness would be much enhanced if its benefits could be received by a greater number of idle and dissolute boys. At the annual examinations remarkable intellectual progress is shown, and the discipline seems to be excellent. The principal trade acquired by the inmates is not such as will be of much advantage to them in after life, and I would suggest that a change in this particular may be desirable.

TEMPERANCE.

The great evils of intemperance, in a political as well as social and moral view, are too clearly and painfully apparent to admit of question; and I have no doubt of the right and duty of the State to provide some protection for itself and its citizens against those evils. But the important and very difficult question is, what statutory measures are the most practicable and the best for that purpose?

If legislation alone could accomplish the result which is desired, it would seem that it should have been accomplished long before this. For many years past the legislation of this State on this subject has been repeated and ample; its provisions cumulative and stringent, and its penalties and punishments severe. But notwithstanding this, even many of the former advocates of that legislation are now compelled to admit that it has been in a great degree a failure; and the unlawful sale of spirituous liquors, with its consequent intemperance, still continues in the community.

The causes of this are plain. Laws to be effective must be in harmony with public sentiment. But this principle has in a great degree been overlooked or disregarded in our legislation on the subject of temperance; and the result has been, and is, that for want of proper moral support from the public generally, the laws either cannot be, or will not be, enforced. Whichever of these may be the fact, the practical result is the same.

The extent and severity of the existing laws offend the sense of propriety and justice of many of our citizens. The injudicious course of those who in many cases have constituted themselves guardians of the public good, to enforce these laws, has alienated the support of others. Private cupidity and resentment have appeared too often as the motives of prosecution which a regard for the public good alone should actuate. Hence that moral sentiment of the public, which alone can successfully maintain a law, has been wanting. And this being so, additional legislation in the same direction would only aggravate the difficulty; and the proper course for any real and permanent good, is to bring our laws more into conformity with the public feeling and judgment.

I do not believe that the majority of the people of this State desire or will support entirely prohibitory legislation; still less, however, do they desire the unrestricted sale of spirituous liquors. A permissive or license law, in some form, therefore, is necessary. Whether what is desirable for the purpose I have suggested can be best attained by modifications of the existing laws, or by a new system, it will be for you to consider and determine. It would seem that some well defined and well guarded law which shall be imperative throughout the whole State, combined with local option features, giving to individual towns some proper discretion, will be the most judicious at present.

If you undertake to act on the subject, you cannot with propriety ignore the public sentiment of the State. A law which aims to do what has been found to be impracticable, will do nothing. And one below the plane of intelligent public judgment will not stand.

Coming, as you do, from the body of the people throughout the State, and representing every section of it, you can best judge what will be most acceptable. If a law can be framed which shall command the respect of the majority of the people, be honest in its purposes, and easy and certain in its enforcement, it will do more for the cause of temperance and for the public good, than anything which legislation hitherto has done, and all which legislation can successfully attempt.

MILITARY AFFAIRS.

By the action of Legislature of 1869, the law providing for annual military encampments was suspended for five years. That period will expire with the present year, and in default of additional legislation, the law will again be in force. As the State has suffered no injury from the suspension, and has avoided much cost, I respectfully suggest that it be renewed. I believe that this department can be managed so as to essentially lessen the expense, without proving detrimental to its efficiency. The great reliance of the State on the elasticity of our institutions and the patriotism and energy of the people when called upon to leave the pursuits of peace and engage in war, has not been misplaced. Extensive military outlay at this time, therefore, is not demanded, yet it is well to give proper encouragement to the military art, and keep alive that martial spirit which is so prominent a trait of the American character.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

The past year was signalized by one of those financial convulsions, which, at irregular periods, have disturbed and depressed the business of the country; but, while we may congratulate ourselves that the blow was less serious than it has sometimes been, we may hope, also, that we shall sooner recover from its consequences; and our people, mostly engaged in the minor industries of rural life, with small capital and moderate profits, should accept their comparative exemption from the accidents peculiar to most other pursuits, as a partial compensation for the hardships of their condition. That this compensation is by no means slight, is seen in the extraordinary efforts of the great commercial, mercantile and manufacturing interests of the country to prevent a recurrence of financial disorder, by approximating the sounder and safer policy of gold values.

We still have to deplore occasional disturbances of a political character belonging to the late civil war. We cannot doubt that cases of great practical hardship and injustice exist; but they are becoming less, year by year, and we may reasonably hope that the time is not far distant when each State shall be governed by its own people, and so governed that it shall not need our solicitude and sympathy. We earnestly desire, and should seek every means to promote, a feeling of confidence and brotherhood that shall recoil from bickerings and crimination, and find expression only in words of kindness and deeds of charity.

The sufferings incident to the late flood in the Mississippi will not be in vain if the charity "that blesseth him that gives and him that takes" shall teach its appropriate lesson.

CONCLUSION.

Senators and Representatives:

It is impracticable to consider here all the subjects which may properly receive your attention. Matters not adverted to will demand your careful deliberation, and while the interests of the people may require some changes in the laws, great caution should be exercised against too much legislation. It has been affirmed that the wisdom of the legislator is quite as likely to be illustrated in the repeal of old statutes as in the enactment of new. The constitution contains the measure of your authority as well as that of the executive, and we should seek to confine the government strictly within the sphere of its duties. It should recognize the sacredness of personal freedom, and impose no more restrictions upon individuals than is necessary for the safety of society. Laws to be "wholesome and reasonable" should be like those of nature, impartial in design and general in application. Frequent changes, especially of general principles, should be avoided. They perplex and harass men in the quiet and business walks of life, embarrass the courts, and create contentions without corresponding benefits. But a few years ago our public statutes were revised by a commission of jurists, eminent alike for their ability, learning and experience, and after careful consideration their work adopted as the laws of the State. So far as I am aware, changes, which have been made since the adoption of the General Statutes, are to a large extent in matters of routine and detail, but the effect of later action in some instances, I believe, has left the matters upon which it was intended to bear in uncertainty and confusion.

In conclusion I respectfully submit that neither time nor money should be wasted in doubtful or hesitating policy, but that such measures as are clearly and unmistakably for the good of the people should be enacted without delay or indecision, and none other should be adopted. Let the session be an example of promptness, energy and fidelity to the highest interests of those whose servants we are. Keeping in mind the solemn obligations under which we hold these places, and the important duties we have been delegated to perform, let each department of the government here assembled co-operate for the promotion of the supreme good of our beloved State. Readables.

In the United States senate, Thursday, Senator Windom's cheap-transportation resolution was debated at length, and miscellaneous business was transacted. In the house of representatives bills were passed for the establishment of life-saving stations on the coast; deepening the channel at the mouth of the Mississippi River; and to prevent the spread of infectious disease. The Eads plan for improving the mouth of the Mississippi was debated and an evening session was devoted to debate on the Washington moument.

Citizens of Georgetown, Texas, recently took from jail nine criminals, including several horse-thieves, and shot the whole lot. About two years ago a number of horse-thieves, who were also murderers, were confined in the same jail for trial, and were released by a mob of their confederates; and to obviate a recurrence of such eccentric conduct the Georgetowners this time called on Judge Lynch.

The Boston Advertiser pays the following tribute to the memory of a patriot: Sergeant Rooney died at his home in Charlestown on Tuesday forenoon. Although comparatively unknown, no man of whatever rank proved himself a purer patriot or a more faithful soldier. Sergeant Rooney was in the regular army, and when the war broke out the commissioned officers of his company deserted their colors and joined the Confederate army. One of the lieutenants tried to persuade Rooney to follow them, promising to reward him with a commission. Few persons can realize the strength of the temptation: fewer still, perhaps, would have resisted. But the noble fellow spurned the bribe, followed the old flag through the long war, and came out a sergeant still.

The election returns from Oregon so far give Williams, republican, for representative in Congress, 4078; Ludlow, democrat, 3721, and Davenport, independent, 2900. Chadwick, democrat, is probably re-elected secretary of state; Clark, republican, treasurer, Rowland, superintendent of public instruction.

A Deathbed Interview by Telegraph.

The overland telegraph in Australia extends for 1900 miles across the wastes of the insular continent, and the line is greatly exposed to the attacks of the natives, who use the wire to point their spears with and break the insulators in order to secure the sharp edged fragments, with which they scrape the spear blades smooth. In order to guard the line, therefore, each station is a fort. On the evening of February 22 one of these stations was suddenly attacked and in the melee Mr. Stapleton, the master, was fatally wounded. The station was 1200 miles from Adelaide and the sufferer had to be treated for his wounds by Dr. Gosse of that place, by means of consultations over the wire. The case was hopeless, however, and all that could be done to make the situation of Mr. Stapleton somewhat easier to bear was to allow him to exchange a few parting words with his wife, who, like the surgeon, was also 1200 miles away in Adelaide. This was done, and the man and woman who had seen each other for the last time on earth were able, in a measure, to say to each other those words of tenderness which cheer the dying in their last moments, and leave a pleasant remembrance upon the minds of the bereaved. Other persons who were wounded in the affair were successfully treated by Dr. Gosse.

Marine Disaster.

[Exeter News-Letter.]

On Sunday last, a party of seven young men and maidens, bent on an afternoon of pleasure, undertook to have a sail on the Squamscott river; but, unaccustomed to the management of a sail boat, they had not proceeded far on their pleasure voyage, when an unpropitious wind overturned the boat, emptying its cargo of human freight into the briny stream. Fortunately the disaster occurred near the shore, and the entire party (boat included) were rescued with no injury, save a thorough drenching, which it is hoped has partly succeeded in "washing their sins away," and furnishing another moral lesson on the evils of Sabbath breaking.

—Joaquin Miller finding Geneva full of his countrymen, asked to be taken to some place where there were no Americans. The boatman looked at him for a moment, then hopelessly up and down the lake, and away across toward Mount Blanc, and at last shook his head; but suddenly a new idea seemed to strike him, and he lifted his eyes toward heaven.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physicum shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

Local Matters.

City Affairs.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, a relay of sidewalk was granted Mrs. I. Haselton, on Rock street.

The petition of L. M. Perkins for leave to erect awning posts on Daniel street, and the subject of widening Woodbury street at premises of Daniel J. Ayers, were referred to the committee on streets; and the same committee received authority to arrange for purchase of ledge of stone from Alexander Robinson.

The petition of E. H. Balch for an increase of appropriation for sprinkling streets to $500, was presented; and it was voted not to increase the appropriation.

Leave was granted (under the usual restrictions) to William Critchley to open Bridge street to lay drain.

The committee on gas lights were authorized to change the location of the gas light at corner of School and Vaughan streets.

The subject of the fence at the Franklin School house was referred to the committee on school houses, with power to act.

The committee on school houses, to whom was referred the petition for painting the walls of the High School house, reported favorably. The report was adopted the committee to have power to act.

The same committee, to whom was referred the petition for repairs of Haven School house, reported favorably on all the items but floor of concrete or plank in the boys' cellar. The report was adopted, the committee to have power to act.

The committee on bills on their second reading, to whom was referred the bill entitled "an ordinance making appropriations for the year 1874," reported the same with the following amendment:

"Strike out 'one thousand dollars' from the appropriation for Schools and add said sum to the appropriation for rents and repairs of School Houses."

The amendment was adopted. The bill was then read a second time and passed as amended; and then sent to the Common Council for concurrence.

The committee on streets recommended the construction of a plank sewer in Wibird street. The report was adopted.

Rum Did It.

On Friday morning a corres pondent furnished us the following item of news:

The people of Stratham were considerably excited on Thursday by the discovery that a murder had been committed in their town, a man named Thomas Morrissey, residing near the Exeter line, having murdered his wife while drunk. The woman was found dead in bed, and the husband on the floor in a drunken sleep.

As no other particulars could be obtained, we dispatched a reporter to the scene of the reported tragedy, who returned with the following information, communicated by citizens of Stratham and officials of the town. The man Morrissey and his wife were both intemperate, and were known to have visited Exeter on Wednesday, and returned with two pint bottles full of such rum as is sold in Exeter. On Thursday Morrissey made known that his wife was dead, he having found her lifeless body on the floor beside the bed when he woke up from his drunken sleep,—he having gone to bed and left the woman doing some work outside the house. No signs of violence could be found on the body, and the persons best acquainted with Morrissey had no suspicion of any foul play. When parties were investigating the matter they were told by the husband that his wife had a hundred dollars somewhere, and the money was afterward found stowed away. No inquest was considered necessary.

Laconics.

Schooner W. H. Y. Hackett arrived at Doane's wharf on Thursday, from the Western Banks, with 1000 quintals of fish,—the largest spring trip ever landed at this port. Also arrived at same place, same day, schooner Mayor Jones, from South mackereling with 125 barrels.

The Levi Woodbury returned from another trip in search of the cable ships, Friday evening, and will leave the lower harbor again at four o'clock this morning.

If the weather is favorable to-day, the fine schooner Clara E. Simpson will be launched by Mr. Wm. F. Fernald from the Raynes yard at the North-end.

Steamer Appledore, Capt. Ed. Baker, will make two trips to-day, to Rye Beach, leaving here at 9 and 2 o'clock, in order to give persons desirous of seeing the English steamer Faraday and the new cable laid, an opportunity to do so; fare 50 cents. Gov. Weston and ex-Gov. Straw are expected here to-day, to visit the Faraday and witness the landing of the cable. All this of course depends on the Faraday's arriving. For our part, we don't believe there is any such steamer as the Faraday, nor any Atlantic cable to be laid. The whole concern is a hum.

Snooks' Chromo.

[El Paso (Cal.) Journal.]

If the religious press gets ahead of the El Paso Journal we give it fair warning that it must go up on its spine. We have stood the "Sleeping Cherubs," by the Christian Union; we have gazed on the picture of wallseyed virtue with which Brother Talmadge ropes in subscribers from rural districts unmoved. But when the Christian at Work sends a picture of two sore-eyed dogs watching three merino rams, and wants us to pay $20 for it, then, indeed, is the free spirit of an American citizen aroused.

We want it distinctly understood that we are in the chromo business ourselves.

Hereafter, every subscriber who takes the El Paso Journal, will receive a beautiful chromo entitled "Mrs. Snooks Washing the Children." It is one of those beautiful home pictures that at once appeal to the fondest and holiest affections of the human heart. Every man who sees it will at once "Would he were a boy again," when being washed and getting soap in his eyes was one of the regular Sunday afflictions next to catechism.

In the foreground is Mrs. Snooks. Before her is a tub and one of her orphans is struggling in the water. The artist has seized upon the moment when the infant has just opened his mouth for a prolonged solo, but is dextrously choked by his mother's swabbing his voice with a sponge. The manner in which a stream of soapy water is represented as running down into the urchin's right eye is finely done. Into the other eye is thrown all the added emotion of pent up grief and "sorrow that knows no tongue." We defy any man to see this picture without being stirred to his inmost depths. Mrs. Snooks' face is a study. It is such an expression of motherly love, housewifely zeal, and beautiful devotion to duty, that can be likened to nothing except that seen upon the face of our mothers on wash-days and at house-cleaning times.

Three of the children have already been washed. Their rosy countenances, bright with exuberant health, have been further heightened by the hand of the limner, who has depicted them suffering with colds as one result of their baths. At the same time their complexions form an agreeable contrast to the three behind the tub who have not yet been bathed. This is finely done and cost a world of trouble.

The whole forms an agreeable contrast to the naked cherubs sent out by the religious press. It is a domestic scene full of holy joy and tranquilized by a sweet dream like peace.

In order to delicately convey the idea that even in so perfect a home as this sorrow must enter, the artist has depicted one of the children suffering with the measles. The way in which the measle-blotches are struggling with the dirt on his nose, having captured the last named organ, is one of the sweetest things in the chromo line that has ever been presented.

We are now prepared to furnish these chromos to every subscriber to the El Paso Journal. We append a few certificates from prominent individuals:

"True to life. The very atmosphere smells of soap."—Henry Ward Beecher.

"I assure you on my honor that the chromo is so natural that one of my children actually caught the measles from looking at it."—Ben Butler.

"Reminds me of the time when they used to wash me, now many, many years ago." Susan B. Anthony.

"Send us 15,000 dozen of your chromos 'Washing the Children.' We pant to offer them as premiums."—Christian at Work.

"It shows domestic misery in the highest degree. No woman ought to be allowed to have seven children."—Victoria Woodhull.

We trust these testimonials are sufficient. We could append many thousand, but we forbear. Now, let the honest masses show their appreciation of art by coming up and taking the Journal.

Food and Digestion.

In dyspepsia the gastric juice which should dissolve the food is only formed in small quantities, and whatever may be the feeling of emptiness and weakness in such cases, the dyspeptic should eat sparingly. To remedy the evil, the mucous membrane of the stomach, which secretes and emits the gastric fluid, should be stimulated and toned, and the best, in fact the only sure preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does this admirable stomachic promote a sufficient and steady supply of the solvent which converts the food to the purposes of life, but it also regulates the flow of bile, controls the bowels, and has a most invigorating effect upon the nerves. The glow which the first dose diffuses through the system is an earnest of the more permanent vitalizing effects which are produced by its persistent use. It improves the appetite, cheers the spirits, and renders the body hardy and strong.

Don't be Discouraged. Suppose you have "tried fifty remedies" and received no benefit, is there therefore "no balm in Gilead?" Verily there is. Your liver may be congested, your stomach half paralyzed, your nerves quivering, your muscles knotted with torture, your bowels constricted, your lungs diseased, your blood full of impurities—yet in one week after commencing a course of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS you will feel like a new creature. m29 4w

The Hundred Years of existence of the great Chocolate house of Walter Baker & Co., Boston, has only led to renewed efforts to please by a high quality of goods. Alluding to the silver medal awarded this house at the Exposition of 1867, the Paris "L'Indicateur" says:—

"France, until the present time, has always held the first rank in the production of this article, but it seems generally admitted by the most competent judges that this year Walter Baker & Co., of Boston, have taken precedence over all other manufacturers in this line of goods." The Medal of Merit was also awarded at the Vienna Exposition of 1873.

The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.
The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a
NEW BONNET.
It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:
First, We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.
Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.
Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.
Hats, not trimmed,
From One Cent to One Dollar.
Hats, trimmed,

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A letter from Lieut. Hynes, of the British party of explorers who were on the British ship Challenger, to Dr. Hayes of New York, states that the Challenger in all its researches in the Antarctic ocean failed to discover the so-called Antarctic Continent, said to have been discovered by the Wilkes American exploring expedition some years ago. The Challenger went within 1,400 miles of the South Pole and 120 miles further south than Wilkes went.

—The San Antonio (Col.) Herald says: A gentleman who came several thousand miles to view the country with the purpose of purchasing, got a large-sized red ant on him a few days ago, and, stranger as he was, he cavorted around and used as appropriate language as if he had lived here all his life, and moved in the best of society.

—This heated controversy over the fate of Joan of Arc seems entirely unnecessary. Anna Dickinson has a lecture on the subject, and her memory of her childhood's days is very accurate.

FIFTH AND LAST CONCERT

IN AID OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY,

JULY 31, 1874.

In announcing the Fifth and last of the series of Gift Concerts given for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, the Trustees and Manager refer with pride and pleasure to the four which have been already given: The first, December 16, 1871; the second, December 2, 1872; the third, July 8, 1873; and the fourth, March 31st, 1874.

Under their charter, granted by a special act of the Kentucky Legislature, March 16, 1871, the Trustees are authorized to give One More, and Only One More Gift Concert. With the money arising from this Fifth and LAST Concert, the Library, Museum, and other departments are to be enlarged and endowed with a fixed and certain annual income. Such an endowment fund is desired, as will secure beyond peradventure, not only the maintenance of this magnificent establishment, but its constant growth.

THE FIFTH GIFT CONCERT

for the purpose mentioned, and which is positively and unequivocally announced as the Last which will ever be given under this charter and by the present management.

Will come off in the Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

Friday, July 31, 1874.

At this final Concert everything will be upon a scale corresponding with its increased importance. The music will be rendered by an orchestra consisting of one hundred performers selected for their fame in different lands, and the unprecedented sum of divided into twenty-thousand gifts, will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1616 to '20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and consequently above water with Gerrish's island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
For all the Purposes of a Family Physic
CURING
Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaints, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but universal in cure. They purge out the bad humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

THE OCEAN TELEGRAPH.

[Chambers' Papers for the People—1860.]

Hark! the warning needles click,
Hither, thither, clear and quick;
Swinging lightly to and fro,
Tidings from afar they show,
While the patient watcher reads
As the rapid movement leads.
He who guides their speaking play
Stands a thousand miles away.
Sing who will of Orpheus lyre,
Ours the wonder-working wire!

Eloquent, though all unheard,
Swiftly speeds the secret word,
Light or dark, or foul or fair,
Still a message prompt to bear;
None can read it on the way,
None its unseen transit stay.
Now it comes in sentence brief,
Now it tells of loss and grief,
Now of sorrow, now of mirth,
Now a wedding, now a birth,
Now of cunning, now of crime,
Now of trade in wane or prime,
Now of safe or sunken ships,
Now the murderer outstrips,
Now it warns of failing breath,
Strikes or stays the stroke of death.
Sing who will of Orpheus lyre,
Ours the wonder-working wire!

Now what stirring news it brings!—
Plots of emperors and kings;
Or of people grown to strength,
Rising from their knees at length;—
These to win a state, or school;
Those for flight, or stronger rule.
All that nations dare to feel,
All that serves the common weal,
All that tells of government,
On the wondrous impulse sent,
Marks how bold Invention's flight
Makes the widest realms unite.
It can fetters break or bind,
Foster or betray the mind,
Urge to war, incite to peace,
Toll impel, or bid it cease.
Sing who will of Orpheus lyre,
Ours the wonder-working wire!

Speak the word, and think the thought,
Quick 'tis as with lightning caught,
Over—under—lands or seas,
To the far antipodes.
Now o'er cities thronged with men,
Wrest now a lonely glen;
Now where busy commerce broods,
Now in wildest solitudes;
Now where Christian temples stand,
Now afar in Pagan land;
Here again as soon as gone,
Making all the earth as one.
Moscow speaks at twelve o'clock,
London reads, ere noon, the shock;
Seems it not a feat sublime?
Intellect hath conquered Time!
Sing who will of Orpheus lyre,
Ours the wonder-working wire!

Incident on the Mississippi.

A writer in the Michigan Freemason gives the following graphic sketch of an incident occurring during a Masonic excursion on the Mississippi:

It was a magnificient sight to see our immense boat, accompanied by the Lady Gay and the Belle of Alton, their decks crowded with fair ladies and Knights Templar, band of music, distinguished citizens, and invited guests, as they steamed up the Mississippi, then down to Jefferson Barracks, where we all went on shore to spend a pleasant hour, after which we again went on board and steamed merily up the river.

I was standing near the captain. The commander of the Templars came and leaned wearily on the capstan. I turned to Reuben Milton, and whispered in his ear these words: "That man was born to command." He had the form of a Hercules, the head of an Apollo, and the eye of an eagle, and, as circumstances afterward demonstrated, the heart of a lion. Although not so very large, he appeared larger than he really was; he was full and athletic, and still every proportion was a symmetry, and every movement a grace.

While he was still leaning silently on the capstan, and while I was yet analyzing his fine countenance, the captain of the steamer, with pale lips and blanched cheeks, approached the young Templar, and, in a low tone and trembling voice, said:

"Great God, sir! we are sinking! We are snagged, sir, in the bottom, and nothing can save us."

"How long can you keep her afloat?" carelessly inquired the young Templar.

"She may go down in five minutes; she cannot keep afloat more than fifteen," replied the captain.

"Do not make your situation known to any one except your crew, or we will have a panic, and then all will be lost. Signal the Lady Gay to lay-to; none will notice or understand the signal of distress. Get your crew and hands ready to move; I will manage the rest."

"Blow, Warder, blow," said the young Templar, speaking to his ensign, who stood near him, at the same time leaping upon the capstan. Every one was startled by a shrill blast from the Warder's trumpet. A hundred Templars' swords leaped from their scabbards at the blast.

"Attention, Sir Knights," shouted the young commander. "The next ceremony in the programme is for the Sir Knights, ladies and gentlemen, on this boat, to make a visit to our friends on board the Lady Gay. As the steamers are rapidly approaching each other, and cannot be kept but a minute or two together, the movement must be a rapid one. You will form procession at once, and, as the boats come together, pass over the gangway, under an arch of steel, to the lower deck of the Lady Gay. Forward, Sir Knights, to the gangway. Music in front. The band will play, 'The Knight Templars' Quickstep.'"

In obedience to these orders, the Knights formed a double line to the gangway, facing round, with swords crossed above the heads of those forming the procession. In less than eight minutes the whole precious cargo of human life had passed from the Mississippi to the Lady Gay, even to the colored cook, except the two files of Templars, when the young commander ordered: "From the rear, right and left inward wheel, march!" and, filing inward, the Templars rapidly passed over the gangway to the Lady Gay, the young commander being the last to leave. One minute more, and the Mississippi steamer sank to the bottom.

Gov. Weston's Inaugural

Is very generally well spoken of, as being temperate in tone and containing some excellent advice to the democratic legislature, —if the democratic legislators will only heed it, which they won't, as there is too much partizan work to be done in a brief session. About the only clause in the Governor's speech which is found much fault with is the one concerning temperance legislation, in which he says the people do not want absolute prohibition, and still less do they want free rum. This temperance problem is likely to be a snag to the democracy. Gov. Weston's remarks indicate that the democratic leaders fear harm may result to the party if all restrictions are removed from the liquor traffic.—as would very likely be the case,—but the Massachusetts liquor dealers and the New Hampshire prohibitionists demand a deluge of free rum,—the former that the rum trade may be increased and the latter that temperance may be advanced,—and as rum and bigotory put the democratic party in power, their demands will have to be heeded or there will be a muss. It is none of our funeral, however, and it is possible the democratic legislature will have more regard for State than party interests, though we cannot now recall to memory any precedent to justify us in hoping that such will be the case.

Secret-Society Opposition.

The Anti-Secret-Society Association, in session at Syracuse, N. Y., last week, adopted resolutions opposing Free Masonry, because it omits the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, quotations from Scripture, etc., in its forms of prayer; because of the alleged exclusion from membership of all old men in their dotage, young men in their nonage, imbeciles, crippled and maimed persons, all in feeble health, and women,—the persons above all others most needing human sympathy and charity; because of its alleged welcoming of unregenerated, unsanctified pagans, Mahometans, Jews, infidels and nominal Christians to the same altar of worship; because of the alleged exaltation of the square and compass above the Bible, in that they are placed on the altars of all countries, while the Bible is the symbol upon the altars only of so-called Christian countries; because of the alleged introduction into its higher or chivalric degree of so-called Christianity of the sword, a fighting religion; and because of the alleged reintroduction of the Adronis priesthood as after the order of Melchisadec, in opposition to the all-important fact that Christ, the crucified, risen and exalted Saviour, is the only High Priest acknowledged by Christianity. The grangers are opposed because they are god-children of Masonry and Odd Fellowship, and their organizations are most cunningly devised to give speculators the control of the farming interests. Secret temperance orders are also opposed. A plan was adopted to extend the membership of the Anti-Secret-Society Association, if possible, to 100,000 the present year. A constitution and by-laws were also adopted, and a step was taken to raise a fund of $10,000 for the purpose of the association.

At the afternoon session, Thursday, 200 delegates were present. President Blanchard of Wheaton College submitted a preamble and resolutions for the formation of a national political party opposed to secret societies. After long debate and some amendments the report was adopted. The name of the new party is to be "the Americans," and a platform of principles to be framed by a committee of one from each State. The national convention is to be called to nominate presidential candidates. The debate was very warm on the proposition to embody the name of God in the Constitution and platform, which finally was adopted. Pittsburg was selected as the place of the next annual convention. Adjourned sine die.

There has been trouble in Pulaski county, Ky., between citizens and railroad men, the result of a drunken quarrel. A railroad man named Foster was shot and killed by Jeff Mercer, a local Methodist preacher. It is reported that several others were wounded, some sixteen shots having been fired.

In the U. S. House of Representatives, Friday, the bill for improving the mouth of the Mississippi river by the Eads plan was passed, and one for the construction of the Fort St. Philip canal.

Five hundred convicts, who were engaged in the intransigente rebellion at Cartagena, embarked on the Spanish steamer at Oran to be taken back to Spain, and $200,000 worth of money and other plunder was found in their possession.

A Heroic Engineer.

A telegram from Council Bluff, Iowa, says that on Friday morning last, as an extra stock train on the Red Oak Branch of the Burlington and Missouri railway was nearing Farragut, Jack Evans, the engineer, discovered a small child on the track, about sixty yards distant. The engine was reversed and the brakes applied, but the engineer knew that the train could not be stopped in time to save the child. Evans ran out upon the cow-catcher, and when the train had reached within about ten feet of the child he made a flying leap, caught the child in his arms, and both rolled into the ditch in time to escape the train, which was running at fifteen miles an hour. The child, one year old, was uninjured. The engineer sprained his ankle, and was considerably bruised, but not seriously injured.

A Fearful Plot Frustrated.

News reached the Titusville Courier on Thursday, from Parker City, Pa., relative to the arrest of a man named Terence Clune, of Emlington, Pa., and another named John Phinecy, charged with attempting to throw a train of four cars heavily laden with passengers, off the trestle bridge at Bear Creek on the Parker and Karns City Railroad. The plot was attempted on the night of the 10th of April, but as few credited the story the rumor was suffered to die out without an investigation. If the plot had succeeded the slaughter would have been most horrible, as the entire train, with its large load of human freight, would have been dashed to pieces on the rough and rugged rocks in the deep and dark ravine below, the height of the bridge being about ninety feet. Two hundred spikes had been pulled from the rails, across the trestle, and one of the rails displaced. Miraculous as it may appear, the train passed over safely, and none, except the engineer and conductor, and one or two others of the employees, knew the awful danger through which they had passed. The officers of the road kept the matter as quiet as possible, and set detectives W. W. Clay and Darius Magee upon the trail, whose efforts were crowned with success, as above stated.

A Remarkable Cave.

A wonderful cave has been discovered near Pine Grove, Cal. Three men named Stokes, Jameson and Mason explored it for about a mile and a quarter. They found chambers beautifully decorated with stalactites and stalagmites, and a stream of water leaping from the roof into an apparently bottomless pit; also a hot spring emitting sulphurous puffs of steam. In another chamber the walls and rocks were highly magnetic. One of the party who carried a hatchet, had it suddenly wrested from him by a magnetic rock near which he passed, and the combined strength of the party was unable to detach it. Another who had on miners' boots, the soles of which were filled with nails, could walk with difficulty, and happening to step upon a portion of the floor unusually magnetic, found himself suddenly affixed thereto and unable to move. He was compelled to leave his boots there!

The "Blue Laws."

[Boston Advertiser.]

Mr. Clausen's allusion to the Connecticut "Blue Laws," in his speech before the National Brewers' Association, shows that the belief in that mythical code still has a mischievous vitality. For the sake of the truth of history, and for the information of those who, like the president of this association, still believe that Connecticut in the early days had these laws on her statute-books, it may be well to give again, in a word, the origin and history of these "Blue Laws," as they are called.

One hundred years ago this very year, Rev. Samuel Andrew Peters was Episcopal minister of Hebron, Connecticut. The revolutionary spirit was rising all around him in those Connecticut townships, but he himself was a bold, aggressive and somewhat unscrupulous tory, busy with his tongue and with his pen in trying to pour contempt upon a cause very dear to the hearts of the people. The consequence was, that he had to flee for his life. He made his way secretly to Boston, and took ship for England. There he amused himself and tried to plague his enemies by writing and publishing "A General History of Connecticut, by a gentleman of the Province," a book which one writer has described as the "most unscrupulous and malicious of lying narratives," and another says of it, "Its narations are independent of time, place and probability."

If any one will turn to page 63 (and following) of this history, London edition, he will find this whole code of blue laws. They are furnished with quotation-marks as if the author was copying them from some printed or written page, but the descriptive heading, which he gives to them, is as follows: "The laws made by this independent dominion, and denominated Blue Laws by the neighboring colonies, were never suffered to be printed; but the following sketch of some of them will give a tolerable idea of the spirit which pervades the whole." The words italicised are enough to show to any intelligent reader that these laws were purely the concections of his own brain, and that he really meant them to be so understood, though willing that they should do their lying work. If any trace can be found of their existence before the time this history was published in the latter part of the last century, the finder will confer a great favor by communicating the result of his researches to the public.

The colonies of Connecticut were a little later in their origin than those of Massachusetts, and the student of history will be troubled to find any special signs of bigotry or austerity in their early legislation. Indeed the experience of a few years had taught them to avoid certain dangers upon which the Massachusetts colonies had fallen.

The Hotel Clerk.

[Max Adeler.]

I can shake hands with a Governor, sit beside an Alderman, and smoke with a State Senator and never feel my littleness, but when I come to stand in the presence of a modern hotel clerk, I feel that awe and inferiority which tourists feel as they stand in Yosemite Valley and look up at the mountain fops a thousand feet above. There is something about that young man standing behind the office counter of a first-class hotel, which is calculated to hold the common man at a distance; you may gaze at him, if you wish to—in fact he is there to be gazed at—but don't attempt to be familiar. I would as soon think of dining with the crater of a volcano as of going up, extending a hand to hotel clerk and asking him if his family were enjoying tolerable good health. I sometimes dream of being thus familiar, and when I wake up I feel as if I had been frozen. The dignity, asperity, and condensation of the modern hotel clerk! Did you ever notice how he resents the attempted familiarity of travellers? If a man calls him "old boy," or yells: "Say, you fellow there!" no well-bred clerk lets on that he hears. He goes right on reading the morning paper, and finally that familiar traveller has to put on a beseeching look and timidly ask: "Please mister, will you kindly permit me to disturb you while I humbly inquire if the Toledo train leaves at 8 o'clock or at 8:40?" The clerk will raise his eyes from his paper, drop them, raise them to the clock, gently move them round the room, and reply: "I guess so." With what dignity they receive and assign guests! If the traveller asks for a room on the first floor, on account of his legs, the clerk lays back on his dignity and assigns him to the top story as a punishment, and if all the earthquakes that ever quaked were to attempt to alter that clerk's determination, they would get beaten. I used to believe that hotel clerks were like hotel waiters, that a bribe would fetch 'em, but I found out my error when trying to pass a crumbled ten-cent note into the young man's hand, —he drew back with such a look of scorn and contempt on his face that I didn't dare to register at all, but I slept in a barn and breakfasted on cheese and crackers. I heard afterward that he was killed by a railroad collision, but I don't see how any such thing could have even disturbed his dignity.

"—'Mv dear boy," said a fond aunt to a very fast-living nephew, "don't you know that in leading this irregular life you are shortening your days?" "It's quite posible that I may be shortening my days, but then look how I lengthen my nights," was the reply.

Food and Digestion.

In dyspepsia the gastric juice which should dissolve the food is only formed in small quantities, and whatever may be the feeling of emptiness and weakness in such cases, the dyspeptic should eat sparingly. To remedy the evil, the mucous membrane of the stomach, which secretes and emits the gastric fluid, should be stimulated and toned, and the best, in fact the only sure preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does this admirable stomachic promote a sufficient and steady supply of the solvent which converts the food to the purposes of life, but it also regulates the flow of bile, controls the bowels, and has a most invigorating effect upon the nerves. The glow which the first dose diffuses through the system is an earnest of the more permanent vitalizing effects which are produced by its persistent use. It improves the appetite, cheers the spirits, and renders the body hardy and strong.

Don't be Discouraged. Suppose you have "tried fifty remedies" and received no benefit, is there therefore "no balm in Gilead?" Verily there is. Your liver may be congested, your stomach half paralyzed, your nerves quivering, your muscles knotted with lowgrade rheumatism, your kidneys diseased, your blood full of impurities—yet in one week after commencing a course of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS you will feel like a new creature. a29 4w

HAIR VIGOR. In common with many others we have felt a lively interest in the investigations which DR. ALLEN has been making to discover the causes of failure of the hair, and to provide a remedy. His researches are said to have been much more thorough and exhaustive than any ever made before. The result is now before us under the name of ALLEN'S HAIR VIGOR. We have given it a trial, and with full satisfaction. It equals our most favorable anticipations. Our gray hairs have disappeared, or resumed their original color; and a visible crop of soft, silken hair has started on a part of the scalp which was entirely bald.—[Democrat, Abingdon, Va.]

—The Indiana judges stand no nonsense from the bar. A lawyer there lately in the course of his argument used the word "disparagement." "Stop using Latin words," said the Judge, "or sit down." The poor lawyer, undertaking to explain, was ruthlessly fined $20 for contempt.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public, that in addition to being Agent for the famous "DOMESTIC," whose merits are so well known, that I am the only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity for the following first-class sewing machines:

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has overcome the weak points of the former invention, which I am prepared to explain to all who will favor me with a call.

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON."

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.
2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.
3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.
4. Runs for years without Repairs.
5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.
6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.
7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of cog-wheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; has the new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.
8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skillful and experienced mechanics, at the celebrated Remington Armory, Illion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited for the last two years.

Is t o only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle "self-setting;" the needle being straight and self-setting much of the perplexity and trouble usual to beginners or inexperienced operators is avoided, as the needle cannot be set wrong.

It has a positive thread controller and tension, enabling it to sew with equal precision from the most delicate texture to the heaviest material, and to use with equal facility, silk, linen or cotton thread. It uses the same size thread on the under as on the upper side, and sews across the heaviest seams, or from one to many thicknesses of cloth without change of needle, tension, or threads.

The machine is made of the finest material, and of most perfect finish, and no pains or expense is spared to make the machine in all its points fitted to meet the wants of every family wherever introduced. The "Victor" has met with universal favor; and so great has been the increasing demand the past year, that the "Victor" Sewing Machine Company have been compelled to build a new and extensive factory, and to more than double their facilities for supplying the wants of the sewing machine trade. With its recent improvements it is a simple, durable and complete family sewing machine, and I guarantee it will give the purchaser satisfaction.

THE DAVIS.

Since the organization of the "Davis" Sewing Machine Company, nearly five years ago, its business has increased to an astonishing degree. Its sales for the first year amounted to one thousand machines, and each succeeding year its sales have doubled those of the preceding one—an increase of one hundred per cent. per annum.

The "Davis" sewing machines sold in Portsmouth and vicinity during the past few years have given good satisfaction; but the "Davis" machine of the present day has a number of essential points of superiority over the old "Davis" machine, namely:

Among the various improvements we call attention to the Milled Blank Needle, by which device all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same position in relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use. A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having a positive motion and entirely noiseless. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small needles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes, time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machine are new and differ widely from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the wheel feed, and the ratchet or four motion feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is automatically moved forward at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four motioned movement produced by complicated under gear. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to also take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot in both cases comes down on the goods and holds them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be obvious then, that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser-foot is retarding or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must neccessarily be fulled or gathered on to the upper, to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must snap wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the fulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors discard their use in seams requiring strength.

This great defect has excited since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and presents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conclusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity, I remain yours faithfully,

Local Matters.

Fog Hunting.

The individuals who have an idea that all is plain sailing to a newspaper man should have been on the lookout for the Faraday the past week and have met with that most genial of commanders and most wholesouled of gentlemen, Capt. Fengar, of the revenue cutter Levi Woodbury, to tempt one to embark, and old Neptune to put in his claim for certain dues for which mankind is debtor. The weary philosopher who leaves terra firma and marches boldly forth to conquer time may as well prepare a little chloroform-mixture and be prepared for sudden emergencies. A cup of coffee even may charm the confiding individual to place himself outside of his own control. Talk about the power of one's will when the shifting seas make his head swim and the temperance beverage he has taken is performing in his deposit for food like unto a circus contortionist! It is all for a sense of duty the unwary editor ventures to leave home and country to go cable-hunting in a fog, while the unsuspecting reader thinks of him as enjoying a "life on the ocean wave." Rather pleasant in imagination to ride the seas and look with affability upon the labors of the sailors; but to listen to the hoarse whistle of the steamer sixty times an hour from "five o'clock in the morning" until several bells in the rear part of the day, is a monotonous state of affairs that requires nerve and resignation, not to say pluck. Then to have inquiries made by interested friends like Gov. Fred Smyth or Col. John B. McCutchins of the Mirror as to the peculiar state of one's health; to be liable to be the recipient of Col. Hackett's badinage; to be reclining in the cabin with no appetite for anything but rest, and see a tempting array of viands with a hearty collection of bipeds sitting around absorbing them; to listen to the charming stories that go around and the peals of laughter at the climax; to go abroad with the crowd and sit pensively while the others telescope the fog; to fall into a gentle slumber and awake to find Major Morse, Frank Leslie's artist, jus tfinishing a sketch of a somnolent subject which on inspection proves strangely familiar; to listen for a whistle and listen in vain; to be chosen leader of an impromptu band, and collector of finances for payment of said musical organization; to glean information from and study an example in the person of the imperturbable Col. Eastman, whose faith wrought out the success of the undertaking which is now so near a successful conclusion; and finally to write a brief account of it while one's sanctum is filled with those returned chaps discussing the events of the trip; to find one's nose burned within an inch of its existence and his sea-legs laughed at by land-lubbers:—those be the experience of such a day as Saturday when the Levi Woodbury went to sea in a fog, steered over Jaffrey's ledge, saw neither hide nor hair of a cable ship, and returned discouraged temporarily, to find that some coaster had arrived and having sighted the Woodbury, a craft of 450 tons, and reported her as the Faraday, a boat of 6000 tons, had induced the "subs" for the absent correspondents of the Boston papers to telegraph the important—error that the Faraday was just outside the Shoals and was waiting for the fog to depart to splice the cable and land it at Straw's Point, which was at Rye, in the county of Rockingham and State of New Hampshire, at the very latest date known by the individuals of cable-istic characteristics.

Letter of Acknowledgement.

Mayor Miller, having some time ago forwarded by telegraph to Hon. Peter Marcy of New Orleans the sum of $1000, raised by subscription among the citizens of Portsmouth, more recently forwarded to the same gentleman a check for the balance ($539) subscribed, and especially commended any suffering New Hampshire men,—particularly Portsmouth men,—if any such there were in the overflowed districts, to Mr. Marcy's kind offices. The following letter in answer has been received by the Mayor:

NEW ORLEANS, June 1st.

To Hon. Frank W. Miller, Mayor of Portsmouth, N. H.:

Dear Sir: I am in receipt of your esteemed favor of the 25th ult., enclosing a check on the Globe National Bank of Boston, Mass., for five hundred and thirty-nine dollars for the Louisiana Relief Fund, or with discretionary power to dispose of the same where it would do the most good,—especially should there be any New Hampshire or Portsmouth men among the sufferers, I should feel authorized to assist them direct. If I should learn of any such cases I will see their wants attended to,—thanking you for the confidence the authority implies, and also for the pleasure of being the bearer of the large and generous donation from my native city to the poor and suffering citizens of my adopted State. I have placed the donation in the hands of the Chairman of the Relief Committee, who is the Mayor of our city and a gentleman of the highest character, as are all the members of the committee; they have their subcommittees in all of the overflowed parishes, who attend personally to the distribution of supplies. So far their proceedings give general satisfaction. Yours most respectfully, PETER MARCY.

Schooner Clara Simpson will be launched this afternoon, preparations for doing so on Saturday not having been completed.

Schooner Volunteer, Capt. Pertus, from Lingan, C. B., arrived at this port Saturday forenoon and reported having passed the English cable steamer Faraday about twenty miles beyond the Isles of Shoals. Not much.

Trains on the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad now leave Dover for this city at 6:30, 8:30 and 10:50 A. M., and 5 o'clock P. M.; leave this city for Dover at 10 o'clock A. M., and 2:55, 5:45 and 7 P. M.

In the fog Saturday morning the steamer Providence of the Fall River line, off Point Judith, struck a coal-laden schooner from Philadelphia for this city. Three of the crew of the latter jumped on board the steamer, but before any assistance could be rendered to the other two on board, the vessel backed off and nothing more was seen of her for upwards of an hour, on account of the fog. After diligent search the schooner was found, and singular to state, was not injured much, and was leaking but little. The crew were put on board. Her bowsprit and foresail were considerably damaged, and the Captain was found insensible, resulting from being struck by the boom. The schooner is the J. D. Hart.

Mark Dennett, Esq., of Kittery, Me., although eighty-eight years of age is still hale and hearty, and occasionally visits this city for the purpose of examining the old records, in relation to the genealogy of one of the Dennett family.

The plans and specifications for the new bridge from Newcastle to Rye are nearly completed, and proposals for constructing and furnishing materials for it will be advertised for this week. About 95,000 feet of lumber and 180 piles will be required, and a good quantity of the best quality iron; and great care will be taken to make the bridge substantial and entirely safe.

Lent's circus gave two entertainments on the afternoon and evening of Friday, as advertised, both shows being well patronized, and so far as we have heard giving entire satisfaction.

E. Underhill & Co. have engaged the services of Mr. Edward Hickey of Portland, an "extra first-class" harness-maker, and are fully prepared to fill all orders for harnesses of any style desired. Messrs. Underhill & Co. are satisfied that an examination of Mr. Hickey's work will convince any one that his reputation as a mechanic, which is second to none, has been well earned and will be maintained. Harnesses of his make have taken the first premium at one New England Fair and at several Maine State Fairs.

The Court street Christian Society are to hold a strawberry festival on Thursday evening.

Four tons of composition were melted and poured from the ladle at one time, in the moulders' shop at the navy yard, in casting a shoe for the U. S. S. Marion.

The Granite State and Rockett base ball clubs of this city played a game on Peirce's Island, Saturday, in which the Granite States were victorious by a score of 31 to 16.

The ladies of the Methodist Sabbath School will give a Strawberry Festival in the chapel on Daniel street, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, June 9 and 10. Admission 10 cents; open at 7 1-2 o'clock. Strawberrys, ice cream, confectionery and cake will be offered for sale cheap.

A Cat Whipped by Robins.

[Genesee Republican.]

An exciting contest was witnessed in the Court-House yard on Friday last, between a cat and some robins, that is worth chronicling. A robin had a nest under the north stoop of the Court-House, and on Friday her brood of young robins made their first attempt to fly. As one poor, half-fledged bird was laboriously flying near the ground, a tigerish-looking cat spied and gave chase. The bird flew as best it could, but the cat's swift stealthy steps gained upon it, and the fate of the bird seemed sealed. But its terrified cries brought relief, and just as the cat pounced upon and seized it in her mouth, half a dozen old robins lit on her back with a fury that was perfectly astonishing to her catship, and dropping her prey she incontinently turned tail and flew across the yard, the relentless robins pursuing her with the greatest fury, and filling the air with their vengeful cries. Not until the cat took refuge in an adjoining building did the birds give up chase, and return to the young bird. The latter was unhurt, and the noise of the contest having drawn to the spot twenty-five or thirty other robins, it completed its day's practice under ample protection, but amid a clattering of bird tongues seldom heard in Northern climes.

HENDERSON & CO.,
ANNOUNCE THEIR
SPRING OPENING
—OF—
Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.
The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.
The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a
NEW BONNET.
It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:
First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.
Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.
Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.
Hats, not trimmed,
From One Cent to One Dollar.
Hats, trimmed,
From 50 cts. to $10.00.
And five dollar Trimmed Hats will compare favorably with any ten dollar one in the city.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

A Slave of the Ring.

A young woman, who rides horseback in a circus, has communicated her biography to a reporter of the Baltimore American, who publishes its mysteries. She appears, by his report, to be more refined than Miss Josephine Sleary and her associates, in "Hard Times," and she certainly earns a larger salary in a week than the lady who married the celebrated Mr. E. W. B. Childers did in a year. The reporter describes her as a "young and pretty girl, with an innocent, artless manner, but with a quiet consciousness that she is able to take care of herself; dresses very elegantly in a black velvet basque and silk dress, made in the finest style, and with very little jewelry about her." She is the daughter of a celebrated circus rider who was formerly the leading attraction at Astley's; receives $150 a week; in nineteen months has only fallen from her horse twice; had her arm broken in two places, long ago, by a fall; designs all her own costumes, and thinks that French females riders as a class have the most reckless abandon, but Englishwomen most endurance. The reporter inquired whether circus people have any "religious feeling," and was told in reply that jumping through hoops did not prevent her from trying to do good, and that she was a member of a church and in good standing.

Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their application in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals History, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1616 to '20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will sell their own story, whether in the parlor, coupling-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
DYSPEPSIA DEBILITY. DROPSY AND HUMORS,
PERUVIAN SYRUP
(The Peruvian Syrup, a Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an albuminate, and easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

She Made a Mistake.

[Troy Times.]

A ludicrous scene was witnessed on a Rensselaer and Saratoga train recently. A newly-married couple entered the car and took a seat. The husband wanting to smoke, left his wife and went into the smoking-car. The bride began to doze, and while she slept a stranger entered the car, and as it was crowded, quietly took a seat beside the young wife. Shortly she began to nod, and doubtless imagining that her husband was still in the seat, gently reclined toward the stranger, and soon her head fondly nestled on his breast. At this juncture the husband entered. He stood in mute astonishment in the aisle until the lady awoke, and, realizing the situation, drew back in amazement suffused with blushes. Stranger explained, husband was satisfied, and wife tried hard to appear unconcerned.

A Disgusted "Lady."

[Cor. Boston Journal.]

An amusing incident occurred recently on one of the trains from Boston to New York. The cars were very crowded. An elegantly dressed woman occupied an entire seat. Her bundles, bandbox and bag were piled artistically. She was oblivious to the fact that passengers were rushing back and forth to obtain sittings. More than one gentleman drew himself up in front of the imperious dame, and silently plead for the vacant spot. She fanned herself leisurely, lolled in the seat, and evidently thought that things were very comfortable as they were. "Is that seat occupied, Madam?" said a well dressed gentleman, very politely.

"Yes, it is," was the snapping reply. The man walked on. In half an hour the door opened, and in walked a tall, rough fellow, coarse as a Polar bear. His huge beard was uncombed and stained with tobacco juice. His clothes were illy put on, and smelt of the stable. He was ungloved, and brawny, and weighed full 200. He ran his eyes along the car, and caught the seat on which our lady was sitting. He made for it. With great deliberation he seized bundle, bandbox, and bag, put them plump into the lap of the lady, and sat down in the vacant spot like one who intended to stay. If looks could have annihilated a man there would have been a corpse in that car about that time. The man seemed very much at home. He whistled; he spit; he stroked his beard; he threw round his huge arms, and chuckled inwardly at the evident rage of the woman. She left the cars at New Haven, and had hardly gone before the gentleman who was refused the seat reappeared. To some gentlemen who seemed to take a great interest in the proceedings he said: "Did you see how that woman treated me?" "Yes." "Did you see how she was come up with?" "Yes." "Well, that man is a horse doctor that sat down beside her. He belongs to Bull's Head. I gave him a dollar to ride with that woman as far as she went." The car roared.

The President's Financial Views.

The following correspondence on the financial question between the President and Senator Jones, of Nevada, has been made public:

UNITED STATES SENATE CHAMBER, WASHINGTON, June 4, 1874.

To the President.

I was so deeply impressed by the clearness and wisdom of the financial views—some of which you have fortunately reduced to writing—recently expressed by you in a conversation in which I had the honor, with a few others, to be a participant, that I cannot dismiss them from my mind. The great diversities of ideas throughout the country upon this subject, and the fact that public opinion concerning the same is still in process of formation, lead me to believe that the publication of these views would be productive of great good. I venture, therefore, to request of you that I may have a copy of the memorandum to which I have alluded with your permission that it may be made public. I have the honor to be very respectfully your obedient servant, JOHN P. JONES.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4, 1874.

Dear Sir: Your note of this date requesting a copy of a memorandum which I had prepared expressive of my views upon the financial question and which you with others have heard read is received, but at too late an hour to comply to-night. I will however take great pleasure in furnishing you a copy in the morning as soon as I can have it copied. It is proper that I should state that these views were reduced to writing because I had been consulted on this question not only by some of the members of the Conference Committee, but by many other members of Congress. To avoid any and all possibility of misunderstanding I deemed this course both justifiable and proper. With this explanation I enclose you herewith the memorandum referred to. Very respectfully,

U. S. GRANT.

To Hon. J. P. Jones, United States Senate.

Memorandum of views entertained on the subject of Desirable Legislation on the Finances.

I believe it a high and plain duty to return to a specie basis at the earliest practicable day, not only in compliance with legislative and party pledges, but as a step indispensable to lasting national prosperity. I believe further that the time has come when this can be done, or at least begun, with less embarassment to every branch of industry than at any future time, after resort has been had to unstable and temporary expedients to stimulate unreal prosperity and speculation on bases other than coin as the recognized medium of exchange throughout the commercial world.

The particular mode selected to bring about a restoration of the specie standard is not of so much consequence as that some adequate plan be devised, the time fixed when currency shall be exchangable for coin at par, and the plan adopted rigidly adhered to. It is not probable that any legislation suggested by me would prove acceptable to both branches of Congress, and indeed a full discussion might shake my own faith in the details of any plan I might propose; I will, however, venture to state the general features of the action which seems to me advisable, the financial platform on which I would stand, and any departure from which would be in a spirit of concession and harmony in deference to conflicting opinions.

First, I would like to see the legal-tender clause, so-called, repealed, the repeal to take effect at a future time, say July 1, 1875. This would cause all contracts made after that date for wages, sales, &c., to be estimated in coin. It would correct our notions of values. The specie dollar would be the only dollar known as the measure of equivalents. When debts afterwards contracted were paid in currency, instead of calling the paper dollar a dollar and quoting gold at so much premium we should think and speak of paper as at so much discount; this alone would aid greatly in bringing the currencies nearer together at par.

Second, I would like to see a provision that at a fixed day, say July 1, 1876, the currency issued by the United States should be redeemed in coin on presentation to any assistant treasurer, and that all the currency so redeemed should be cancelled and never reissued. To effect this it would be necessary to authorize the issue of bonds, payable in gold, bearing such interest as would command par in gold, to be put out by the Treasury only in such sums as would from time to time be needed for the purpose of redemption. Such legislation would insure a return to sound financial principles in two years, and would, in my judgment, work less hardship to the debtor interest than is likely to come from putting off the day of final reckoning. It must be borne in mind, too, that the creditor interest had its day of disadvantage also when our present financial system was brought in by the supreme needs of the nation at the time.

I would further provide that, from and after the date fixed for redemption, no bills, whether of national banks or of the United States, returned to the Treasury to be exchanged for new bills should be replaced by bills of less denomination than $10, and that in one year after resumption all bills of less than $5 should be withdrawn from circulation, and in two years all bills of less than $10 should be withdrawn. The advantage of this would be strength given to the country against time of depression resulting from war, failure of crops, or any other cause, by keeping always in the hands of the people a large supply of the precious metals. With all smaller transactions conducted in coin many millions of it would be kept in constant use, and of course prevented from leaving the country.

Undoubtedly a poorer currency will always drive the better out of circulation. With paper a legal tender and at a discount, gold and silver become articles of merchandise as much as wheat or cotton. The surplus will find the best market it can. With small bills in circulation there is no use for coin, except to keep it in the vaults of banks to redeem circulation. During periods of great speculation and apparent prosperity there is little demand for coin, and then it will flow out to a market where it can be made to earn something, which it cannot do while lying idle. Gold, like anything else when not needed becomes a surplus, and like every other surplus it seeks a market where it can find one. By giving active employment to coin, however, its presence can, it seems to me, be secured and the panics and depressions which have occurred periodically in times of nominal specie payments, if they cannot be wholly prevented can at least be greatly mitigated. Indeed I question whether it would have been found necessary to depart from the standard of specie in the trying days which gave birth to the first legal-tender act, had the country taken the ground of no small bills as early as 1850.

Again I would provide an excess of revenue over current expenditures. I would do this by rigid economy and by taxation where taxation can best be borne. Increased revenue would work a constant reduction of debt and interest, and would provide coin to meet demands on the Treasury for the redemption of its notes, thereby diminishing the amount of bonds needed for that purpose. All taxes after redemption begins should be paid in coin or United States notes. This would force redemption on the national banks. With measures like these or measures which would work out such results I see no danger in authorizing free banking without limit.

No Dead-Heads.

[N. Y. World.]

"The House post-office committee proposes changes in the postage rates and system which are an intermixture of good and bad. Daily, semi-weekly, and weekly newspapers or other periodical publications not less frequently issued are all to prepay one cent and a half a pound for postal service. If less frequently issued, as fortnightly, monthly, quarterly, or yearly, periodical publications are to prepay three cents a pound. Prepayment is to be made at the office of mailing after weight in bulk, by a special adhesive stamp. So far, good. This system of payment, of prepayment, in bulk, by weight with stamps, will effect a great economy, simplicity, and expedition in the postal service.

But the same committee has yielded to the foolish clamor of newspaper publishers who do not perceive the great importance of managing the postal service upon the inflexible rule of no dead-heads; and also proposes that newspapers shall go free through the mails to all subscribers in the county of their publication, and that exchanges between newspaper officers shall go free. There is no reason or good sense in this discrimination. The dead-head system is not to be extirpated from every department of the postal service. Newspaper publishers are not paupers. They can afford to pay for what they receive. * * * * * Other changes are reported by the committee, but these are of widest interest. We trust that Congress having abolished the dead-head system in its own behalf will tolerate no newspaper dead-heads. Perish the breed."

The position of the World should be that assumed by every newspaper in the land. The idea of government making any exception in favor of weak newspapers, is as absurd as it is unjust. The newspaper that is not worth the postage of one cent and a half per pound, cannot be worth sustaining; and its demise would of necessity be a relief to its publishers and its friends. The country papers are eager to denounce the granting of special privileges to Congressmen, railroads, etc., and the alacrity with which they inconsistently claim exemption from just taxation is as pitiable as it is painful to witness.

Readables.

An attempt was made Thursday night by two or three unknown men, to rob the Convent de Notre Dame in Waterbury, Ct. The watchman, James McGowan, stationed at the building, started in pursuit, but was turned upon and stabbed in six places, probably fatally. The burglars secured no plunder.

Under it there were fifteen persons in boats. All are supposed to have escaped. The boats were loaded with iron ore. The span of the bridge was 240 feet long. Loss $40,000.

Tampico, Ill., had a tornado Saturday night, by which twenty-one houses were destroyed, two grain-elevators thrown down, a railroad depot damaged and other buildings injured. Food and Digestion.

In dyspepsia the gastric juice which should dissolve the food is only formed in small quantities, and whatever may be the feeling of emptiness and weakness in such cases, the dyspeptic should eat sparingly. To remedy the evil, the mucous membrane of the stomach, which secretes and emits the gastric fluid, should be stimulated and toned, and the best, in fact the only sure preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does this action, and the stomachic promote a sufficient and steady supply of the solvent which converts the food to the purposes of life, but it also regulates the flow of bile, controls the bowels, and has a most invigorating effect upon the nerves. The glow which the first dose diffuses through the system is an earnest of the more permanent vitalizing effects which are produced by its persistent use. It improves the appetite, cheers the spirits, and renders the body hardy and strong.

Don't be Discouraged. Suppose you have "tried fifty remedies" and received no benefit, is there therefore "no balm in Gilead?" Verily there is. Your liver may be congested, your stomach half paralyzed, your nerves quivering, your muscles knotted with torture, your bowels constricted, your lungs diseased, your blood full of impurities, yet in one week after commencing a course of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS you will feel like a new creature. 429 4w

C. E. MYERS & CO.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public, that in addition to being Agent for the famous "DOMESTIC," whose merits are so well known, that I am the only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity for the following first-class sewing machines:

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has overcome the weak points of the former invention, which I am prepared to explain to all who will favor me with a call.

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON."

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.
2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.
3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.
4. Runs for years without Repairs.
5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.
6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.
7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of top-wheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; has new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.
8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skillful and experienced mechanics, at the celebrated Remington Armory, Ilion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited for the last two years.

Is t e only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle "self-setting;" the needle being straight and self-setting. Among the various improvements we call attention to the Milled shank Needle, by which device all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same position in relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use. A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having a positive motion and entirely noiseless. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small needles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes, time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machine are new and differ widely from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the wheel feed, and the reciprocating or vibration feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is automatically moved forward at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four motioned movement produced by complicated under gear. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to also take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot in both cases comes down on the goods and holds them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be obvious then, that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser foot is retarding or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must neccessarily be fulled or gathered on to the upper to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must snap wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the fulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors discard their use in seams requiring strength.

This great defect has excited since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and prevents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conlusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity, I remain yours faithfully,

Arrival of the Faraday.

The Cable Successfully Laid.

An Immense Ship!

Monday forenoon, at an early hour, it was reported that the steamship Faraday was in the offing, a report which turned out to be correct, the big vessel having actually arrived, after finishing her first share of the big job of laying the new ocean-telegraph cable.

Revenue cutter Levi Woodbury got away at 9:30 A. M., the cable ship Faraday being discovered off White Island about a dozen miles from Straw's Point. By invitation of Collector Howard, Col. Arthur M. Eastman, agent of the cable company, Col. Hackett of the Governor's staff, and five members of the press representing New York, Boston and Portsmouth papers took passage, a larger party starting an hour after in tug Clara Bateman. Pilot boat No. 2 had boarded the Faraday at one o'clock, Sunday afternoon, having been in search for several days, the fog being so dense that the ship's guns were the only means of guidance. Pilot Preble took charge 25 miles south-east of White Island, the Faraday having but three hours' cable to lay. News being sent to Portsmouth, every place of observation was occupied by citizens anxious to get a glimpse of the long-expected vessel. Every available team was quickly put in use, and there was a grand rush of pedestrians as well as horse-flesh to Straw's Point.

At 10:30 the Woodbury arrived alongside the Faraday and both vessels dipped their flags, the Faraday, in charge of the pilot, proceeding at increasing speed for her anchorage in shore. The cutter fired a gun as a signal for her to heave-to, and raised the revenue flag. The Faraday's screw soon ceased to work, and Capt. Fengar, Col. Eastman, Collector Howard and Col. Hackett boarded her as official representatives of the government and State. A boat was sent for the reporters aboard the cutter, who were put in possession of all the particulars that the gentlemen aboard could give, and each was ready to furnish all the information needed. The Faraday appears like a huge manufactory, has 74 souls aboard and a well-filled larder, including cattle, sheep, chickens, etc. The officers report the best of weather during the trip from Berry's Head, but the thick fog caused a delay of two or three days, no cable being laid on Sunday, the Ambassador with the shore end not having sailed until the 2d of June and connection with the land being impossible before Thursday.

The cable was buoyed ten miles beyond the Shoals. The cutter Woodbury was twenty miles north of the Faraday on Saturday, and would have sighted her but for the fog. As the process of cable laying was finished before the members of the press boarded her, Mr. Carl Siemens, owner of the vessel, and contractor for the cable, had the machinery for laying the cable set in motion and laid several miles of it for the purpose of exhibiting the operation, afterward having it drawn aboard again. The vessel has machinery for paying out, machinery for hauling in, machinery for measuring the strain on the cable, and machinery for steering the vessel, which is a double-ender and has twin screws at each end, as well as three keels, the latter keeping her nearly as steady as if in harbor. The cable was given a coat of white-wash as it passed over the quarter into the sea, and an electrician tested each coil as it came out of the tanks and was replaced by water pumped in. There are three of these tanks, each forty-two feet in width and thirty feet in height. A full view of these tanks is afforded by windows opening from the test room between decks. Several large buoys of iron remain on board, not being needed. The one used for buoying the cable has a flag surmounting it. By the steam apparatus, one man is enabled to steer the vessel, while four are required without it. The propellers aid in steering. The cable crew and ship's crew have separate duties, not interfering with each other. The shore ends of the cable weigh 22 tons to the mile. Of the deep-sea cable, the Faraday still has 116 knots on board.

The party aboard the Faraday, which vessel is named in honor of the great electrician, Prof. Faraday, received the guests from the revenue cutter joyfully, and Captain Trott tendered them a hearty English dinner at which toasts were drank in honor of the President, the Queen, the U. S. Government and citizens, the officers of the Faraday, Capt. Trott, who was greeted with cheers, Col. Eastman, the indefatigable agent whose persistency made the American cable a possibility, the Sieman Brothers, without whose action the cable would not have been manufactured and laid, and others, responses being made by Capt. Trott, Collector Howard, Mr. Oliphant, Chief Engineer Fortune, Mr. Siemans, Chief Engineer Loeffler, Col. Hackett, Col. Eastman and others. It is understood that a complimentary dinner is to be tendered to the officers of the Faraday and the Cable Co., this evening at the Rockingham House, by the citizens of Portsmouth.

The press was represented on this occasion by Messrs. Morse of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Paper, Welch of the Boston Globe, Marston of the Boston Herald and Portsmouth CHRONICLE, Hackett of the Advertiser, Miller of the Associated Press, Gardner of the Boston Journal, Huse and Peabody of the Newburyport Herald, Thayer of the Boston Post, and Clarke of the Manchester Mirror, none of whom, we are happy to say, suffered from mal de mer.

The capital stock of the Direct United States Cable Company, every dollar of which is paid in, is £1,350,000 sterling.

The iron steamship Faraday was built expressly for the laying of submarine telegraph lines, and is in size next to the Great Eastern. She is 360 feet long by 52 feet beam, and 38 feet in depth. She registers 5000 tons, but her carrying capacity is over 6500 tons.

The following is a list of officers of the Faraday and electricians on board:

Samuel Trott, Commander;
W. Faweus, Chief officer;
Mr. Tothill, 2d officer;
I. P. Maypoe, 3d officer;
H. Kendall, 4th officer:
W. Fortune, Chief Engineer;
I. Swinbourne, 2d Engineer;
Mr. Oliphant, Mr. Blanchford, } Representatives of the Direct U. S. Cable Co.
Mr. Carl Siemens, partner in the firm of Siemens Brothers, London, contractors of the cable for the Direct United States Cable Co., owners of S. S. Faraday;
L. Loeffler, Chief Engineer of Staff for laying the cable.
E. Lauckert, Chief Electrician;
I. R. Brittle, O. Schraunn, } Engineers for laying the Cable.
Messrs. T. Sack, Dusselhorst, Lundberg, Paluskiewicz, Dixon, West, Rowley, Richardson, Leith, Netherville, Trojanowski, Kirmse. } Assistant Engineers.
Messrs. Shanahan, Quatroche, Tettenborn. } Assistant Electricians.
Dr. Dehms, Consulting Electrician;
Captain Anderson, Naval Assistant to Engineering Staff.
—— Griggs, M. D., Surgeon.

There is also a numerous staff of firemen, cable hands, etc.

Rest, Warriors, Rest!

After many days spent by the newspaper men in watching for the arrival of the cable steamers, in yachting in the Levi Woodbury and coloring their noses a suspiciously brilliant crimson,—sun and salt water did it,—the "Faraday" has arrived and moored to one of the government buoys in the lower harbor, having successfully accomplished her part of the work of laying the cable from Torbay to Rye Beach, and buoyed the end to await the advent of the "Ambassador" with the shoal-water section. So many times had the huge steamer's arrival been announced, the announcement each time proving unfounded, that grave doubts as to the existence of any such steamer had begun to take possession of the public mind, and the rumor on Monday morning that "the Farady is in sight" did not win implicit credence. But it was a fact, we are happy to say, and the patriotic newspaper men who have been sacrificing themselves for the good of the public, and their dinners because Neptune demanded it, are about done steaming around and fancying that they are braving all the hardships and perils of the ocean. All's well that ends well. We only hope the color of the reporters' noses will not occasion injurious suspicions, and that no undue surprise will be felt seould they be heard to swear vigorously, after the manner of seafaring men in general,—their friends should remember that old habits cannot be broken off in a day.

Laconics.

The schooner yacht "Bonita," well found and in good order for sea, is offered for sale, by Job Jenness & Son or M. T. Betton & Co..

Mr. John S. Tilton, "Natker," has a neat and well-stocked harness and trunk store in Rogers Block, where he is ready to attend to all orders for new work of any kind, or for the repairing of anything in his line which may be sent in. Whips, horse-covers, combs, brushes, etc., are always on hand in large variety.

Mrs. Samuel Lamprey gives notice in another column that she is prepared to preserve natural flowers,—wreaths, bouquets, etc.,—so that they shall be practically everlasting, retaining all the beauty of fresh gathered flowers for an indefinite period. We have not seen any specimens of her work in this line, but her fine taste and skill in the making of wax flowers are well known in this city, and she can undoubtedly do all she promises with natural flowers.

The schooner J. D. Hart, from Philadelphia for this city with coal, reported in Monday's CHRONICLE as having been in collision off Point Judith with steamer Providence, arrived at Newport, R. I., Saturday evening. Capt. Burgess and a seaman named William Coombs are considerably injured, and are in the care of Port-Physician Boone. The bowsprit, that entered the hawse-pipe of the steamer, the mainsail and part of the shrouds are carried away, together with the rail and ten stanchions. The main boom and gaff are broken. The damage is about $500. The schooner will have to repair at Newport before proceeding. The schooner's head gear and a portion of her mainsail were picked up by the Providence. Had not the schooner been seen by the steamer in time for the latter to greatly check her speed the consequences of the collision might have been serious, as the steamer had a large number of passengers on board, many of them being "summer cottagers" for Newport.

HENDERSON & CO.,
ANNOUNCE THEIR
SPRING OPENING
—OF—
Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.
The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.
The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a
NEW BONNET.
It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:
First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.
Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.
Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.
Hats, not trimmed,
From One Cent to One Dollar.
Hats, trimmed,
From 50 cts. to $10.00.
And five dollar Trimmed Hats will compare favorably with any ten dollar one in the city.
SASH RIBBONS, - - - - - - - 25 cents per yard.
SILK TIES - - - - - - - - - 20 cents each.
FRAMES - - - - - - - - - - 15 cents each.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A little fellow, five or six years old, who had been wearing undershirts much too small for him, was one day, after having been washed, put into a garment as much too large as the others had been too small. Our six-year-old shrugged his shoulders, shook himself, walked around, and finally burst out with, "Ma, I do feel awful lonesome in this shirt."

—Complaint was made before a church in Parkersburg, W. Va., recently, that one of the members sold milk on Sundays. Investigation accidentally revealed the fact that the minister and one of the deacons were among his regular customers, and the matter was dropped as savoring too much of intolerance and illiberality.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are dispensed with.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly 2 feet by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1616 to '20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish Island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the work of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.

being able to distinguish to which it belonged, the whole multitude, thinking perhaps the captain might be defective in hearing, would respond with the full strength of their lungs, "A-E-A-R-Y-E-!" The execution of the second command was so successful that the third followed instantly, and with what almost seemed an exhibition of temper, "You cursed devils, clear out; go to ——!" Notwithstanding some thought this last command a little disrespectful language, the captain at the moment was immensely popular and three rousing cheers went up for him for his announcement of victory. They had done their duty to their country as requested by the faculty, solved Smith's problem, taken the salutary exercise advised by Upham, and been successful in one experiment that Cleaveland acknowledged he had never tried. Glory enough for one day.

Their own officers resumed command, they rushed into line to the tune of Yankee Doodle, reformed, and after marching with lively step through the village, returned to the college grounds and were dismissed amid cheers and congratulations. Glorious Young America! how I would rejoice to see you again as you were at that time, in the vigor and joy of youth. If my memory is not at fault, there was Gardner, bright enough then, if he was a Know-nothing Governor afterwards. G. S. Palmer, with his pockets stuffed with rags and lint, did not dream that he would have use for such things in charge of one of the celebrated hospitals of the rebellion. Vail, with a face as smooth as a woman's and his sharp black eyes glistening through an enormous buffalo moustache, did not look much like a professor of a theological institution, fitting young men for the ministry. Howard B. Abbot, I think, was one of those detailed by the commander-in-chief to address the troops after their return, and a guard was sent to notify him and escort him to headquarters. He bid defiance to military rule, and quoted in the old Roman style but with words slightly changed: "war is my trade; I shall not waste my breath in words." He then attempted to retreat, but the guard, anticipating his movements, divided. One part pursued him up stairs, through the south scuttle of one of the colleges, along the roof, then through the north scuttle, down the stairs until he was met by the other part of the guard, surrounded, captured and marched to the field, where he aroused the courage and patriotism of the soldiers anew by a thrilling address. If he should enter his pulpit in that rig now and make use of the same language—well, I think he would attract the closest attention of the congregation.

John A. Andrew, already a little inclined to corpulency, wore a suit of clothes of ample dimensions, stuffed to fullness by something less than a bale of cotton. His excuse was that he should go into the thickest of the fight, and if the cotton protected him from bullets, he could accomplish more for his country. But lest his motives might be misconstrued, and his condition ascribed to fear rather than to grief for the necessities of his State, which obliged her to call her boys out of school in her defence, he accounted for his suddenly changed appearance by inscribing upon his knapsack, "A plague upon sighing and sorrow. It blows a man up like a bladder." He little thought then, or when in the evening he was celebrating the events of the day by singing in impromptu verse, "When war's shrill trumpet blasts were heard Old Bowdoin's pines among," that his next military experience would be as governor of Massachusetts, fatigued and anxious, pressing forward his regiments for the defence of Washington.

Scores of brilliant names I might mention. They are scattered here and there, some in law, some in medicine, some in the ministry, some in commerce, some in the army, some in the navy, some in foreign countries, and many have gone to their final home.

Daily Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1874.

A Modest Crowd.

We admire modesty; and for this reason we are overwhelmed with admiration for the modest individuals who recently met in convention at Syracuse, N. Y., to devise ways and means for exterminating Masonry, Odd Fellowship and other secret organizations, and called themselves, "The National Christian Association!" An old-time convention once "resolved, that we are the saints;" but these Syracuse conventionists went a good deal further, and virtually resolved that anybody who dared to differ from them in opinion could not possibly be a saint. They are particularly severe upon the "anti-Christian and anti-republican agency," Free-Masonry,—what do they know about it, anyway,—and propose to "expose, resist and exterminate" it and all other secret societies. Apparently they have undertaken considerable of a job, compared to which paying off our national debt is a mere bagatelle. The Boston Globe delicately suggests that if the census of the Syracuse convention could be taken, it might be found that a majority of its members were unsuccessful candidates for admission to one or another of the secret societies they feel so badly about; and the New York Journal of Commerce goes for these self-righteous lunatics, who insist on all men being Christians according to their pet plans and specifications, as follows:

"The persons engaged in the crusade against secret societies ought to be ashamed of the specious pretence of their chosen name—'The National Christian Association.' This is a pharisaical assumption that secret societies are necessarily hostile to Christianity, as they are far from being. Some of these societies are political in their aims, like the Grangers. Others are mutually protective and social, like the Free Masons and Odd Fellows. Others have reforms to work out, like the temperance brotherhoods. And others, as the trade-unionists, are, besides being mutually assisting, agitators for overturning all the natural laws of labor and capital, supply and demand. These organizations have various objects of existence, and some of them we do not like, but there is no reason why they should be attacked as anti-Christian. A man may be a perfectly good Christian and belong to any number of secret societies, provided they do not break the laws of God and man.

The objects of the 'National Christian Association' are officially declared to be 'the exposure, resistance and extermination of all secret societies, Free Masonry particularly, and all other anti-Christian and anti-republican agencies.' As we read the proceedings of the convention of these people at Syracuse, we discover that the real game is something quite different from that so ostentatiously proclaimed. The 'National Christian Association' is nothing but a rival of the Grangers, started by the politicians for political ends. The Masons, the Odd Fellows, and the rest, are lugged in for effect only—to entice into the new party fold all who are on principal opposed to those bodies. We notice that not a word is said against the trade-unions—the most dangerous of all the secret bands, and it is evident that the 'National Christian Association' is perfectly willing to pass those by, if it can thereby make votes.

Affecting to be open and above-board, the new movement is doubtless as secretly managed as any of the bodies which it vainly seeks to annihilate. There can be no objection to a fair stand-up fight, on the general question of the wisdom or folly of secret societies; but it vexes every honest mind to see the attack made with the hypocritical professions which come so smoothly from a few fanatics at Syracuse."

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5th.

The great subject of conversation is the new Secretary of the Treasury. Everybody seems inclined to give him a good send off. He is from the only class of men who could gain reputation from the position; he has no experience in financial matters, has no theories to support or oppose, and can use his common sense, of which he has an abundance, untrammelled. He has a large, powerful physique, with a head to match, and a frank, prepossessing countenance. When he took possession of the office and received the congratulation, and introductions of his subordinates, he seemed entirely at his ease; and when Dr. Mary Walker pushed herself in among them, there was none of the annoyance a small soul would have felt and she passed out self-satisfied, and satisfied with the Secretary. There was no inflation in his appearance and no contraction under the scrutinizing examination of those around him. He looks like a man, that tap him where you may, would give out the ring of true metal; and such is the character all his army friends give him.

Mr. Richardson goes to the Court of Claims, for which quiet place he is much better fitted than for the one he has left. Mr. Sawyer is soon to go out, the new Secretary having made it a condition that he should have the selection of his assistants. Banfield's resignation makes a change of all who had anything to do with the Sanborn contracts.

What may result from the Committee of Conference over the currency bill will be known before this reaches you. It can have but little effect, whatever it may be. People are in an economical mood, and it is fashionable, as well as convenient, to make your old clothes do more duty, and any thing else you have. That of itself alone, makes dull times. It is a season of settlements and paying up, instead of borrowing and opening new accounts. Hard Pan is being reached, from which, after a season of rest, all kinds of business will revive.

The President's views on Finance, as given in his communication to Senator Jones, will probably prevent the passage of any measure at this session. The bill now under consideration, if passed, would be vetoed. It is difficult to see what would be the result of repealing the legal tender future of our greenbacks, beyond adding twelve per cent. to every debt of every kind payable in currency. This would be the effect unless it was provided to operate only upon subsequent contracts, or a scaling of debts was provided for.

A statement was made in the Senate debate on transportation, by Mr. Hayer of California, that a cargo of tea could be brought from China through the Suez canal to New York, and sent to Chicago cheaper than it could be brought to San Francisco and sent there. And that a whaler could take oil by San Francisco round Cape Horn to New Bedford and get it to Chicago cheaper than he could land it at San Francisco and get it to Chicago by rail.

The hot weather of the last ten days has brought forward vegetation rapidly. Strawberries are in profusion. The peach crop promises better than expected, and is hoped to be equal to half the usual amount. The grass crop is very fine, and both here and south of here, is receiving more attention than formerly. A South Carolina cotton planter told me that a neighbor of his was beating him badly in income, from raising clover alone. He said they had shipped from Salisbury to go to the east parts of the State, more than fifty thousand dollars worth of hay, the last year, where none had ever been shipped before.

—A Maine woman has hair seven feet and five inches long—too long to be available for use in butter.

—An Ohio husband sold his oxen to get money for his wife to elope with, but he doesn't want any sympathy. He says he'd have thrown in a horse or two if she had demanded it.

Readables.

The Mayor of Matamoras has ordered the Chief of Police of Ranches to prevent the passage of cattle over the Rio Grande either way. This order, if enforced, will probably break up the stealing of cattle on both sides of the river.

The Rhode Island legislature ballotted for U. S. Senator, Tuesday, and there was no choice. In the Senate 36 votes were cast, and Gen. Burnside received 15, Howard 6, Dixon 5, Lawrence 3, Hart 2, and Sprague, Sheffield, Barstow, Brown and Hazard, one each. In the House, 70 votes were thrown, Burnside having 24, Dixon 14, Barstow 9, Sprague 5, Sheffield 5, Howard 4, Jenckes 3, Lawrence 2, and Arnold, Brown, Prinney and Padelford, one each.

Chicagos 8, Bostons 3; Athletics 12, Philadelphias 4; Mutuals 8, Baltimores 1.

The thunder storm of Sunday night was one of unusual severity in portions of New England and in New York State, while reports of casualties come from some more distant points. In New York State, besides the casualties reported a severe storm raged on Onondaga Lake, and considerable loss of life by drowning is reported. A girl in Webster, Mass., died from fright. In Newport, R. I., the storm was of unprecedented severity. Several valuable horses were killed by lightning. Much damage to property by the wind and the lightning is reported. A freshet, doing considerable damage, was caused by the rain in Winsted, Conn.

An account of an interview between a reporter of the New York Sun and Stokes, the slayer of James Fisk, Jr., has been going the rounds of the papers. Mr. Stokes says he always treated his wife kindly, and evidently thinks himself ill-used by her because she applied for a divorce from him, and got it. He said: "had she been in my place I would have flown to her relief." That sounds first-rate,—but who believes it? If Mrs. Stokes was a confessed adulteress, and confined in a penitentiary for a homicide which was the direct result of her infamy, who believes her husband would have "flown to her?" What is sauce for the gander should be sauce for the goose.

Food and Digestion.

In dyspepsia the gastric juice which should dis solve the food is only formed in small quantities, and whatever may be the feeling of emptiness and weakness in such cases, the dyspeptic should eat sparingly. To remedy the evil, the mucous membrane of the stomach, which secretes and emits the gastric fluid, should be stimulated and toned, and the best, in fact the only sure preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does this admirable stomachic promote a sufficient and steady supply of the solvent which converts the food to the purposes of life, but it also regulates the flow of bile, constipates the bowels, and has a most invigorating effect upon the nerves. The glow which the first dose diffuses through the system is an earnest of the more permanent vitalizing effects which are produced by its persistent use. It improves the appetite, cheers the spirits, and renders the body hardy and strong.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public, that in addition to being Agent for the famous "DOMESTIC," whose merits are so well known, that I am the only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity for the following first-class sewing machines:

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has over come the weak points of the former invention, which I am prepared to explain to all who will favor me with a call.

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON."

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.
2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.
3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.
4. Runs for years without Repairs.
5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.
6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.
7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of cog-wheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; is the new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.
8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skillful and experienced mechanics, at the celebrated Remington Armory, Ilion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited for the last two years.

Is the only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle "Davis" sewing machines sold in Portsmouth and vicinity during the past few years have given good satisfaction; but the "Davis" machine of the present day has a number of essential points of superiority over the old "Davis" machine, namely:

Among the various improvements we call attention to the Rifled Shank Needle, by which devices all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same position in relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use. A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having positive motion and entirely noiseless. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small needles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machine are new and differ widely from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the vibrating, the rotary, or four motion feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is automatically moved forward at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four motioned movement produced by complicated under gear. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to also take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot is then caused to come down on the goods and hold them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be obvious then, that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser-foot is retaining or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must necessarily be fulled or gathered on to the upper to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must snap wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the fulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors direct their work to be done requiring strength.

This great defect has excited since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and presents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conclusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity, I remain yours faithfully,

Tally One, for Horace!

The "fun" in the State legislature has fairly commenced. On Tuesday the democrats introduced their bill for gerrymandering this city, so that with a minority of voters they will have a majority in the City Councils, and also to take from the Mayor the veto power,—an acknowledgment that they have no hope of carrying the city by fair means. This little bill they strove to have committed without printing, a virtual adoption of the "gag rule," but J. Horace Kent, Esq., of this city, fought it in capital style, and (aided indirectly by a resolution introduced by Mr. Burrows, of Plymouth, the democratic member who should be Speaker,) succeeded in having it tabled and ordered to be printed,—so the democrats won't be able to keep their nice little partizan scheme quite so dark as they had hoped to do. Good for Kent!

Laconics.

Capt. Thacher advertises twenty-five soda-water tickets for one dollar in greenbacks of the realm, cash on delivery. This brings soda-water down to four cents a glass,—no necessity for even the poorest individual to drink bad whiskey now.

Vichy water, from France, bottled under the supervision of the French government, can be procured of Charles E. Laighton & Son. See advertisement.

The instrument house of the Direct United States Cable Company, on this side of the Atlantic, will be an ornamental structure on Straw's Point. A reëntrance house will be erected at Berry Head, Nova Scotia, and the Old World terminus will be at the extreme west end of Ireland.

Schooner Light of Home arrived at Doane's wharf on Sunday from the Western Banks, with 800 quintals cod-fish.

Schooner Clara Simpson was successfully launched from the Raynes yard on Monday, by Mr. Wm. F. Fernald, the builder. She is a three-master, a very handsome vessel, built of the best materials and put together in the most thorough manner.

Boatswain William Black, U. S. N., whose death in Chelsea, Mass., at the age of 85 years and 3 months, is announced in the usual place in this paper, entered the navy as boatswain in March, 1835, and at the time of his death had been in the service over 39 years.

Steamer Queen of the Merrimack, Capt. Morrill, made an excursion trip Thursday from Newburyport to Rye Beach and the cable steamer Faraday, bringing out a large party.

The Court Street Christian Society will hold a Strawberry Festival at Congress Hall on Thursday evening, June 11th. Strawberries and cream, ice cream, lemonade, confectionery, fruit, cake, pastry, bouquets and fancy articles will be offered for sale, cheap. The Society has secured the services of a Quadrille Band, which will discourse some excellent music during the evening, and no pains will be spared to make all who favor it with their presence pass a pleasant evening. They take this opportunity to thank their friends for their very liberal patronage at the "Apron Festival," and cordially invite all to call and see them Thursday evening, and bring all their friends. Admission, 20 cents for adults; 15 cents for children.

The Festival at the Methodist chapel on Daniel street, Tuesday evening, was very successful. The chapel is handsomely decorated, and the refreshments nice. It will continue this evening. Admission ten cents.

An excursion party from Dover was to have visited the steamship Faraday, to-day, but as she has gone to sea the excursion will not come off.

On Monday two young ladies driving a team down Water street collided with the job wagon of Mr. J. C. Goodrich, which was stationary on the corner of Water and Pickering streets, completely wrecking their carriage, but not injuring the occupants.

The complimentary dinner to the officers of the cable-steamer Faraday and the representatives of the cable company, which it was proposed should be given by the citizens of Portsmouth at the Rockingham House on Tuesday evening, was obliged to be postponed on account of the sailing of the Faraday for Torbay, which event was set for Tuesday evening. Should the Faraday meet the steamship Ambassador, with the shore end of the cable, they will return together; otherwise the former vessel will continue on to Torbay and return here on the 17th, before which time it is hardly expected the Ambassador will be here.

On Tuesday a gentleman and lady, coming from Kittery to this city in a wagon, met the cars near the toll-gate of Portsmouth Bridge, and their horse becoming frightened dashed ahead and ran the vehicle against another train of cars. Both occupants of the wagon were thrown out, the gentleman being badly injured about his head, while the lady escaped without apparent harm.

The Legislature.

On Monday, in the House, a petition of Samuel W. Moses and 46 others, of Portsmouth, for the repeal of the compulsory pilot law, was referred to the committee on the judiciary.

On motion of Mr. Marcy, of Portsmouth, the same committee was directed to inquire whether the laws relating to the drawing of jurors ought not to be so amended as to exempt presidents and cashiers of banks, and treasurers of savings bank, from serving as jurors, and to report by bill or otherwise.

NOTICES OF BILLS.

By Mr. Sinclair, of Littleton, regulating and restricting the sale and use of intoxicating liquors.

By Mr. Jenks, of Concord, giving to cities and towns the right to fix the time when interest shall be chargeable on unpaid taxes.

By Mr. McQuestion, of Nashua—to establish a State board of education.

By Mr. Noyes, of Franconia—to repeal the law relating to the naturalization of aliens.

By Mr. Woods, of Bath—relating to the right of students to vote, and their taxation.

By Mr. Marcy of Portsmouth,—relating to pilots and harbor masters; also to amend the charter of the city of Portsmouth.

A SCRIMMAGE.

On Tuesday the bills to amend the city charters of Portsmouth, Manchester and Concord were introduced by Hon. Daniel Marcy, and the democrats attempted to have them referred to committee without discussion or printing; but Mr. Kent of this city opposed it stoutly and finally succeeded in having the bills tabled and ordered to be printed,—the latter point, however, being covered by a general resolution introduced by Mr. Burrows, the thrown-overboard democratic Speaker, that all bills shall be printed. The bill relative to this city provides for dividing it into seven wards, having the election in the Fall, taking the veto power from the Mayor, providing that election officers shall not be paid, etc.

State News.

The Dover Democrat says Miss Sarah Kay, who died in that city on Monday, June 1st, was probably the oldest person in New Hampshire, if not in the United States. She came from Queen's County, Ireland, more than thirty years ago, and was an old lady then. She was a woman of mature years at the time of the Rebellion of 1798, and those who have known her since she came here say that from the account she has always given of her age she was at the time of her death 106 years old.

Charles H. Fennell, a student at Dartmouth College, received a very severe cut just over the eye, on Wednesday afternoon, by a splinter from a broken bat. He was sitting on the ground near the home base, when a ball was struck with such force as to break the bat, sending the piece that struck Fennell almost with the swiftness of a cannon ball. The wound is nothing serious, but he had a narrow escape from losing an eye.

On Wednesday a young man stepped from the passenger train at the Lowell & Nashua station, in Nashua, when a pistol dropped from the pocket of a coat he was carrying on his arm and exploded. The ball passed under the cars and lodged in the brick walls of the car house near where several men were standing. A lucky escape from more serious consequences. The young man had the pistol in his pocket while hunting the day before and had forgotten that it was loaded.

Mrs. Woodman, wife of the agent of the Belknap county farm, stepped upon a chair for some purpose, the chair tipped over, and she struck the floor with one hand in such a manner as to break her arm near the wrist.

Arley Plumer built a store and hotel in Londonderry in 1829, and has been in business there ever since. Most of that time he has been postmaster. He is now 79 years old.

David Noles, Jr., of Effingham, tried to ford Bear Camp river one day recently, and lost his horse and carriage, they being swept away. He narrowly escaped drowning.

During the past year the county of Strafford received for fines imposed by the Court for violations of the liquor law, over $4400.

The Manchester Mirror says the prohibitory law will surely be repealed.

It is said that one of the editors of a New Orleans paper, soon after commencing to learn the printing business, went to see a preacher's daughter. The next time he attended meeting he was considerably astonished at hearing the minister announce as his text, "My daughter is greviously tormented with the devil."

SPRING OPENING

The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

A Model Jury.

In Truckee, Nev., recently, upon a jury trial, the Sheriff was sent by the Court to interview the jury, which had been out some time. The Republican describes the sight that met the officer's eyes when he went to the room: One of the jurymen had an immense bass drum strapped on his back, and as he marched around the hall another juryman followed behind with drumsticks, playing upon the drum at a lively rate. Still a third juror was beating a snare drum vigorously, his design being to produce as much noise as possible without regard to time or music. A quart bottle was an object of deep interest to several other of the jurors, while a game of euchre occupied the attention of the remainder. The Sheriff was so awe-struck with the imposing scene that he retreated and called his Honor the Judge to witness the solemn deliberations of a Truckee jury. The Judge called the jurors to order and inquired if they had agreed upon a verdict. They replied through their foremen that they had agreed to disagree, and that a verdict was out of the question.

—The Providence Journal thinks the crusading ladies ought to interview the owners, and not the keepers, of rum shops, and that many of them could do so without going out of doors.

—And now the young ladies are threatened with a visitation of colored glass beads in the place of jet! Prepare to look like something half way between the Witch of Endor and Pocahontas.

—Harry, after looking on while his new little sister cried at being washed and dressed, turned away, saying, "If she screamed like that up in Heaven, I don't wonder they sent her off."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

are the most convenient purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

FIFTY PER CENT.

SAVED.

No power is so costly as that of human muscle, and fifty per cent. of the power required to run a Sewing Machine may be saved by using the

LIGHT RUNNING

"DOMESTIC."

— IT MAKES THE —

with the least and most simple machinery of any SHUTTLE Sewing Machine. It, therefore, WEARS LESS than any other, and combines, with its remarkable simplicity and ease of running, great quietness of operation with a wonderful range of work. Don't fail to examine it.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and full opinions given, rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1615 to '20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the enchanted canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
DYSPEPSIA DEBILITY. DROPSY AND HUMORS.
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up. Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing of disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Bessie Hay.

The fragrant wild roses lifted their pink chalices up towards the sunshine and the dew of the July heavens; the robins sang uproarous glees in the branches of the old orchard; and neither rose nor robin was fairer or sweeter voiced than Bessie Hay, as she stood among the currant bushes culling the ripe fruit under a huge old pear-tree, where the stone wall of the garden was draped with the emerald festoons of a wild grape vine, while Paul Escott stood leaning against the mossy trunk of the pear tree, twisting a stem of blue-bells in his hand.

"I know I'm poor, Bessie," he said resuming a conversation which had apparently lapsed into silence for a moment or so, "but I suppose poor people have a right to live and be happy as well as rich ones."

"I suppose so too, Paul."

"And I am sure I am willing to work if I could find something to do."

Bessie glanced deprecatingly at him.

"Mr. Elton wants some one to take the farm and work it—"

"That is mere drudgery, and besides, the pay would not enable me to marry and support a wife comfortably."

"We could wait, Paul."

"You are very willing," said the young man, bitterly. "I don't believe, Bessie, that you care for me as I do for you."

"Oh, Paul!" and a pained look came over the fair face.

"Well, then, what do you think of being tutor to Mr. Sinclair's little boys?"

"Thank you, I don't fancy the idea of being toad eater to a pompous aristocrat like Henry Sinclair."

"But, Paul, we can't always do and be what we like in this world," pleaded Bessie, with a troubled look in her tender brown eyes.

"Easy philosophy for you!" and he flung down his stem of blue-bells.

"I suppose you would like to have me break stone upon the roads. I thought you, at least, could sympathize with the feelings of a gentleman."

"So I do, Paul, but I believe in the Scripture doctrine of a man's doing with all his might whatever his hands finds to do."

"I see how it is," said Paul Estcott, who very foolishly allowed himself to get angry; "you are weary of our engagement—you want to break the wordly fetters that bind you. Very well; so let it be. You are free."

And he strode away over the grass, muttering to himself something about "having suspected how it would turn out ever since Morton Van Brugh had come down from the city to sketch the scenery, and turn the heads of all the girls."

Bessie Hay looked after him for an instant with a scarlet stain on her cheek, and a gathering mist in her eyes. "He ought to know better," she thought, "and he does. He will come back to me when the momentary pique has worn itself away."

In the meanwhile Paul, vaulting over the low stone wall a few paces below, had very nearly stumbled over the prostrated body of a man lying among the red clover blossoms in the island of shade cast by a neighboring tree.

"Mr. Van Brugh!"

The young artist glanced up with a sort of lazy scorn showing under his long dark eyelashes. Paul bit his lip.

"Engaged in the noble art of eavesdropping, eh!" he muttered.

"Come now, Estcott, don't be crusty; I didn't mean to overhear your conversation; but what was a fellow to do. This is the jolliest place on the whole farm, and I wasn't to blame because Miss Hay came looking like Hebe's self to gather red currants, and you followed like her shadow. Come, let's go down by the trout stream, and talk over matters and things in general. Are you really in earnest about wanting something to do?"

"Of course I am."

"Then suppose you just glance over this letter that I have received this morning from my uncle. I've no idea of expatriating myself among the pig-tailed celestials for all the fortunes that ever were made. But for an ambitious man. Read the letter, that's all."

Paul Estcott obeyed, almost dazzled for the moment by the brilliant prospects it opened to him.

"You really give me the privilege of accepting or refusing this situation?" he exclaimed.

"I really do; and considering that I don't want it myself, it is no very great stretch of generosity on my part. Only you see you have to decide at once, and be in the city to report yourself at my uncle's counting house within twenty-four hours."

Paul sprang up, and flushed and eager.

"I'll do it. I'll show Bessie Hay that I am no do-nothing after all, when a motive really worth my while presents itself. But" glancing at his watch, "I have no time to lose."

"Not a second."

"But my trunk?"

"You can got what you need in town; my uncle supplies the outfit."

"And Bessie?"

"Write her to-night; my uncle will forward it under cover to me, and I will see that she gets it."

Paul Estcott wrung his companion's hand;

"You are very kind," he said huskily. "I had almost grown to regard you with distrust."

Van Brugh laughed, showing his dainty pearl-white teeth under a brown moustache.

"Never judge by appearances," he said.

"Take my word for it, Miss Hay will excuse all lack of ceremony when she learns all."

Mr. Van Brugh accompanied Paul to the railway station, and saw him off with smilingly uttered profusion of good wishes.

"The best friend a fellow ever had," thought Paul, as the train moved off.

But he could not see the sardonic grin into which the curves of the farewell smile altered when the little country station was once more left to silence and loneliness.

"Now," said Morton Van Brugh, "I shall have the field all to myself. Strange how fascinated I have allowed myself to become with a mere country girl! But there is something certainly very winning in her type of beauty."

Bessie Hay never answered Paul Estcott's farewell letter; nor did the latter once suspect that it was because Mr. Van Brugh never delivered it.

Paul, firing up under his old enemy, jealousy, took refuge in silence. Nor did a long epistle from his aunt Jemima, which contained more news—possible, probable and impossible—than any government bulletin, serve to cool the flames.

"Folks say," wrote the epistolary spinster, "that Bessie Hay is going to marry the widower Sinclair, because he is rich. There was a great deal of talk about her and that young Van Brugh, but he went away all of a sudden, folks thought it likely with a flea in his ear. Bessie knows which side her bread is buttered on, and Sinclair can't live long with that cough of his."

It was no wonder that when pretty Bessie Hay made an excuse to come to Aunt Jemima's, and asked wistfully and with a certain quiver in her voice if Paul's letter contained no message for her, the elderly gossip-monger answered:

"Dear me, no! You didn't expect to hear, did you?"

Bessie went back home, her little heart as cold as lead in her bosom.

She had refused Morton Van Burgh; she said "No" to Mr. Sinclair, in spite of Aunt Jemima's knowing prognostication; and people began to wonder if pretty Bessie Hay was going to be an old maid after all.

"Why doesn't he write to me, or send me at least a word to show that he has not entirely forgotten me?" thought Bessie.

"Why doesn't she answer my letter?" thought Paul.

So the world wagged on, until Mr. Estcott came from the far-off flowery land—not indeed with the fortune of which he had dreamed in such sanguine fashion, but with a competence to live well and comfortable in a place as modest as his native village.

It was a stormy November evening, with threatening of snow in the chill air, and a low wind stirring the last withered leaves upon the boughs, when he alighted at the station, looking almost into the eyes of Bessie Hay, who had come to the post office to ask once again for the letter that never came.

How seldom are our visions realized!

Bessie had dreamed a thousand times of meeting Paul Estoott, but never in such a way as this.

"Paul," she quavered.

"Ah!" said Paul doffing his stylish fur travelling cap, "I hope you are well!"

For he did not exactly like to call her Mrs. Sinclair as yet.

The red stains of sunset had almost faded out of the sky when he overtook her, about a hundred yards from the station.

His heart smote him when he saw the look of meek endurance in her face.

"Are you alone, Bessie?"

"Yes, Paul."

"I suppose," he said with an effort, "that I must call you by some other name now?"

"Call me Bessie Hay," she answered quietly.

"You are not married?"

"No, Paul."

He drew a long breath that was almost like a sob.

"Aunt Jemima said—but, Bessie, why did you not answer my letter?"

"Why did you not write to me, Paul?"

Before they had reached the old Hay farm, where the current bushes had long since lost their leaves, and the garden wall was beginning to be whitened by the falling snow-flakes, the mists of doubt and misunderstanding were all cleared up, and Bessie Hay had promised to forgive and forget all her lover's seeming neglect.

"Van Brugh was a scoundrel," muttered Paul. "But without his aid I could scarcely have been in a position to marry. It has been a long time to wait, but it is all right, Bessie, after all."

"It's like a story, Paul," said Bessie, "where people go through all sorts of trials and tribulations, but are happy at last! O, Paul, I never thought I should live a story!"

—A few days ago a hungry party sat down at the well-spread supper table of a Sound steamer, upon which one of the dishes contained a trout of moderate size. A serious-looking individual drew this dish toward him, saying apologetically. "This is fast day with me." His next neighbor, an Irish gentleman, immediately inserted his fork into the fish and transferred it to his own plate, remarking, "Sir, do you suppose nobody has a soul to be saved but yourself?"

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JUNE 11, 1874.

The Legislature.

Rev. John Currier of Haverhill was elected chaplain of the House.

The democratic caucus to nominate candidates for the several offices was held Tuesday evening with closed doors, and the following nominations were made: For Secretary of State, William Butterfield of Concord; State treasurer, Josiah G. Dearborn of Weare; State printer, Charles C. Pearson of Concord. It is understood that the usual "blood and thunder" talk was indulged in by the caucus and a determination expressed to leave no stone unturned to overthrow completely the rule of the republicans in the State. Nathaniel White, a prominent republican representative, from Ward 5, Concord, has resigned, as the democrats threatened to oust the entire delegation on some technicalities unless one of the three representatives resigned. The seat of Mr. Paddleford of Monroe, republican, was declared vacant, and they are evidently determined upon strengthening themselves as much as possible by ousting republicans on the most trivial grounds. At the same time it is notorious that quite a number of democrats occupy seats without a shadow of right, and they are left undisturbed. Such is democratic consistency and honor in New Hampshire.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

By Mr. Kent, of Portsmouth,—relating to gambling in railroad cars and steamboats; also, for the better protection of lobsters in the waters of New Hampshire.

When Mr. Marcy, democrat, introduced the bill to amend the charter of the city of Portsmouth, Mr. Kent, republican, moved that the bill lie on the table to be printed. Mr. Bingham, democrat, called for a division but was defeated, 190 to 149.

The Committees.

[Manchester Mirror.]

A glance at the committees shows that some of them at least were constructed with special reference to the work expected of them. None of them, of course, were what is vulgarly termed packed, but that fortunate fate which has attended the democracy lately was evidently present and took a hand in constituting several of them. This is especially notable in the Committee on Elections and Division of Towns, both of which are as certain to prove mere registering machines for recording the wishes of people who have no place on them as could well be devised.

The Committee on Judiciary is a strong one—made up of the ablest men of both parties. Manchester is represented on it by Briggs and Burnham, republicans, and Haley, democrat. This appears a fair representation: but, nevertheless, some are not suited. After the announcement Friday, a Manchester member waited on Speaker Hatch, and something like the following dialogue took place:

Member.—Mr. Hatch, didn't you make a mistake in announcing the committees this morning?

Hatch (blandly).—Not that I am aware of; but why do you ask?

Member.—Why, sir, I did not hear my name as a member of the Judiciary Committee.

Hatch (disgustedly).—There was no mistake, sir. Your name was not read because you are not a member of the Committee, sir.

Member (very decidedly).—Then, sir, you have destroyed the democratic party of Ward Five, Manchester, Mr. Hatch. I did not come here to be snubbed, Mr. Hatch, and I won't be.

To prevent so dire a calamity as the destruction of the democratic party of Ward Five, it is understood a new committee, with nothing to do, will be appointed, and of this the irate member will be made chairman.

State News.

Phillips Academy at Exeter, which, several years ago, abandoned the practice of celebrating its summer anniversary with public speaking, will close the exercises this term, next Tuesday, with an examination of all the classes.

It has been definitely ascertained that the "tramps" who sheltered themselves in the house of Mrs. Chew, situated in Plaistow, recently destroyed by fire, regaled themselves upon a gallon of rum and spending several hours in dissipation and carousing, finally sunk into a drunken slumber from which one of the party was awakened by finding a portion of his clothing burned from his body, when he aroused his companions and they left the house to its fate. The three characters are well known in that vicinity and in the region round about.

Richard Gove of Laconia, inventor and owner of the Gove patent detached reversible main spring for watches, has brought a suit against San Francisco parties for infringement. The damages claimed are $250,000.

Claremont Grange has received its first car load of flour from Michigan. It is guaranteed to be of the first quality.

The Claremont Advocate states that the stock kept by the farmers of that town is rapidly decreasing. Thus, in 1847, the number of cattle was 1,806; now 1,476; number of sheep, 8,317; now, 2,828.

A son of J. F. Murdough, Representative from Acworth, dangerously shot himself in the face while loading a gun. The charge of shot entered his chin and came out of his face and nose. It is feared he will lose the use of one eye.

Ezra Alden, who died in Lebanon on the 2d inst., in his eighty-seventh year, was a lineal descendent, of the seventh generation, of the John Alden who came over in the Mayflower, and who was a magistrate of the infant Plymouth colony.

Mrs. Howland, the author of "Papa's Own Girl," is said to be a native of Lebanon. Her husband is Master of the New Jersey State Grange, and she fills the office of Ceres in the same body, and of Lecturer in her subordinate grange. So we learn from the Free Press.

Mrs. Hiram Gould of Colbrook, who was thrown from a wagon a few days ago, was so seriously injured that her life is despaired of.

Gates Hodgdon of Lancaster is likely to lose the sight of one eye from the effect of a piece of percussion cap which flew into it while fixing a gun a few days since.

Notes From the Capital.

[Manchester Mirror.]

The bill to gerrymander Portsmouth is the first in the series of similar bills by which the democrats hope to retain the power which they fortuitously gained last March. It is more radical and revolutionary than anything ever attempted in this State before, and not only gerrymanders the city, but abolishes all of the Ward officers and appoints democratic henchmen, whom it names, officers pro tem., intrusting them with making out the check-lists, calling the next Ward meetings, and acting as moderators and clerks of said meetings.

Close upon the heels of the Portsmouth bill came one to deliver Manchester to the Celts. It is known here as Stanley's cow pasture bill, having been drawn evidently with the purpose of sending its author to the General Court next year. It is modelled after the Portsmouth bill.

The bill provides that the city election shall hereafter be held on the second Tuesday of March; that the present selectmen, assessors, moderators and Ward clerks shall go out of office, and their successors pro tem. be elected by the Mayor and Aldermen. * * *

How the apostles suffer at the hands of this wicked generation! How the idols tumble and smash. How the old fossils are ground into dust! Oh, but it's jolly to watch the carnival of ruin that is being wrought! It was hard that Jackson and Thayer and Foss should be brought to the block; it was torturing that Burrows should be immolated upon the altar; but the refinement of cruelty was reserved for the Manchester printer who has just been skinned alive, and whose pelt is now dangling at the belt of the precocious youngling of the People Office.

—One of the most curious blunders made by an author was that made by Thackeray when collecting material for his Irish Sketch Book. Driving along a road, he saw at due intervals posts set up with the letters "G. P. O." upon them. Overtaking a peasant, he inquired the meaning of these initials, and was informed that they stood for "God Preserve O'Connell." Out came the tourist's note-book, in which a memorandum was at once jotted down of the curious statement. In the first edition of the sketches the fact was duly mentioned, but it was suppressed in all the subsequent issues, owing to the tardy discovery that the initials stood for "General Post-Office," indicating that the highway was a post-road.

Food and Digestion.

In dyspepsia the gastric juice which should dissolve the food is only formed in small quantities, and whatever may be the feeling of emptiness and weakness in such cases, the dyspeptic should eat sparingly. To remedy the evil, the mucous membrane of the stomach should be roused and emits the gastric fluid, should be stimulated and toned, and the best, in fact the only sure preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does this admirable stomachic promote a sufficient and steady supply of the solvent which converts the food to the purposes of life, but it also regulates the flow of bile, controls the bowels, and has a most invigorating effect upon the nerves. The glow which the first dose diffuses through the system is an earnest of the more permanent vitalizing effects which are produced by its persistent use. It improves the appetite, cheers the spirits, and renders the body hardy and strong.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public, that in addition to being Agent for the famous "DOMESTIC," whose merits are so well known, that I am the only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity for the following first-class sewing machines:

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has overcome the weak points of the former invention, which I am prepared to explain to all who will favor me with a call.

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON."

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.

2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.

3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.

4. Runs for years without Repairs.

5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.

6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.

7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of cog-wheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; has the new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.

8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skillful and experienced mechanics, at the celebrated Remington Armory, Ilion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited for the last two years.

It is the only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle "self-setting;" the needle being straight and self-setting much of the perplexity and trouble usual to beginners or inexperienced operators is avoided, as the needle cannot be set wrong.

It has a positive thread controller and tension, enabling it to sew with equal precision from the most delicate texture to the heaviest material, and to use with equal facility, silk, linen or cotton thread. It uses the same size thread on the under as on the upper side, and sews across the heaviest seams, or from one to many thicknesses of cloth without change of needle, tension, or threads.

The machine is made of the finest material, and of most perfect finish, and no pains or expense is spared to make the machine in all its points fitted to meet the wants of every family wherever introduced. The "Victor" has met with universal favor; and so great has been the increasing demand the past year, that the "Victor" Sewing Machine Company have been compelled to build a new and extensive factory, and to more than double their facilities for supplying the wants of the sewing machine trade. With its recent improvements it is a simple, durable and complete family sewing machine, and I guarantee it will give the purchaser satisfaction.

THE DAVIS.

Since the organization of the "Davis" Sewing Machine Company, nearly five years ago, its business has increased to an astonishing degree. Its sales for the first year amounted to one thousand machines, and each succeeding year its sales have doubled those of the preceding one—an increase of one hundred per cent. per annum.

The "Davis" sewing machines sold in Portsmouth and vicinity during the past few years have given good satisfaction; but the "Davis" machine of the present day has a number of essential points of superiority over the old "Davis" machine, namely:

Among the various improvements we call attention to the Milled Shank Needle, by which device all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use. A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having a positive motion and strikes briskly and positively. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small needles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes' time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machine are new and differ widely from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the wheel feed, and the ratchet, or four-motion feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is automatically moved forward at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four motioned movement produced by complicated under gear. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to also take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot in both cases comes down on the goods and holds them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be obvious then, that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser-foot is retarding or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must necessarily be fulled or gathered on to the upper to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must snap wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the fulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors discard their use in seams requiring strength.

This great defect has existed since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and presents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conclusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity, I remain yours faithfully,

Sewing Machine Trickery.

Mr. Wm. H. Porter, who succeeded Mr. J. J. Fessenden as agent of the Singer Sewing Machine company in this city, and who is under bonds in an action for trespass in entering the residence of a lady and taking therefrom a machine which she had purchased and paid for, decamped on Tuesday with a valuable horse belonging to the Singer company and a carriage owned by Bryant & Co., leaving his accounts unsettled and several hundred dollars he had collected unaccounted for. The Singer company has adopted a singular policy, allowing its agents to take pay and give receipts for machines sold, and then deliberately ignoring the authority given, repudiating the agent's actions and demanding the machines. Our citizens would look well to their own interests by patronizing companies doing an honest business and employing honest agents. Among those best known hereabouts is Mr. Samuel A. Joy, agent for the Domestic, Victor, Remington and Davis machines, who has the reputation of being a reliable, candid and honest man.

The Cable Ship.

The Faraday did not sail for Nova Scotia until noon of Wednesday, owing to the detention of Mr. Carl Siemens in Boston. A party of Dover excursionists, who would not believe that Capt. Trott had decided to sail as announced Tuesday night, came here in the early train and by this accident were enabled to make a brief visit to the Faraday, and returned in high glee at having risked the chances and won, while their more prudent friends decided to wait till next week for the return of the vessel. The Faraday will probably reach Nova Scotia to-night, and will immediately lay a short cable from Newfoundland to Nova Scotia, returning here to participate in the laying of the shore end, for which Col. Eastman has made all due preparations.

New Time Table.

A new time table for the navy yard ferry boat "Emerald" has been arranged, viz.: To leave navy yard at 8, 9, 10 and 11:45 A. M., and 1:30, 2, 3, 4, 5:10 and 5:45 P. M.; returning, leave Portsmouth at 8:45, 9:30 and 11 A. M., 12 M., and 1:45, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30 and 6:15, P. M.

On Tuesdays and Saturdays—leaves yard at 7:30, P. M., and return at 10 o'clock.

On Sundays, leaves the navy yard at 9:40, 10:15, 11:45, and 12:30, returning from this city at 10, 11:30, 12 and 12:45.

Base Ball.

A game was played on the Plains, Wednesday afternoon, between the Resolute Club of this city and the Sawyer Club of Dover, resulting in a victory for the Resolutes by the following score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	—Total
Sawyers	1	0	4	2	4	2	1	2	1	— 17
Resolutes	5	6	3	0	0	3	2	1	3	— 23

Home runs,—one, made by Turner of the Resolutes; double play,—one, made by Magraw and Green of the Resolutes. Time of game, three hours.

Marine Disaster.

The schooner "Maine" was struck by a squall on Tuesday night when off Cape Neddick, and thrown on her beam ends, losing part of her deck load of lumber,—20,000 feet. On Wednesday morning she was laying at anchor off York Ledge, still on her beam ends; and information being sent to the navy yard, Commodore Howell on Wednesday afternoon dispatched the U. S. S. Bluelight, in command of Lieut. C. H. Rockwell, to her assistance. If possible she will be towed to this port.

On the return of the Bluelight she will immediately engage in the service of the U. S. Fish Commission, under the command of Commander L. A. Beardslee, U. S. N.

Laconics.

A quadrille band will furnish music during the evening, and strawberries and cream, ice cream, lemonade, confectionery, fruit, cake, pastry, bouquets and fancy articles will be offered for sale, cheap. The sociables got up by this society are always well-conducted and enjoyable, and even their Fairs are free from the annoying mendicity so common to such affairs, and full change is always returned. To secure a good time at a moderate outlay, go to Congress Hall this evening.

The Manchester Mirror, in its report of the arrival of the cable-steamer Faraday, incidentally mentions that the tug Clara Bateman is "a fast one, with a most accommodating and gentlemanly captain." The compliment to Capt. Rand is well deserved, as all who have had occasion to test his courtesy will testify; and the steamer is not only fast but has become an indispensible "institution" on this river. Her engineer, Mr. Wood. Lord, is as competent as he is careful,—and he is one of the most careful engineers we ever saw. The tug was engaged as a water-boat, Wednesday morning, supplying the Faraday with water for her voyage to England.

The body of Mr. John Partridge of this city has been found near Aspinwall. He was a seaman on the U. S. S. Ossipee.

Arrangements for launching the new sloop-of-war "Enterprise," on Saturday next, are about completed. An excellent opportunity for viewing this launch, which will take place at about noon, may be had from the Navy Yard bridge.

A Crazy Horse.

[Cincinnati Times.]

At Albany, Ill., recently, a horse was being led through the streets when he suddenly became insane, broke away from his leader, smashed fences and gardens for awhile and finally dashed through the front door of a Dr. Robinson's house and into the parlor, where Mrs. Robinson and her infant child were. Mrs. Robinson, upon perceiving her strange guest, immediately fled through the rear of the building. In her momentary fright she forgot her young babe. It was well that she did. Had she stopped to rescue it both would probably have been trampled beneath the horse's feet. Dr. Robinson, hearing the crash, rushed into the house just in time to save his child. Indeed not a moment too soon, for the beast had already demolished part of the crib, and sundered one side from the other, besides leaving a flesh-wound on the child's face. But this was only the beginning of his destruction. The sewing machine, chairs, sofa and stove soon followed, and everything in the room was totally destroyed. The carpet was completely cut to atoms. Having completed his course here he turned into an adjoining bed-room, and, getting his fore feet upon the bed, soon brought it to the floor. It would seem to to those present that the animal might have been stopped, but, when we consider that it was but the work of an instant for an animal so powerful and in his condition to do this, then no one will doubt but that all was done to prevent the catastrophe. Men soon collected, and ropes were thrown around his body, but they could not force him to subjection until he was severely bled. Then thirty or more men forced him home, and having tied him down, they managed to keep him in the stable. He did not return to consciousness, and died about midnight the same night. It was evident that as soon as the animal commenced the strange movements he became totally blind. Drs. Lundy and Robinson examined a portion of the brain and announced the disease congestion of the brain.

Preserve Fowers in all their Natural Beauty, would be pleased to receive floral designs for that purpose, convinced that this improved method, while enhancing their appearance, will add to their permanency as well. Those who desire funeral wreaths, crosses, wedding bouquets or any floral piece preserved as memorials can now be sure of having their treasures secured to them, and with a degree of perfection such as no other method imparts. ANNOUNCE THEIR

SPRING OPENING

—OF—

Bonnets, Hats,
Flowers and Ribbons.

The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

From One Cent to One Dollar.

Hats, trimmed,

From 50 cts. to $10.00.

And five dollar Trimmed Hats will compare favorably with any ten dollar one in the city.

SASH RIBBONS, - - - - - - - 25 cents per yard.
SILK TIES - - - - - - - - - 50 cents each.
FRAMES - - - - - - - - - - 13 cents each.

—An Indian tribe in Michigan is said to consist of an old horse, a chief, and a demijohn of whisky.

—Beecher is reported as having said that the story of the Garden of Eden was a parable, and the view that we are held to eternal penalty for what Adam and Eve did is so contradictory of God's justice that no man should regard it but with repugnance. The men, too, he said, who believe the world was made in six days, are brothers of Egyptian mummies and the mummies are the best men of the two.

R. H. EDDY
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I am had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1616 to '20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1850—a true picture of days when the whole sail ships were blowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign parts—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether they intend to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
DYSPEPSIA. DEBILITY. DROPSY AND HUMORS.
PERUVIAN SYRUP
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and restores "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up Invigorating and Vitalized blood, permeates every part of the body, repairing damage and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Disease of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are enduring, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an invalid a sound constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
Once that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP allowed in the glass.

Remunerative Friendship.

One of those "stories of real life" of which the Golden State has been so prolific, is related by the California papers. In 1850 a young man named Osborn, who had recently arrived at the mines from the East, penniless and friendless, was taken sick. He told his condition to a fellow adventurer named Hitchcock, who was a little better off, and the latter promised to "see him through." The promise was kept and when, after two months of illness, Osborn arose from his bed his friend handed him $250 to bear his expenses and procure tools, saying to him, "If you ever get able you can pay me back, but do not worry yourself and injure your health in trying to make the money too quick." One year and a half from that time Osborn sent Hitchcock $1,250, with the following note: "I'll pay interest on friendship." His labors proved remunerative, and by 1873 he was worth $350,000. While in San Francisco he by accident met and recognized his old friend. When they parted, after several days companionship, Osborn gave Hitchcock a sealed package, with the injunction that it should not be opened until he was on the cars. There Hitchcock found that it contained a deed for one-sixth of a rich silver mine, with a small note containing the words: "Interest on friendship." Hitchcock sold his interest for $80,000.

A Pretty Good Story.

A boatman on the Mississippi river tells the following story: A poor chap was going down the river in a dug-out, and had been informed of a certain locality called Rick's Bend, which was eighteen miles around, and in one place about a hundred yards across. He was advised to land at the narrow point and drag his craft over, but he passed the spot going down without observing it, and paddling on eighteen miles around, he struck it on the other side. Landing at once, he dragged his boat across, and went gliding along down with a light heart, till he came along within a few paces of the spot where he dragged across before. Thinking it was a new cut off, he went ashore and tugged his boat over again. When he got back to the bend a second time he sauntered around a little to stretch himself, and soon discovered an old newspaper, out of which he had taken his breakfast that morning. It was now about sundown, and as he had paddled thirty-six miles without any flattering progress, he scuttled his dug-out with a hatchet, built a camp, and waited till next day for a steamboat.

A Girl's House-Cleaning.

She is perfectly willing to help. She tells her mother she would just as lief stay home a week as not, and informs her teacher, with a semi-triumphant air, that she has to stay at home next week to help clean house.

The carpets are to be taken up first, and that girl, delicately reared though she be, bravely sits down in the middle of the floor and reads a paper while her mother and hired girl take out the tacks and make frantic efforts to use the same form of common prayer that the head of the house uses when his boots don't come on easily in the morning.

The carpet is rolled up and taken out into the back yard and hung on the clothes-line to be dusted. Now that girl comes out strong, and shows the latent energy that is in her. She seizes an old broom and starts toward that swinging carpet with an air of determination. On her way she spies her friend Kate passing, and goes off to the side fence to talk about an hour and a half about—well, about whatever girls do talk about under similar circumstances. Then she goes into the house, eats her dinner, and complains of being tired.

In the afternoon she begins dusting, and arranging the books in the book-case. She finds, pretty soon, one of Ouida's novels and sits down on the floor to read, while the ink from a bottle she knocks over when she throws her duster on the table, runs all over the parlor curtains stuffed under the chair near by. Her mother finds her here and sends her into the parlor to gather upher music ready for to-morrow's campaign. She gets along well enough with her exercises and marches, but presently she comes to "Don't be Angry with me, Darling," that Robert gave her last week, and begins to hum it. She opens the piano to find the key note to be certain that she can take the high note nicely, and begins to sing. It don't sound well without accompaniment, that Robert thought was so sweet, so she sits down and begins to play. While she is practicing Robert comes along. He hears her. He stops. He enters. She stops. He wants to hear that sweet song. Come in only for that. She is too hoarse. She couldn't think of singing with her head tied up in a towel—but she does.

Robert sighs as the song ends, and she proposes a game of croquet. They go out and play croquet till tea time.

—An enterprising superintendent of a Sunday School was engaged in catechising the scholars, varying the usual method by beginning at the end of the Catechism. After asking what were the prerequisites for the Holy Communion and Confirmation, and receiving very satisfactory replies, he asked: "And now, boys, tell me what must precede Baptism?" Whereupon a lively urchin shouted out, "A baby, sir."

FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1874.

The Legislature.

On Wednesday, the 10th, Wm. Butterfield of Concord was elected Secretary of State, Josiah G. Dearborn, of Weare, State Treasurer, Charles E. Pearson, of Concord, State Printer, Alvah W. Sulloway; of Franklin, Railroad Commissioner, and Tobias B. Foss, of Dover, Commissary General. All democrats, of course.

On Wednesday, when the bill to gerrymander Portsmouth and disfranchise its citizens was introduced, Mr. Kent said: This is the first time I have seen this bill, or heard of it, and I presume the majority of Representatives from Portsmouth are in the same position. And inasmuch as it is of vital interest to the city of Portsmouth. I move that it lie on the table and the usual number of copies be printed for the use of the House.

This did not suit the ideas of the democratic managers, who wanted the bill committed at once, so that it (with others of similar character) could be rushed through in the dark as far as possible. Mr. Bingham endeavored to have the second branch of Mr. Kent's motion (to have the bill printed) laid on the table, but was defeated. Mr. Briggs, of Manchester, said:

It seems to me that the resolution in the hands of the Speaker introduced by the gentleman from Plymouth (Mr. Burrows) does not exactly meet this case. That resolution provides that all bills while upon their second reading shall be laid on the table and printed. Now all bills after their second reading go to committee. During all that time they are on their second reading until the committee makes report to the House. Then they are laid on the table and ordered to be printed. Now, I submit that in a bill of this importance, the changing of the entire structure of the city government of the city of Portsmouth, there is nothing unreasonable and unfair in the request of the representative from Portsmouth (Mr. Kent) that this bill should be printed now, that his constituents and the representatives from the city of Portsmouth and the members of this House may know the extent and character of the legislation asked. I think the bill should be printed now that we may all know its character.

On a division being ordered on the question of reconsidering a previous vote concerning printing, Mr. Kent, who was one of the Tellers, was followed around by Boss Bingham, and after the result of the vote was announced, Mr. Kent addressed the Speaker as follows:

Mr. Speaker: At your solicitation I accepted the position of Teller of this division and I have endeavored to do my duty honestly and faithfully. I was, however, most grossly insulted by Mr. Bingham, who disputed my count, and on the last count he followed me up the aisles as though I was a dishonest person, and I therefore very respectfully decline to act in that capacity.

Mr. Bingham: As to the propriety of the gentleman from Portsmouth resigning his position he himself must judge; but as to the propriety of my looking after him and seeing that he counted correctly, I think I was right in that. I will state that the division he has presided over and returned the count of has returned a much better count this time, when I followed him up, than it ever did before; and I would say this not intending to make any imputations upon the gentleman, but judging from the experience I have, if he should continue to be a teller of this House it would pay to follow him round.

Mr. Kent: Any imputations that the gentleman places upon me in respect to my giving a wrong count are false in every particular. I have endeavored to give the correct count as the gentleman knows, and I throw back into his teeth any imputations he casts upon me.

The Speaker: The chair hopes that the discussion will not be carried to any greater extent.

In Western Connecticut serious damage was inflicted by the storm of Sunday night, the 7th, which lasted seven hours at Norfolk. Blackberry River became a roaring torrent, carrying everything before it. Six valuable dams, thirteen bridges, and several mills were swept away, and hundreds of acres of land, with growing crops of grain and tobacco, were buried under sand and stone washed down by the stream. The damage in the town of Norfolk alone is estimated at $30,000.

State News.

Two professional tramps, named James Carver and John L. Bragdon, robbed the house of Frye Austin, in Salem, of five dollars and some provisions, while the inmates were absent at a funeral on the 5th. The thieves were arrested at Manchester, and lodged in jail,—where all their worthless class should be put, as quick as possible.

Says the Boston Globe: The New Hampshire prohibitionists who pulled off from the republicans and set up a candidate of their own, thus giving the State to the democrats, are receiving censure from all quarters. Now it is from Maine the complaint comes. The Kennebec Journal declares that the principle of prohibition in the Granite State was killed by those who profess to be its warmest friends, and it reads them a lesson upon the folly of aiding in the election of free-rum Governors to promote the cause of temperance. It concludes: "We imagine the temperance cause in New Hampshire never received a heavier blow than this administered by its own friends. The law is endangered, its supporters discouraged and disaffected, and it may be the work of years to recover the ground lost by the election of Weston."

The President's Manifesto.

[Washington cor. N. Y. World.]

A thunderbolt has fallen from a not very cloudless sky. The White House has hurled forth its fiery shaft, and Senator Jones has proved a sort of financial lightning conductor. I believe the President admits the fact that he came very near approving the Merrimon bill—indeed, his doubts about that financial measure actually only date from Senator Jones' remarkable speech. This speech has been read by many millions of people, and discussed more freely in the press than all the rest of the speeches made on the financial question during the session put together. There is no cause for wonder that a mind like the President's should have found more conviction in a short, terse statement full of points, bristling with irrefutable, homely arguments, couched in forcible Anglo-Saxon, and unadorned with the usual rhetorical veneer than in speeches like those of Senator Schurz, or Senator Bayard. There can be no doubt that the President's faith in the utility of manufacturing paper money was shaken by this pithy speech. He saw Senator Jones the day or night before the memorable veto; and he saw him a week or so after the veto. It was at this last interview that the sturdy hard money Senator in his own peculiar style impressed his views on the President, which, by the by, are contained in Jones's speech, and which the President now adopts and holds out as a future financial landmark.

There is, however, a point or two in the President's programme to the paternity of which Senator Jones cannot very well lay claim; Senator Jones did not advise borrowing money in order to redeem the country's debts. He confined himself to contraction. The main point inculcated by the Western Senator is the repeal of the Legal-tender act. This point, however, Mr. Bayard made so clear, and he was so learnedly forcible in making it, that it is almost a pity not to assume that Mr. Bayard made the President see the injustice of this act, and of the Supreme Court's decision, the responsibility of which last great mistake, of which lasting disgrace, must rest upon ex-Attorney-General Hoar. But Senator Jones succeeded in making the President comprehend one great principle, viz., that cotton, wool, wheat, whisky, pig-iron, and steel, are not regulated in price by the paper dollar, be it a legal tender or not. He convinced the President that, on the contrary, the paper dollar, with its formidable backing of the Legal-tender act and the decision of the Supreme Court, is simply a rag without a standard value, and is measured by the caprice of speculators, and by the caprice of speculators, exigencies of the times, and by the Jay Goulds of the country. "Call not gold at a premium," cried the clear-headed Senator from Nevada; "gold cannot be at a premium simply because it is a fixed standard. But call your rag money so much discount; then, and only, you will realize the truth that gold and silver is the true standard." Happily the President has fully imbibed this sound doctrine and has given it in his manifesto almost exactly in Mr. Jones's own words. General Grant says:

"Instead of calling the paper dollar a dollar and quoting gold at so much premium, we should think and speak of paper as at so much discount. This alone would aid greatly in bringing the two currencies nearer together at par."

Every sound currency man will approve of this, and the adoption of this simple expedient will indeed be the first step on the road which leads to a sound currency.

It is needless to go further into the President's manifesto, as the paper is already well before the public and will be discussed line by line throughout the length and breadth of the land. It is significant also that General Bristow has already shown by his approval of the principles put forth in the President's manifesto that he takes the correct view of finance and promises to become a good financier.

I cannot help reminding your readers that Mr. Boutwell's theory was that after we get our interest-bearing bonds to par and pay off some $300,000,000 worth of bonds, specie payments would follow as a natural consequence as surely as that Boutwell himself would be sought out for the Presidency. Well, the prophesy was false, and forthwith the Groton financier took refuge in the balance of trade theory—the balance being against us. If only that would or could be reversed, then, according to Mr. Boutwell, all the bulls would become milch cows, and specie payments would follow. Strange to say, too, the balance was reversed, and yet the bulls refused to give milk, and the paper dollar was a rag as before. But the Groton grocer had fertility and he hit on another expedient, and this time he is perfectly safe, viz.: The shipping is against us, it is the foreign carrying trade that does it all. Well, inasmuch as we are not allowed to buy foreign ships and our tariff will not let us build any, Mr. Boutwell is safe, and specie payments, according to his great financial wisdom, is far enough off. However, it is hardly worth while to waste time now upon the late Treasury chief clerks. They have gone, and it may be hopefully predicted that their financial cheese-paring has gone with them. The well-wishers of the country who do not look at its future through the politician's spectacles are beginning to have sanguine hopes of the new Secretary and the great financial changes evidently in store for us.

The chargrin and disappointment caused to some of the supposed trustiest Senators of the Administration by the fact that Senator Jones was chosen—to return to my old simile—as the Presidential financial lightning-rod to convey the electric current to forty millions of people is as amusing as it is wholesome. Imagine the rage of at least one stately Senator, who has fought inflation, and in whose manly breast it was supposed the Presidential outpourings of confidence were always first made; imagine, I say, if you can, the rage of this Senatorial Slammer that he (Slammer) should be slighted by the President and put aside! His eyes can hardly credit it even now, to see the Nevada Senator dance off with the President. Well, well; the rage of Slammer of the "Forty-sixth," when his buxom widow danced off with Alfred Jingle was cream cheese to the resentment of the Senator in question.

But the imperturbable Jones seems to take his honors and his great notoriety very philosophically. He seems to measure politics, finance, and political economy by a rule that governs gold mines. His first inquiry seems to be whether the ledge runs due north and south. If it does he concludes that the precious metal must be found if diligently and intelligently searched for. He turns with contempt from a ledge that runs east and west. Experience tells him that metal in such a ledge is only accidental and very meagre, which is after a little work entirely lost. Of course I cannot say who of the Senatorial ledges in his opinion runs north and south. I am almost certain he cannot help considering the Logan, Cameron, Ferry, Wright, and Meriam ledges as running due east and west, and it strikes me very forcibly that he believes the new Treasury ledge as running in the favorable direction of north and south. Let us all hope he may be right, and that the new financial mine will prove for the industry, wealth, and welfare of the nation, as prolific and rich as did the Crown Point and the Comstock lode.

The President has evidently chosen a new path, in which the Mortons, Logans, Kelleys, &c., are not likely to tread. The Pennsylvania politicians are especially demoralized; they had supposed that in the present Congress Pennsylvania would only have to sneeze and all would be awe stricken. But they have been snubbed most dreadfully in the Centennial scheme, and in the inflation swindle. Their career was cut short in trying to reimpose the 10 per cent. rebate tariff law of 1872. And even now they hear that a reciprocity treaty with Canada is three-fourths finished. Kelley and Cameron prophesy all sorts of dreadful things. Probably the only true prophecy they make is that the party, as they understand it, which means inflation, high tariff, and subsidies, is irrevocably broken up, and the reign of the Cameron clan and the Kelley sans cullottes has vanished from the land.

Food and Digestion.

In dyspepsia the gastric juice which should dissolve the food is only formed in small quantities, and whatever may be the feeling of emptiness and weakness in such cases, the dyspeptic should eat sparingly. To remedy the evil, the mucous membrane of the stomach, which secretes and emits the gastric fluid, should be stimulated and toned, and the best, in fact the only sure preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does this admirable stomachic promote a sufficient and steady supply of the solvent which converts the food to the purposes of life, but it also regulates the flow of bile, controls the bowels, and has a most invigorating effect upon the nerves. The glow which the first dose diffuses throughthe system is an earnest of the more permanent vitalizing effects which are produced by its persistent use. It improves the appetite, cheers the spirits, and renders the body hardy and strong.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public, that in addition to being Agent for the famous "DOMESTIC," whose merits are so well known, that I am the only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity for the following first-class sewing machines:

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has overcome the weak points of the former invention, which I am prepared to explain to all who will favor me with a call.

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON."

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.

2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.

3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.

4. Runs for years without Repairs.

5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.

6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.

7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of cog-wheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; has the new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.

8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skilful and experienced mechanics, at the celebrated Remington Armory, Ilion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited for the last two years.

Is t e only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle "self-setting;" the needle being straight and self-setting much of the perplexity and trouble usual to beginners or inexperienced operators is avoided, as the needle cannot be set wrong.

It has a positive thread controller and tension, enabling it to sew with equal precision from the most delicate texture to the heaviest material, and to use with equal facility, silk, linen or cotton thread. It uses the same size thread on the under as on the upper side, and sews across the heaviest seams, or from one to many thicknesses of cloth without change of needle, tension, or threads.

The machine is made of the finest material, and of most perfect finish, and no pains or expense is spared to make the machine in all its points fitted to meet the wants of every family wherever introduced. The "Victor" has met with universal favor; and so great has been the increasing demand the past year, that the "Victor" Sewing Machine Company have been compelled to build a new and extensive factory, and to more than double their facilities for supplying the wants of the sewing machine trade. With its recent improvements it is a simple, durable and complete family sewing machine, and I guarantee it will give the purchaser satisfaction.

THE DAVIS.

Since the organization of the "Davis" Sewing Machine Company, nearly five years ago, its business has increased to an astonishing degree. Its sales for the first year amounted to one thousand machines, and each succeeding year its sales have doubled those of the preceding one—an increase of one hundred per cent. per annum.

The "Davis" sewing machines sold in Portsmouth and vicinity during the past few years have given good satisfaction; but the "Davis" machine of the present day has a number of essential points of superiority over the old "Davis" machine, namely:

Among the various improvements we call attention to the Milled Shank Needle, by which device all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same position in relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use.

A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having a positive motion and entirely noiseless. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small needles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes' time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machine are new and differ widely from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the wheel feed, and the ratchet, or four motion feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is intermittently advanced at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four motioned movement produced by complicated mechanism. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to also take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot in both cases comes down on the goods and holds them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be conceded that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser-foot is retarding or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must necessarily be fulled or gathered on to the upper to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must snap wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the fulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors discard their use in seams requiring strength.

This great defect has existed since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and presents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conclusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity, I remain yours faithfully,

2d. N. H. Reunion.

All citizens willing to aid in the reunion of the volunteers of the gallant old 2d N. H. Regiment are requested to meet at the Common Council Room, Friday evening, at half-past 7 o'clock. Let us not forget the patriotism of 1861! PER ORDER.

Desecration of a Cemetery.

Three beautiful trees, one of them an Elm, and two of them Balms of Gilead, in the old North Burying-Ground, have been girdled in a most Vandal manner; very much to the disgust of many citizens, who are accustomed to pass that old resting place of so many heroes of the Revolution. Some fifteen years ago these trees and others were brought some distance by a gentleman, on his shoulders, and transplanted in that sacred spot. He has watched them ever since, only to see them all thus most ruthlessly destroyed.

"There is hope of a tree if it be cut down, that it will sprout again;" but the sprouts will hardly grow to be of much size, during the life-time of any of the present generation.

A short time since a remonstrance against the cutting down of trees was signed by many citizens residing in the vicinity of Elm street. The remonstrance evidently met with the approbation of the Board of Aldermen. In spite of the spirit of this, however, other depredations are being committed on public grounds in that proximity. The City Marshal has very properly offered a reward for the apprehension of persons who commit such offences, which, it is hoped, will have a tendency to prevent them. The writer reiterates a desire previously expressed, that the City Government will take measures towards the appointment of a City Forester.

VIATOR.

Laconics.

Wanted at the CHRONICLE Office, to complete files, GAZETTES of Feb. 5, and March 19, 1874.

A special train will leave this city on Friday and Saturday mornings at 8:15 A. M., for Portland, returning at 6 P. M. Fare one way, tickets admitting to the Industrial Exhibition at Portland.

In reference to the collision between the steamer Providence and the schooner J. D. Hart, for this port, we have the following additional particulars: Capt. Burgess was knocked down and remained insensible for one hour; he was badly bruised on the head. William A. Coombs, of Islesboro, who was blowing the horn at the time of the collision, was struck on the top of the head and badly cut. Dr. Turner, Port Physician, immediately on the arrival of the schooner at Newport went on board and dressed their wounds, and both men are doing well. Both the steamer and schooner were steering on the same course, or the accident would have been more disastrous, as the fog was thick. The schooner had mainboom broken in three pieces; mainsail entirely gone; mainboom topinlife gone, bowsprit split at the heel to knightheads, and other damage before reported.

At the 52d annual meeting of the N. H. Historical Society, held in Concord on the 10th, Hon. Charles H. Bell was re-elected president. The following gentlemen of this city and vicinity were elected resident members: Frank W. Hackett, Esq., Mr. William A. Peirce, Dr. Edward S. Ryder, Rev. John Albee.

Mr. John Carthy, a member of the Marine Band, who has been sick for several months, was recently presented by the members of the band with a purse of fifty dollars.

Schooner Maine, before reported as having been knocked over by a squall off Cape Neddick on Tuesday night, was towed from York Ledge to Whale's Back light on Wednesday by the U. S. S. Bluelight, Lieut. Rockwell commanding. On Thursday the schooner was taken in tow by the steam-tug Clara Bateman and brought up to this city. She is pretty well shaken up.

The gentleman and lady who were thrown from a wagon on Tuesday, the 9th, through the horse becoming frightened at the cars on Noble's Island and backing into another train, were Mr. Augustus W. Todd and daughter, of York, Me. Mr. Todd was badly hurt, but Miss Todd was uninjured.

On Thursday morning a twelve-year-old son of Mr. Lewis B. Gerrish, of Lebanon, Me., fell through the magazine hatch of the U. S. S. Enterprise, on the stocks at the navy yard. He was insensible when taken up, and remained so for some time, but his injuries are not supposed to be serious.

The remains of the late Boatswain William Black, U. S. N., were buried in the South Cemetery on Thursday, with Masonic ceremonies.

The U. S. steam-tug Bluelight went into commission on Thursday morning. Her officers are Comdr. Lester A. Beardslee, Mate S. G. Cook, and Pay-clerk George G. Swasey.

On Thursday, at Pier wharf, we noticed the new steam launch built by Mr. Chas. Duncan of Kittery Point. She is a finely boat, well fitted, and capable of carrying a large number of passengers. We understand that during the Summer months she will make regular trips, daily, between this city, Kittery Foreside, and Kittery Point, touching at other places on the route for the accommodation of passengers.

The Court Street Christian Society will continue their Strawberry Festival this evening. A quardrille band will be in attendance, and ice cream, strawberries, lemonade and fancy articles will be offered for sale cheap.

Count Harris.

[St. Joe (Mo.) Gazette.]

In 1858 a fine looking and intelligent young railroad man named J. S. Harris, born in York, Maine, became agent and yard master for the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad company at Brookfield. When asked who and whence he was he jocularly replied, "count de Brookfield," and thus acquired the appellation of "Count Harris," by which he was ever after known. In 1862, after Conductor Cutler became a victim of the Platte river disaster, the count took his place on the road, a position which he filled with but slight intermission until about the first of January last.

In the fall of 1869, while he was general agent of the company at Brookfield, he manifested unmistakable evidences of mental aberration and at length became a maniac. Kind friends cared for him, and finally conveyed him to his home in Maine, where he soon recovered, and three months afterwards returned and took his old place as conductor.

Early in January last the count again became partially insane and was "laid off." He spent some time in this city, and then left for Platte county. Rumors came to the effect that he was wandering around helpless in the wintry storms, in danger of losing his life, and Conductors Richardson and Morse were dispatched in search of him.

They left Cameron on Saturday night, the 31st of January, for Platte City, where, learning that he had hired a horse on Friday morning, Jan. 23, and gone to Maj. Sweeney's, some six miles east of Platte City, they procured a wagon and two horses and followed the same road. Arriving at Maj. Sweeney's they were informed that the count had stayed there to dinner, and, after paying the major $50 for keeping his mare and three colts, he started for Lathrop with the mare and one colt. The colt shortly afterwards returned, and the count wandered off the road and got lost. Coming to a creek, and the mare refusing to cross the ice, he got down and attempted to lead her. He broke through and got wet. After crossing the stream he let the fence down and crossed several fields, letting fences down as he proceeded, and finally turned the mare loose and took it afoot. Friday night about twelve o'clock, he was discovered by some mule buyers in some hay in a barn in Ridgely, and they, supposing he was there for the purpose of taking some of their stock, drove him out. He wandered around the bottom until Sunday morning, January 25, when he made his appearance at the hotel in Ridgly, between daylight and sunrise, with his right foot badly frozen. The landlord gave him a pan of water to put his foot in and ice formed around his toes. He pulled out his money, something over six hundred dollars in greenbacks, and dried the bills by the stove, and then went to a drug store, and bought a bottle of turpentine, throwing his pocket-book upon the floor and going away and leaving it. In about half an hour he returned and got it, and at noon left for Edgerton junction, having with him his money, gold watch and chain. Not being able to get his foot in the shoe he tied his shoe under his foot with strings. Edgerton junction was about five miles distant. As he was crossing the bridge over Platte river a man met him and showed him the road. He did not take it but proceeded up the bottom some three miles until he struck Bell branch, which stream he followed to its mouth, but where all traces were lost of him. On February 10, his overcoat with his overshoes, memorandum book and a bottle of turpentine in his pockets, were found on the east bank of Platte river, about three hundred yards above the mouth of this branch.

A reward of $1,000 was offered, a party of old river men dragged the river early in March, and everything that money and friendship could do was done to solve the mystery, but without avail.

On Sunday afternoon two little negro boys, Albert and James, sons of Sam. Holland, residing in the vicinity, were playing in the sand at the mouth of Bell's branch, about a half-mile on a direct line from Edgerton junction, and discovered the feet of a man protruding from the water. They at once notified their father, who proceeded to the river and had the body drawn out. It proved to be that of the missing Count Harris. The head was firmly imbedded in the sand, two or three feet under water. The body was considerably decomposed, and portions of the flesh had been eaten off the bones by fish, but the clothing clung to the person, and in the pockets were found the count's gold watch and chain and his pocket-book containining three $100 bills and two $50 bills and two $10, making in all $420; and also a check on a bank at Hannibal, Missouri. His diamond ring still sparkled on his clammy finger, and his costly pin mocked decay.

An inquest was held and the remains were forwarded east yesterday afternoon to his friends, in charge of W. T. Allen, assistant general baggage agent of the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad, T. E. Lewis, master mechanic at Brookfield, and Jule Coleman, conductor on the road.

Rewards amounting to some $2,000 had been offered for the recovery of the body.

Poor Count Harris! Many an eye will grow dim with tears as it reads the sad sequel to the terrible mystery that has enshrouded him. He wandered off in the terrible storm, was bewildered, disheartened, demented, and plunged into the icy current of the Platte river to shut out the sight and suffering of the world.

—An aged couple drove into an Indiana city just as an undertaking firm was moving into an old church, which had been purchased for a shop. The old gentleman stood up in his wagon, with mouth and eyes distended, as the men silently carried coffin after coffin into the church. At last he turned around to his awe-stricken half, and gasped: "Sary, by golly, it's the cholera; let's git!" and they gitted.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a
NEW BONNET.
It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:
First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.
Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.
Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, trimmed,

Live Like Lovers.

Married people should treat each other like lovers all their lives—then they would be happy. Bickering and quarreling would soon break off love affairs; consequently lovers indulge in such only to a very limited extent. But some people—men and women both—when they have once got married think they may do just as they please, and it will make no difference. They make a great mistake. It causes all the difference in the world. Women should grow more devoted and men more fond after marriage, if they have the slightest idea of being happy as wives and husbands. It is losing sight of this fundamental truth which leads to hundreds of divorces Yet, many a man will scold his wife, who would never think of breathing a harsh word to his sweetheart, and many a wife will be glum and morose on her husband's return who had only smiles and words of cheer for him when he was her suitor. How can such people expect to be happy?

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skilful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause the same to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

FIFTH AND LAST CONCERT
IN AID OF THE
PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY,
JULY 31, 1874.
In announcing the Fifth and last of the series of Gift Concerts given for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, the Trustees and Manager refer with pride and pleasure to the four which have been already given: The first, December 16, 1871; the second, December 2, 1872; the third, July 8, 1873; and the fourth, March 31st, 1874.
Under their charter, granted by a special act of the Kentucky Legislature, March 16, 1871, the Trustees are authorized to give One More, and Only One More Gift Concert. With the money arising from this Fifth and LAST Concert, the Library, Museum, and other departments are to be enlarged and endowed with a fixed and certain annual income. Such an endowment fund is desired, as will secure beyond peradventure, not only the maintenance of this magnificent establishment, but its constant growth.
THE FIFTH GIFT CONCERT
for the purpose mentioned, and which is positively and unequivocally announced as the Last which will ever be given under this charter and by the present management.
Will come off in the Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,
Friday, July 31, 1874.
At this final Concert everything will be upon a scale corresponding with its increased importance. The music will be rendered by an orchestra consisting of one hundred performers selected for their fame in different lands, and the unprecedented sum of divided into twenty thousand gifts, will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1626 to '29; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in the palmy days, the Light-House on its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were to be seen in the Harbor with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-Office.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
DYSPEPSIA- DEBILITY- DROPSY AND HUMORS.
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong,
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and ences "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Why He Watched.

Representative Kent, of this city, we think made a mistake in resigning the position of Teller of one of the divisions of the House, because he was followed about in the most offensively ostentatious manner by "Boss" Bingham while he was taking a count. Not that any other honorable man's indignation at the insult would not naturally have led him to do just what Mr. Kent did,—resign at once, but that was no doubt just what Bingham was pleased to have him do. But Mr. Bingham's following him around was not for the purpose of watching the Teller,—for Bingham, though a bully and an unscrupulous partizan, is no fool and would not offer what he knew was a needless insult even to so active a political opponent as Mr. Kent—but a previous vote had shown that some of the unterrified and independent democratic members could not be trusted, lest they might dare vote as they pleased and not in accordance with the dictum of the caucus, and who so proper to act as democratic whipper-in as the democratic candidate-in-training for the Senatorship? This is no doubt what Bingham referred to when he said "the division returned a much better count" when he was watching it than when he wasn't. "The eye of the Master is potent!" Chalking the backs and numbering the ballots of the independent democratic legislators worked well enough once, but this year the machinery for turning Hon. Harry Bingham into Senator Bingham has got to be manufactured, and no supervision can be too strict, lest some flaw in the workmanship or material of the gear cause the bursting of the whole concern under the tremendous strain it will have to bear. The Boss has not made any show in the House since he was rebuked in so dignified a manner—Mr. Sinclair (a gentleman) taking the lead of the majority.

The Legislature.

On Thursday the following bills (among others) were introduced or otherwise acted on.

INTRODUCED.

By Mr. Kent of Portsmouth—To enlarge the jurisdiction of police courts in certain cases, more especially in relation to cruelty to animals.

By Mr. Emery of Portsmouth—a bill for the more effectual prevention of cruelty to animals.

By Mr. Dunbar of Hillsborough—a bill to establish a State Police, to secure the more general, impartial and easy enforcement of our criminal laws.

By Mr. Emery of Portsmouth—to extend the action of assumpsit.

By Mr. Emery of Portsmouth—A joint resolution that it is the duty of Congress to take measures at the earliest date, to return to specie payments, and that the Senators and Representatives of New Hampshire, in Congress, be requested to use their influence to that end.

By Mr. Kent of Portsmouth—An act relating to innholders.

By Mr. Kent of Portsmouth—To amend Chap. 261 of the Gen. Stats. relating to burglary and breaking of buildings.

READ A THIRD TIME.

An act to provide for the sale of hard bread and crackers by weight. On motion of Mr. Emery of Portsmouth, the bill was tabled.

Letter From Concord.

[Special correspondence Chronicle.]

CONCORD, June 11.

Probably never before in the history of New Hampshire did a legislative session commence under circumstances so peculiar as surrounded the present one on the opening day. Not content with the legitimate result of the victory that they had accidentally gained the democracy early resolved to have the work of the session cut and dried beforehand to such an extent that the only thing for the legislature to do would be to ratify the schemes that their committees had perfected under the dictation of the Littleton clique Proceeding upon the assumption that the republican members possessed no rights that the democracy were bound to respect they attempted to mark out the entire work of the session before the legislature convened, and they are now engaged in the task of forcing the bills thus prepared through the legislature at break-neck speed, without being willing to extend to the minority

THE LEAST POSSIBLE COURTESY

in any direction. The grand Mogul of the party, Harry Bingham, takes a pinch of democratic snuff on the front seat and immediately every democratic nose in the hall is tickled to the point of SNEEZING.

The party whip is snapped by the Boss, and not a democratic member dares to back in the breeching. Whether the measure is fair or unfair—whether it is in accordance with usage or violation of the plainest principles of equity, the same rule is observed by the democracy, and the issued in their caucuses, to blindly follow the lead of Bingham, are faithfully carried out.

When the session began many republicans indulged the hope that Speaker Hatch would endeavor to act the part of a man, and in his rulings rise above the miserable plane of partizan prejudice; but their hopes have been scattered to the wind. Probably never before in the history of the State has so of political jobbers occupied the honorable position of Speaker. While he has disappointed even his political friends by his utter incapacity for the place, he has certainly brought shame and disgrace upon himself by a series of the most absurd rulings that ever emanated from a presiding officer, and if he continues till the end of the session to use his office to further the schemes of the demagogues who have temporarily gained political ascendency to the extent that he has thus far, he will under circumstances anything but honorable. As illustrative of the truth of what I have written concerning both Bingham and Hatch, a little episode that occurred in the House on Wednesday may properly be alluded to.

A few days previously Mr. Burrows of Plymouth, the most gentlemanly and honorable democratic leader in the House, introduced a resolution that all bills of a public nature should be laid on the table and printed on their second reading, for the information of the House, and before their reference to the committees. Bingham conceived the idea that this would delay the work of the session a little, and as they are mighty anxious to completely overturn the State in thirty days, he conceived the idea of having this rule rescinded, and accordingly got one of his tools to move a reconsideration. On the vote to lay the motion to reconsider on the table, made by Mr. Sanborn of Franklin, a small majority voted in the affirmative. Mr. Kent of Portsmouth, one of the tellers, upon returning his division, had his count questioned by Bingham, when Mr. Kent immediately asked the Speaker that the count might be verified, upon which Bingham withdrew his objection. In the afternoon the same matter came under consideration, and when Mr. Kent passed up the aisle to make his count he was closely followed by Bingham, who likewise counted those voting. Observing this Mr. Kent very properly stated the facts to the Speaker, and dignifiedly declined to further act in the capacity of teller.

was a most unprovoked and outrageous one, and had Mr. Kent used something more forcible than language by way of resenting it he would have been justified in the eyes of all fair-minded men. As it was, the Speaker tamely permitted the outrage to pass unrebuked, instead of administering to the Littleton demagogue deserved censure. Again, during the debate on this question Mr. Kent raised a point of order, which the Speaker decided would have been right in the morning but was wrong in the afternoon, a rare specimen of legislative wisdom. And again, when Mr. Kent appealed from the decision of the chair on this point, the Speaker blandly ruled that because a member had been allowed to make an explanation between his ruling and the taking of the appeal therefore the appeal could not be entertained.

The farcical nature of this entire affair cannot but be plain to any unbiased mind, and it certainly proves beyond a peradventure that for plantation manners Bingham is a success, while for dignity, fairness and courtesy as a presiding officer, Hatch is as big a humbug as Barnum the showman, Weston the pedestrian, or Daniel Pratt, the great American traveler. It may be that he considers unquestioning devotion to partisan dictation the highest form of political sagacity and rectitude, but unless I am wofully mistaken the wretched record he is making will return to plague him in his future efforts for positions that he has already proved himself utterly unfitted to fill. My only additional word is that the old maxim "whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," seems likely to be verified in the experience of the democracy of our State, for certain it is that if they continue to carry out their partisan schemes in the spirit that they have thus far shown, it requires no special power of prophecy to discern them next year in as to be a sufficiently emphatic rebuke even for their numerous and outrageous political sins. STARK.

The Reynard of the House.

[Concord Monitor.]

That was a very foxy proceeding in the House, Wednesday, which surreptitiously established an espionage upon the two gentlemen who had been appointed tellers of that body. It bore in some of its phases a close resemblance to the fable of the dog and the fox. The latter, it will be remembered, was of a very suspicious nature, and was disposed to judge of the honest dog by himself—a judgment, by the way, fatal to the fox, since it aroused the honest and just indignation of the accused canine.

"So saying, on the fox he flies—
The self-convicted felon dies."

There is something, however, almost sublime in the depth of the assurance which, when caught in the act of espionage, could defend it as right and gentlemanly. The course of Mr. Kent, under the circumstances, was wonderfully forbearing. The men are few who would not have resented so gross an insult on the spot and in a summary manner. That the Speaker did not administer a proper rebuke to the author of the outrage shows how abjectly he is held under the latter's thumb, and how little he appreciates the true dignity of his position. A few more such scenes as that will turn the House into a bear garden. It was disgraceful in the extreme.

The Speaker, who, once or twice, appeared to have an opinion of his own, had the starch taken out of him in a jiffy, and became plastic as wax. His abasement was really painful to witness. Evidently he was ashamed to play the partizan and the pliant tool of the Boss so openly, but he did not have sufficient backbone, even if he had the inclination, to assert himself and the dignity of his position. His course, yesterday, will hardly earn him friends even with the majority. Rulings so palpably unfair, and so palpably made at the dictation of another, are not calculated to do away with an impression, already become general, that he is totally unfitted for the speakership.

Plain English.

There is no good reason why an English speaking people should be doctored in Latin. If we should describe the properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in the jargon of the profession, not one reader in twenty would understand what it is good for. We prefer to say in simple words that it possesses strengthening, regulating and purifying qualities of the highest order; that the vegetable ingredients of which it is composed are eminently wholesome and salutary, and that the stimulant which is combined with them is the purest that can be manufactured. We prescribe it, not in learned Latin, but in the good old mother tongue, as a remedy for languor, debility, nervousness, indigestion, liver complaint, fever and ague, constipation, rheumatism and low spirits, and as preventive of every disease produced by foul air, whether it stagnates in crowded workrooms or imperils life and health in swampy districts and new clearings. So the masses say, and so they have been saying for the last twenty years.

"Happiness, is the absence of pain," says Jean Paul Richter, and 20,000 grateful patients bless the ANAKESIS of Dr. Silsbee is the only infallible cure for PILES ever discovered. It is purely scientific, combining the best methods of the French, English and American surgeons, acting as an instrument; poultice and medicine, and not only affording instant relief from excruciating pain, but performing an absolute and permanent cure. All Doctors approve it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. Depot, Walker street, New York.

Decay's Effacing Finger

Will never mar the teeth that are brushed daily with Odoriferous SOZODONT. It lends a floral fragrance to the breath as well as protects the teeth from corrosion and decomposition.

Helmbold's Buchu is still in the zenith of its popularity. Notwithstanding the absence of Dr. Helmbold, the celebrated medicine is still manufactured at the laboratory at Philadelphia, and is sold by all respectable druggists. It is warranted for all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Beware of counterfeits. Genuine has proprietor's private stamp. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

French Fashions have ruled the world, because of the readiness with which the French people adopt all that is most pleasing, most beneficial, or most economical. In the matter of beverages, French Vanilla Chocolate has always been esteemed a luxury that strengthened instead of enervating; yet at the Paris Exposition our old Boston house—Walter Baker & Co.—bore away the first prize for excellence from the whole world, and at the Vienna Exposition was awarded the Medal of Merit.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public, that in addition to being Agent for the famous "DOMESTIC," whose merits are so well known, that I am the only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity for the following first-class sewing machines:

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has overcome the weak points of the former invention, which I am prepared to explain to all who will favor me with a call.

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON."

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.
2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.
3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.
4. Runs for years without Repairs.
5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.
6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.
7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of cog-wheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; has the new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.
8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skillful and experienced mechanics, at the celebrated Remington Armory, Illion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited, for the last two years.

Is the only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle "self-setting;" the needle being straight and self-setting much of the perplexity and trouble usual to beginners or inexperienced operators is avoided, as the needle cannot be set wrong.

It has a positive thread controller and tension, enabling it to sew with equal precision from the most delicate texture to the heaviest material, and to use with equal facility, silk, linen or cotton thread. It uses the same size thread on the under as on the upper side, and sews across the heaviest seams, or from one to many thicknesses of cloth without change of needle, tension, or threads.

The machine is made of the finest material, and of most perfect finish, and no pains or expense is spared to make it superior in all its points fitted to meet the wants of every family wherever introduced. The "Victor" has met with universal favor; and so great has been the increasing demand the past year, that the "Victor" Sewing Machine Company have been compelled to build a new and extensive factory, and to more than double their facilities for supplying the wants of the sewing machine trade. With its recent improvements it is a simple, durable and complete family sewing machine, and I guarantee it will give the purchaser satisfaction.

THE DAVIS.

Since the organization of the "Davis" Sewing Machine Company, nearly five years ago, its business has increased to an astonishing degree. Its sales for the first year amounted to one thousand machines, and each succeeding year its sales have doubled those of the preceding one—an increase of one hundred per cent. per annum.

The "Davis" sewing machines sold in Portsmouth and vicinity during the past few years have given good satisfaction; but the "Davis" machine of the present date has a number of essential points of superiority over the old "Davis" machine, namely:

Among the various improvements we call attention to the Milled Shank Needle, by which device all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same position in relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use. A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having a positive motion and entirely noiseless. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small needles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes' time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machine are new and different from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the wheel feed, and the ratchet, or four-motion feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is automatically moved forward at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four motioned movement produced by complicated under gear. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to also take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot in both cases comes down on the goods and holds them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be obvious then, that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser-foot is retarding or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must neccessarily be pulled or gathered on to the upper to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must snap wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the pulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors discard their use in seams requiring strength.

This great defect has existed since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and presents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conclusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity, I remain yours faithfully,

A spirited meeting of citizens was held at the Council room Friday evening. Ex-Governor Goodwin was called to the chair, and Samuel Dodge, Esq., was chosen Secretary. The following committee of seven was appointed to report programme for a proper reception, on the 23d inst.: Col. Wm. H. Sise, Major Daniel J. Vaughan, Capt. William O. Sides, Mayor Miller, Wm. R. Preston, Samuel Dodge and Thos. E. O. Marvin. The meeting adjourned until Tuesday evening at 7:30, when all are invited who are interested.

The Democratic Chowder.

We give in full the text of the bill introduced in the State legislature by Hon. Daniel Marcy of this city, believing it will interest several of our readers. We notice one error in the bill,—its title, which should be "An Act to secure control of the city of Portsmouth to the democratic party, and to perpetuate such control regardless of the number of voters opposing it, or other minor considerations." This precious production, which has been Hatched out only by the constant brooding of the democratic leaders in this city for months, is labelled

An Act in amendment of the charter of the city of Portsmouth.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. The city of Portsmouth hereby is and shall continue to be divided into seven wards, which shall be constituted as follows:

Ward One shall contain all that part of the city of Portsmouth situated north of a line commencing at the centre of the channel of the outlet of the North Mill Pond, between Noble's Island and Freeman's Point, and running westerly by the centre of the channel of said outlet to the centre of the North Mill bridge, thence along the easterly shore of said mill pond to the track of the Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire, thence along said railroad track to the centre line of Dover street prolonged thereto, thence by the centre line of Dover street to the centre of Islington street, thence by the centre line of Islington street and Islington and Greenland roads to the line between Portsmouth and Greenland.

Ward Two shall include all that part of said city between the centre line of Dover street prolonged to the track of the Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire on the west, and the centre line of Vaughan street on the east, and between the track of the Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire on the north and the centre line of Islington and Congress streets on the south.

Ward Three shall contain all that part of said city situated south of a line commencing on the water at Liberty Bridge, so called, and running westerly through the centre of the dock to the centre of Washington street, thence through the centre of Washington street to the centre of Richmond street, thence through the centre of Richmond street to the centre of Pleasant street, thence through the centre of Pleasant street to the Universalist meeting-house, thence in a straight line across the South Mill Pond and lands adjacent thereto to the southerly end of Richards avenue, thence through the centre of South and Lafayette roads to the line between Portsmouth and Rye, together with all islands in the Piscataqua River and Portsmouth Harbor attached to ward three as heretofore constituted.

Ward Four shall contain all that part of said city situated between the south line of ward one on the north and the north line of ward three on the south, west of a line commencing in the centre of South road at a point opposite the centre of Wibird street, thence running northerly by the centre line of Wibird street to Middle street, thence in a straight line across Middle street to the centre of Madison street, thence by the centre line of Madison street to State street, thence in a straight line across State street and land adjacent thereto, along the easterly end of the house now occupied by Charles C. Jones to the south line of ward one.

Ward Five shall contain all that part of said city bounded northerly by a line drawn easterly from the north-east corner of ward four, through the centre of Islington and Congress, streets, and along the southern side of Market square to the centre of Pleasant street; easterly by a line drawn southerly from Market square through the centre of Pleasant street to the northern limit of ward three at the Universalist meeting-house, thence in a straight line across the South Mill Pond and lands adjacent thereto to the southerly end of Richards avenue; southerly by a line drawn from the southerly end of Richards avenue westerly along the northern limit of ward three to a point opposite the centre of Wibird street, and westerly by the easterly limit of ward four.

Ward Six shall contain all that part of said city situated north of the northern limit of ward three, and easterly of a line commencing at the centre of Pleasant street, at a point opposite the centre of Richmond street, and running northerly through the centre of Pleasant street to Market square; thence in a straight line across Market square to the centre of Market street, thence by the centre line of Market street as far north as a point opposite the centre of Green street.

Ward Seven shall contain all that part of said city not included in any of the above described wards.

SEC. 2. The board of aldermen of said city shall consist of ten members, of whom the first, second, fourth, and seventh wards shall each choose one, and the third, fifth, and sixth shall each choose two; and the common council shall consist of twenty members, of whom the first, second, fourth, and seventh wards shall each choose two, and the third, fifth, and sixth wards shall each choose four.

There shall be chosen in each of said wards, one assessor of taxes and one overseer of the poor.

SEC. 3. At the annual city election the several wards shall each choose as many persons to serve as school committee as they are entitled to choose aldermen respectively, who shall hold their office for one year, and until others are chosen in their stead. The committee so chosen shall annually elect a high school committee of three members; and the committee so chosen shall have the same powers and perform all the duties which now by law appertain to the school committee and high school committee respectively.

SEC. 4. The annual meeting of legal voters of said city of Portsmouth for the choice of city and ward officers shall be holden on the second Monday of September, and all city or ward officers who are chosen by the people shall be chosen by ballot, and shall hold their respective offices for one year from and including the fourth Tuesday of September, and until others are chosen and qualified in their stead.

SEC. 5. The mayor, aldermen, and common council shall hereafter meet in convention, for the purpose of taking the oath of their respective offices, on the fourth Tuesday of September in each year, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, and on said day the city councils shall in convention and by joint ballot elect a city clerk, who shall be qualified and enter upon the discharge of the duties of his office on the fourth Tuesday of September in each year; provided, however, in the case of a vacancy or a failure to elect on said fourth Tuesday of September, said vacancy may be filled or election made at any other time.

SEC. 6. All city officers, with the exception of city clerk, who are now required to be chosen or appointed by the mayor and aldermen or by the city councils in joint convention, shall be so chosen or appointed in the month of October in each year.

SEC. 7. The mayor, aldermen, common council, assessors of taxes, overseers of the poor, and school committee, now in office in said city, shall hold their respective offices until the fourth Tuesday of September next, and until others are chosen and qualified in their stead, and no longer; and all officers now in office in said city, elected by the city councils or appointed by the mayor and aldermen, shall hold their respective offices until others are elected and qualified in their stead, and no longer. All such officers shall be entitled to receive pay only for such portion of the year as they may have served.

SEC. 8. The present ward officers of ward three in said city as heretofore constituted shall remain and be the ward officers of ward three as constituted by this act, until the fourth Tuesday of September next, and until others are chosen and qualified in their stead.

SEC. 9. The following named persons, being first duly sworn, may call the first meeting of the legal voters in wards one, two, four, five, six, and seven, as constituted by this act, to be held on the second Monday of September next for the choice of city and ward officers and school committee, namely:

Samuel Spinney, Isaac Furber, and William Alton, or any two of them, may call said meeting in ward one;

Lewis Green, Ozro J. Hobbs, and Emanuel Charlesworth, or any two of them, in ward two;

Frank W. Rand, George E. Marden, and Samuel Langdon, jr., or any two of them, in ward four;

Benjamin M. Parker, Ebenezer G. Adams, and Hiram F. Williams, or any two of them, in ward five;

Richard T. Call, John Conlon and Thomas J. Sheehan, or any two of them, in ward six; and

James F. Jenness, Daniel L. Stover, and Arad Tibbets, or any two of them, in ward seven,—who shall prepare, revise, correct, and post up in the manner in which selectmen in said city are now required, an alphabetical list of the voters in each of said wards, to which they are hereby respectively assigned, and they shall issue and serve their warrants for said meeting of the legal voters in their respective wards for the choice of all city and ward officers, and school committee, who are elected by the people.

Such warrants shall be posted at least fourteen days before the time appointed for said meeting, and shall designate the time and place for the meetings of the respective wards. At said meeting they shall exercise in their respective wards all the duties now incumbent upon selectmen in said city, until selectmen shall be elected and qualified in their stead, and they may appoint, for each of said wards in which they respectively act as such selectmen, a moderator and clerk, who, being first duly sworn, may perform all the duties incumbent upon said officers in said city until others shall be qualified and elected in their stead.

SEC. 10. The selectmen and moderators of each of the wards shall not be entitled to receive any compensation for their services.

SEC. 11. That the act entitled An act fixing the time of closing the polls in the city of Portsmouth, approved July third, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, and the act entitled An act in relation to the powers of the mayors of cities, approved July fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one, and section eight of chapter forty-four of the General Statutes, so far as they relate to the city of Portsmouth, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed.

SEC. 12. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

It will be observed that the law closing the polls at a given hour is repealed, as was to have been anticipated, though at the time of its passage a democratic paper said it was so manifestly in the interests of good order and decency that no opposition was offered to it,—but that's just what's the matter with it, for anything in the interests of good order and decency must damage the democratic party. The election officers named are respectable men,—some of them, while others are of the order of pot-house politicians, and low enough, at that; but then they are every one good democrats, and not many of them would allow any silly scruples of conscience to stand in the way of their carrying out any orders of a democratic caucus. The number of aldermen and councilmen is to be increased, of course, for there are many patriots in the democratic party of this city who thirst to serve their country in the City Government. Taken as a whole the bill may be regarded as an indication that the democrats will stop at nothing which they may hope will enable them to keep a hold upon the State, and that they regard the perpetuation of democratic ascendency as the only question to be considered in legislation. Well, we don't know as anybody expected anything better from that body of earnest deprecators of "partizan legislation" and howlers about "the supremacy of the ballot box;" their high-toned declamations never deceived us for a moment, their record of action not tallying well enough with their protestations of exceeding virtue and purity.

The Cat in the Meal.

Behind the effort to obtain more democratic representatives by the proposed change in the city charter lies a scheme which every citizen of Portsmouth having the best interests of this municipality at heart should oppose regardless of party associations. Many of the democrats of Portsmouth insist that the "cat in the meal" is simply a measure to straighten out the affairs of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad. This railroad, built by Jones, Marcy, Hatch et als., the men who are now pressing in the legislature under the guise of party legislation the changes contemplated, has cost a very considerable sum more than the original estimate. Were there not troubles somewhere, the persons who confidingly paid in their subscriptions something more than a year ago on the promise of receiving a guaranteed stock, would have something to show now more than a simple receipt from the treasurer of the P. & D. R. R. for the money. THE DEFICIENCY MUST BE MADE UP IN SOME WAY, and as the Eastern Railroad does not pay the interest on the stock as promised, the inference is that MORE BONDS WILL BE REQUIRED!

To accomplish this the present Mayor must be ousted or his veto power taken away. A nice plan is devised, the time of election must be changed and the democratic scheme is to make Director Daniel Marcy of the P. & D. R. R., Mayor; Director Albert R. Hatch, of the P. & D. R. R., counsel for the city to advise of the legality of a new loan; and President Frank Jones, of the P. & D. R. R., to take charge of the rear guard. Then comes a new issue of bonds, which would be signed as readily by the Director-Mayor as were those by the Mayor whom the democrats elected last year. We receive these intimations from democratic sources. The action of the democratic leaders of this city, Jones, Marcy and Hatch, tallies exactly with the hints already given. They want to abbreviate the term of the present Mayor, and propose to run Capt. Marcy again for Mayor in September, when they will use the unscrupulous tools they propose to usurp the places of the present selectmen elected by the people, to over-ride if possible the large republican majority in the city. Failing in this, as is most likely, they intend to repeal the veto power, feeling confident that with all the check-lists in democratic hands they can return a democratic majority of aldermen and councilmen. Should that be the case, even with Mayor Miller re-elected, their plans for getting $200,000 or more from the city treasury for increased aid to the P. & D. R. R. would be easily carried out! It is a desperate game, but does any one doubt the ability of the P. & D. R. R. managers to arrange it? In this connection it may be well to remember that on Wednesday, Mr. Marcy gave notice of a bill in the House allowing an increase of the capital stock of the P. & D. R. R.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, a petition of James F. Jenness for sidewalk at 25 Hanover street was granted.

Petition of Robert Roberts and others relative to addition to Hanover street school house was laid on the table.

Voted, That the City Marshal, Assistant Marshals and Police officers be directed to ascertain what person or persons cut down a beautiful elm tree and carried it away, and girdled others, in the Old North Burying place on the 10th or 11th inst. and have them punished according to last made and provided in such cases.

Petition of John P. Hart and others for fire alarm bell on Cabot street school house, was referred to Committee on Fire Department.

Joint vote—discount on taxes—passed. Vote adding 5 per cent. to taxes passed.

Voted; That the Mayor, Ald. Lefavour and Sise be a committee on Independent Battalion.

Voted, That Special-Police John E. Milton be appointed to duty at the Auburn street Cemetery on Sundays.

The following resolution was passed:

Whereas, The present Pilot laws of this State as regards compulsory pilotage are deemed to be unjust and injurious to the maritime interests of our city; and

Whereas, their repeal will tend to the growth and prosperity of the city;

Therefore, Be it resolved, By the Board of Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Portsmouth, that our Hon. Senator and the Representatives from this city to the State Legislature be and hereby are requested to use every honorable means in their power to effect the immediate repeal of said compulsory pilot laws;

Also, Resolved that the City Clerk be directed to forward a copy of these resolutions to our Hon. Senator and Representatives.

Voted, That the Common Sewer on Hanover street be extended easterly as far as the Chesley House, and that parties be allowed to enter the sewer with drains on the usual terms.

Committee on Fire Department reported that one salt water reservoir is needed near Pleasant street and that the cost of the same 12 feet deep and 6 feet square with conductor will be $450.

The vote passed some weeks since that two salt water reservoirs be constructed, was reconsidered.

The report of the Committee on Fire Department was adopted and the same committee authorized to construct reservoirs, etc.

Voted, That the Mayor and two Aldermen, one from each party, be a Committee to remonstrate with the legislators against the re-warding of this city. Ayes, Ald. Garrett, George, Davis, Lefavour and Trefethen. Ald. Sise and Lefavour, were appointed.

Committee on Fire Department reported an estimate of cost of two kinds of hose. The same Committee were authorized to purchase 1000 feet of such hose as they may deem desirable.

The common council, at a special meeting, Friday evening, passed the appropriation bill, which amounts to $138,165.78, in concurrence with the aldermanic board. This makes the rate of taxation about $2.30 on $100. Last year it was $2.45.

Laconics.

Wanted at the CHRONICLE Office, to complete files, GAZETTES of Feb. 5, and March 19, 1874.

Hon. Isaiah Hanscom, Chief of Bureau of Construction and Repairs, and wife, are at the Rockingham.

Civil Engineer B. F. Chandler, U. S. N., met with quite a serious accident at the Navy Yard on Friday. He was walking on the bridge over the ways of the Franklin ship-house, examining the preparations for the launching of the Enterprise, and not perceiving that the middle sections of the bridge had been removed, to allow the ship to come out, stepped off, falling a distance of fifteen or twenty feet into the water. Fortunately the tide was in, or he would undoubtedly have been killed. He was severely bruised, but managed to swim ashore and was taken home.

Col. Hackett will sell bank shares at auction to-day at his office. See advertisement.

The wagon which ran away with a horse and William H. Porter, the late Portsmouth agent of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, was found in Dover on Thursday, but the man and horse had got away from it.

The body of a man, much decomposed, dressed in the U. S. Marine uniform and with the shirt marked William King, was found in the water near the Newington shore, on Thursday. Coroner Rider decided an inquest not necessary and the body was buried.

The bill amending the city charter will come up in the legislature next Tuesday.

The republicans of Portsmouth have reason to congratulate themselves on the ability and alertness of Messrs. Emery, Kent and other republican representatives who are ever vigilant and ready to expose the high handed outrages being daily attempted.

Mr. Havilah F. Downing of this city, a veteran of the Mexican war, died at the County Farm at Brentwood on Friday. His age was 51 years.

The general committee of 1873, which had charge of the reception of the Sons, will meet as per adjournment, at the City Rooms, July 4th, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

The injustice contemplated by the democratic leaders in gerrymandering this city is shown by the fact that although the republicans cast 1239 votes at the last election and the democrats but 846, the bill amending the charter legislates out of office the republican selectmen chosen at that election and appoints democrats to call the meetings to be held at the next election, in every instance. The selectmen of Ward Three are not touched, because they are democrats. The result gives the democrats twenty-one election officers, and the republicans none, notwithstanding the latter have nearly 400 more voters in the city than the democrats have! Besides this the eighteen democrats authorized to call meetings are also to appoint moderators and clerks of each ward!

HENDERSON & CO.,

ANNOUNCE THEIR

SPRING OPENING

— OF —

Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.

The Largest Stock, The Latest Styles, The Lowest Prices.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay to the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

From One Cent to One Dollar.

Hats, trimmed,

From 50 cts. to $10.00.

And five dollar Trimmed Hats will compare favorably with any ten dollar one in the city.

SASH RIBBONS. . . . . 25 cents per yard.
SILK TIES . . . . . 20 cents each.
FRAMES . . . . . 15 cents each.

TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1616 to '20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy day, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1820—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commercial importance. These two past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
DYSPEPSIA - DEBILITY - DROPSY AND HUMORS,
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an albumen, as easily digested and assimilated with the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, from 3 to the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Daily Chronicle.

A Lady Hounded to Death.

"Gath" writes as follows to the Chicago Tribune, and the editor adds a note to state that the subject of the sketch has since died.

Mrs. Edward M. McCook, formerly Mary Thompson of Peoria, Ill., is dying at this moment—a sad sight for a woman of brilliant beauty, warm heart and social and intellectual culture. She was literally hounded to death by the chivalrous politicians of Colorado, and such vagrant and corrupt newspaper writers here in Washington as could be hired to assail everything that her husband held pure and holy. Her husband was a Major-General of cavalry—one of the seven McCooks, brothers and cousins, who went out at the beginning of the war from the region of Steubenville, Ohio. The old man was shot by guerillas. One of the sons was murdered by a claim-jumper at Yankton, Dakota, and the chivalrous Territorial grand jury failed to indict the assassin for murder. But they and he were better than the murderers of this dying woman, who said to her husband: "Teddy, they have killed me; but forgive them." Other McCooks are in the regular army and navy; one is a Presbyterian clergyman in Philadelphia. They are steady, self-reliant, successful men of the Scotch-Irish race.

Edward M. McCook was Minister to the Sandwich Islands and Governor of Colorado for a full term. He and his brother fell in love at the same time with Miss Tompson while she was at boarding school at Philadelphia. She was remarkable for enamel skin, perfectly natural, with roses in it, and her large and beautiful dark eyes, and luxuriant gold colored hair. Educated, vivacious, and adapted to public life, she was the social admiration wherever her husband went, and her descent was in a manner eminent. She was the grand niece of Charles Thompson, Secretary of the Continental and Federal Congress, and also of Benjamin Thompson, Count Rumford, the celebrated statesman and savant. Her father, Sylvester Thompson, of Peoria, was the step-brother of Oliver Wolcott, Mrs. Knowlton, who is still living in Washington. Governor McCook was very proud of his wife. His enemies began by saying that she had great influence with Mrs. Grant, and a more mysterious influence with the President himself; and that she was another Mrs. Williams. The little chap, with a scared white face, who sends drivel to the Chicago Times, was about the only person capable of abusing this young and interesting lady in this way.

Governor McCook made haste to send his wife to Brooklyn; but this evidence of sensibility only showed the slanderers that they were on the right course, and the shafts of cowardly venom were continued upon this poor, weak creature than whom no man alive ever had a purer wife, sister or mother. Although of a consumptive tendency, she did not die in the natural course of that disease. She died of typhoid pneumonia, the fever coming first, and of a shattered nervous system, the result of trouble, fright, and sleeplessness. Just as the fever found her, she crawled back to Washington to die in her husband's sight. Removed from Willard's Hotel to the residence of her husband's old comrade, General Morgan Smith, Mrs. McCook showed by her incoherent utterances that every malicious arrow was sticking in her brain. Her husband, whose love for her was the vital principle of his existence, sat up by day and night until his hard head also seemed to yield to exhaustion and grief, and he was scarcely lucid, so that they led him in and out like a child. Her lad, six years old, hardly aware of the nature of death, was comforted by Dr. Walker administered the consolation of religion. It was to me the saddest scene in political life, to see this beautiful woman bitten by asps, who will have to answer for it more than they know.

A Graded Sentence.

[South Carolina Paper.]

Judge Mackey passed the following sentence on Alexander Woodley, convicted of burglary: "You have been found guilty of an offense for which you might be sent to the penitentiary for thirty years. The Court will sentence you, however, to only one year. If you are convicted again you will be sentenced to twenty years; if a third time, thirty years. If you are convicted a fourth time you will then have become eligible to a seat in the Legislature."

The Pulpit Yell.

[Evangelist.]

The habit of shouting so loud as to offend the ear is perhaps equally objectionable, while sudden transition from one extreme to the other is sufficiently artificial to comprehend the evils of both. But there is another and a growing fashion, so vicious, so offensive to good taste, so destructive to spiritual emotions, and so repellent to serious contemplations, that a public speaker has need only to hear himself as others hear him, to feel conscience-smitten for disturbing public worship. It is the abrupt transition from low to high—not merely hollowing—that expression is quite too tame, but an instantaneous, startling yell, which would drown the sound of a savage war whoop. Let no one think this is a caricature of what is sometimes witnessed in public speakers. It would be difficult to select language forcible enough to make the description hyperbolical. If there be any who, not having witnessed an instance of this miscalled oratory, are unable to recognize this photograph, let him imagine himself seated in a house of worship in a devout frame of mind, listening with absorbed attention to an instructive discourse in harmony with his serious contemplations, delivered in a tone of voice adapted to the sentiment and to the awakened feelings of the congregation, when, instantly, as with an electric shock, the speaker utters a yell that falls painfully on the dullest ear. The rupture of a water-spout would not more surely discharge its contents than an explosion would empty the mind of all serious thoughts.

Daily Chronicle.

MONDAY, JUNE 15, 1874.

The Legislature.

In the House, Friday, Mr. Emery of Portsmouth offered a resolution that the Committee on Judiciary be instructed to inquire into the expediency of repealing all laws exempting property from taxation. Adopted.

NOTICE OF BILLS.

By Mr. Emery of Portsmouth—A joint resolution in relation to the interference of Federal Officers in the State Elections.

By Mr. Emery of Portsmouth—To authorize the Oceanic Hotel Co. to fund their debt.

Mr. Kidder of Groton asked leave to present the petition of Sarah E. Crosby for redress.

Mr. Emery of Portsmouth, moved that it be read, as he understood that it contained information that the House needed.

It was accordingly read and afforded much amusement, as it proved to be a garrulous production by an old lady, 86 years of age, against the abominations which she alleged arose from "male republican rule," and praying the legislature to reform the judiciary department and the criminal laws which were a disgrace to mankind and trampled women under foot. She had herself suffered evils too great for human endurance, and she asked that a radical change be made.

Mr. Burrows moved that the petition be entered on the journal of the House. (Laughter.)

Mr. Lyman of Exeter, moved that it be laid on the table and that it be read occasionally, (Laughter) and that it be printed for the benefit of the "male republican" members of the House.

Mr. Kent of Portsmouth—According to the decision of the chair yesterday, it is impossible to say who the republican members of the House are. (Laughter)

Mr. Randall of Somersworth, moved that the petition be extended to the old ladies of the other branch.

The Speaker ruled that as the motion would be disrespectful to the honorable Senate it was out of order.

The petition was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The New State.

The Cincinnati Times gives the following interesting information concerning the new State, Colorado:

The House of Representatives have passed the bill admitting the Territory of Colorado as a State. If the past is any promise of the future, she will prove a brilliant acquisition to our galaxy of stars. Her population, by the census of 1870, was 39,864, fully one-third of which had been added during the short time that her railways had been in operation, and which has been augmented fully as much since the taking of the census. Her mining interests are those to which she owes the larger part of her national reputation, and a very handsome showing they make, though their development may well be said to have hardly commenced. The total yield of gold from the Territory from 1860 to 1872, inclusive, is estimated at $60,000,000; while that of silver, whose mining was commenced, with any degree of energy, only so late as 1868, has been since that time a total of nearly $4,000,000. To this may be added an inexhaustible supply of copper, iron, zinc, and galena, and an abundance of the best coal that is to be found in the West. The latter closely resembles anthracite in appearance, but burns with a clear yellow light, giving little soot, and only from two to three per cent. of ashes. The value of the coal veins is greatly enhanced by alternate layers of a first-class article of fire clay and iron ore. The coal has been found in workable veins of fourteen feet in thickness, and underlaid by three to five feet of fire-clay that compares favorably with the best European article.

Immense, however, as is this mineral wealth, it should not cause us to lose sight of the great agricultural advantages of the new State, sufficient to support in comfort all the population that the development of her great mineral interests may call to her territory. Fully one-third of her area of 104,500 square miles is agricultural land of the first quality. The soil of the parks and valleys is peculiarly fertile, while investigation has shown that what was supposed to be the arid and not-to-be cultivated sand of the plains is a mere surface covering, underlaid by a thick soil of the rarest richness, and needing only irrigation, which the mountain streams afford abundant and cheap means of, to blossom like a garden of the gods. Wheat, barley, oats and rye grow in abundance, the average yield of the former being twenty-five bushels to the acre; while vegetables grow to an enormous size and in almost unheard of quantities. Five hundred bushels of potatoes have been gathered from a single acre. The value of the agricultural products for 1872 was estimated at $4,650,000.

But the feature of which the inhabitants of the Territory are most proud is its advantages for stock-raising, and, not without reason, they proclaim that ere many years it will be one of the finest cattle States of the nation. Their countless protected valleys furnish grasses of unusual nutrition, where cattle graze for the year round, and into which have already been introduced large numbers of stock of the finest grades. The value of live stock in 1872 was estimated at $2,871,502, which, in proportion to the population, is a very handsome total.

Colorado, with emigrants steadily pouring in over its 590 miles of running railroad, will take front rank among those Western States to which the Star of Empire takes its way.

Singular Suicide.

Mr. William S. Brown, living in the east part of Candia near the Raymond line, committed suicide under rather strange circumstances, on the 26th ult. He was 69 years of age, in moderate condition as to property, and it is thought by some that, besides depression of mind, he was afflicted with a degree of insanity. He had frequently been heard to say he would end his days by his own act, and on the morning in question told a person living not far away that he should do it that day; but little was thought of it. He told the person referred to where he could find a writing that would explain all. A large rope was about the premises, and he told his wife that it had not been of much use for some time, but he should use it. Not long after he went into his pasture unobserved, and hung himself to a some, crooked tree.

The paper he had left contained full arrangements for his funeral. The text he selected for the occasion was Job 3: 24, 25, 26; "For my sighing cometh before I eat, and my roarings are poured out like the waters. For the thing which I greatly feared is come upon me, and that which I was afraid of is come unto me. I was not in safety, neither had I rest, neither was I quiet; yet trouble came."

The mind when in ruin or some approach to it by mental derangement, or disordered imagination, or distracting fear, is in ruin that is very deplorable. It was sad in our visit to the place to consider what agony this man must have endured in and about his premises, so that life was regarded a burden too intolerable to be borne. Mr. Brown was a native of Ossipee and lived for a time in Raymond, before settling in Candia. He was a member of the Methodist church in Chester. J. P.

Readables.

The Senate passed the new financial bill, Friday, 32 to 23, and as it is more extravagant in some of its features than the former bill, it is generally hoped the President will veto it. Senators Cragin and Wadleigh, who were opposed to the bill, paired off with Senators Cameron and Lewis. The House defeated the bill, 146 to 108, and a new conference was ordered.

Says the New York Tribune: The President is right, and the financial safety of the country is in his hands. The wise thing is for the solid men of the country to hold them up till the going down of the sun, and the completion of the victory. Let Congressmen rage and the inflationists imagine a vain thing. In this matter of the currency, we are on the side President Grant has lately assumed, and the country is there, too.

That spirit killed any cause. There is nothing in the whole temperance movement that was so shockingly used as prayer. It was not used in the right spirit.

A freight car on the B. C. & Montreal Railroad caught fire at Bath, on Saturday last, and was wholly consumed. It was caused by the leaking of gasoline, of which there were ten barrels in the car. The temperature of the car was very high and on opening the door the gas caught fire. There was a small amount of freight belonging to that station burned.

Postmaster Henry C. Henderson of Keene hung himself Friday evening. He was a captain in the 3rd N. H Regt. during the rebellion, was 46 yeaas old, and leaves a wife and daughter. Ha was sunstruck some years ago.

A Concord dispatch of Friday to the Boston Globe says: Mr. Bingham, one of the democratic leaders of the House, was indisposed, to-day. Last week, he intimated that he should not allow the House to adjourn, this week, until Saturday, but in his absence, Mr. Sinclair, at 2 P. M., moved an adjournment until Monday, at 4 P. M., and it was carried. It is suggested that Mr. Bingham's indisposition is owing to his unpleasant passage with Mr. Kent of Portsmouth on Wednesday, but it is more probable that it is due to his incessant and exhausting efforts to keep 170 democrats in the traces.

A Rich Actress.

The popular (if not particularly decent) French opera-singer, Hortense Schneider, is fair, fat and forty, and was lifted from a milliner's shop in a provincial French town to the position she now holds in the mimic world. She is possessed of wonderful jewels, which Olive Logan writes about as follows: "A newspaper man who enjoys the acquaintanceship of the diva, and speaks of calling on her at her dressing-room between the acts, gives an inventory of these jewels. The ear-rings are solitaires, and worth, without the pendants she sometimes wears, over sixteen thousand dollars; two bracelets studded with diamonds all round; four necklaces, on top of each other, the lowest one bearing a magnificent medallion set with enormous stones; a diamond coronet surmounted with stars, an aigrette, a velvet neck-ribbon ornamented with diamond horse-shoes all round; a splendid buckle with her monogram H. and S.; diamond side-combs, and every one of her fingers loaded with gems of the purest water. Total value, even in this market, about two hundred thousand dollars. Where did she get them? Conundrum. 'She must have discovered a mine,' said one gentleman to another last night. 'No—minors,' was the reply."

Drummers.

The Shoe and leather Reporter says that the best kind of a "drummer" is an advertisement in your business paper, and proves the assertion by the following logic:

It has most of the merits and none of the vices of the "travelling man," besides many advantages that are entirely its own; it travels in all directions at once; it visits your customers every week; it interests them in your town, and is building up the general prosperity, while it is faithfully transacting your particular business; it talks with thousands of tongues, and has the confidence of its hearers; it doesn't get drunk; it doesn't play faro; it doesn't lie—very much.

—An English baronet, who has been hunting on the plains, recently applied to the gentlemanly clerk of a hotel at Jacksonville, Fla., for a suite of rooms. His uncivilized appearance aroused the wrath of the man with the diamond breast-pin, and he was shown the door. The next morning the opposition hotel boasted of an English aristocrat and his forty companion hunters, and the luckless scribe is now looking for another situation at the express wish of the proprietor of hotel No. 1.

Plain English.

There is no good reason why an English speaking people should be doctored in Latin. If we should describe the properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in the jargon of the profession, not one reader in twenty would understand what it is good for. We prefer to say in simple words that it possesses strengthening, regulating and purifying qualities of the highest order; that its vegetable ingredients of which it is composed are eminently wholesome and salutary, and that the stimulant which is combined with them is the purest that can be manufactured. We prescribe it, not in garbled Latin, but in the good old mother tongue, as a remedy for languor, debility, nervousness, indigestion, liver complaint, fever and ague, constipation, rheumatism and low spirits, and as preventive of every disease produced by foul air, whether it stagnates in crowded workrooms or imperils life and health in swampy districts and new clearings. So the masses say, and so they have been saying for the last twenty years.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public, that in addition to being Agent for the famous "DOMESTIC," whose merits are so well known, that I am the only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity for the following first-class sewing machines:

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has overcome the weak points of the former invention, which I am prepared to explain to all who will favor me with a call.

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON."

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.
2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.
3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.
4. Runs for years without Repairs.
5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.
6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.
7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of cog-wheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; has the new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.
8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skillful and experienced mechanics, at the celebrated Remington Armory, Ilion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited for the last two years.

Is the only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle "self-setting;" the needle being straight and self-setting much of the perplexity and trouble usual to beginners or inexperienced operators is avoided, as the needle cannot be set wrong.

It has a positive thread controller and tension, enabling it to sew with equal precision from the most delicate texture to the heaviest material, and to use with equal facility, silk, linen or cotton thread. It uses the same size thread on the under as on the upper side, and sews across the heaviest seams, or from one to many thicknesses of cloth without change of needle, tension, or threads.

The machine is made of the finest material, and of most perfect finish, and no pains or expense is spared to make the machine in all its points fitted to meet the wants of every family wherever introduced. The "Victor" has met with universal favor; and so great has been the increasing demand the past year, that the "Victor" Sewing Machine Company have been compelled to build a new and extensive factory, and to more than double their facilities for supplying the wants of the sewing machine trade. With its recent improvements it is a simple, durable and complete family sewing machine, and I guarantee it will give the purchaser satisfaction.

THE DAVIS.

Since the organization of the "Davis" Sewing Machine Company, nearly five years ago, its business has increased to an astonishing degree. Its sales for the first year amounted to one thousand machines, and each succeeding year its sales have doubled those of the preceding one—an increase of one hundred per cent. per annum.

The "Davis" sewing machines sold in Portsmouth and vicinity during the past few years have given good satisfaction; but the "Davis" machine of the present day has a number of essential points of superiority over the old "Davis" machine, namely:

Among the various improvements we call attention to the Milled Shank Needle, by which device all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same position in relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use. A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having a positive motion and entirely noiseless. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small needles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes' time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machine are new and differ widely from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the wheel feed, and the ratchet, or forward feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is automatically moved forward at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four-cornered movement produced by complicated under gear. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to also take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot in both cases comes down on the goods and holds them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be obvious then, that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser-foot is retarding or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must neccessarily be fulled or gathered on to the upper to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must snap wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the fulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors discard their use in seams requiring strength.

This great defect has existed since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and presents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conclusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity,

I remain yours faithfully,

Launch of the U. S. S. "Enterprise."

The U. S. sloop-of-war "Enterprise" was successfully launched from the Franklin ship-house at the navy yard on Saturday, a large concourse of lookers-on assisting, the navy yard bridge being crowded, the Kittery shore and Stimpson's wharf well populated, and the floor and galleries of the ship-house itself giving accommodations to hundreds of ladies and gentlemen. About one hundred and fifty persons were launched in the vessel, including many naval officers and ladies, and Harlow's Marine Band to enliven the occasion with music. The little ferry steamer "Emerald" made two extra trips, and took over many ladies and invited guests from this city.

At 10:55 the sound of mauls told that wedging-up had commenced, and it continued with short intermissions until 11:35, when the vessel started, slid smoothly down the ways and into the water, and ran nearly over to Kittery (she was not far from it when she started) before she was brought up, causing hardly a ripple on the water. The band was playing a march as the ship began to move, but instantly struck into "Yankee Doodle," and as soon as she was stationary once more gave "Hail Columbia;" and the first of the salute of ten guns sounded at the instant the vessel touched the water. The ceremony of christening was performed by Miss Lilian Seaman, daughter of Sailmaker Seaman, U. S. N., who broke a bottle of wine (and broke it into more than ten thousand pieces, too,) over the bow as the vessel was waterborne, and declared her name to be the "Enterprise."

Steamer Clara Bateman steamed alongside and made fast, the fleet of boats which had been on the lookout for wedges and blocks pulled away, and the vessel was started on her way to her berth near the receiving ship; but she soon stopped, her bottom having unluckily got hold of the mud not far from Pumpkin Island,—a mishap which, while no injury to the vessel will result from it, cast a shadow of annoyance over the affair, in which it was the only hitch. She came off at the next high water, and is now at the wharf.

After the launch a bountiful collation in the ship-house was partaken of by the ladies, naval officers, yard clerks, members of the press-gang and numerous other guests of the builder of the ship, Mr. Griffiths, Mr. Jas. S. Peirce of the Rockingham House being the caterer.

The U. S. Steamer "Enterprise" is the first launched of the eight steam-sloops-of-war authorized by Congress, and is one of the two building at this yard from the same moulds, the frames of which were sawed out of live oak at the same time. The "Enterprise" compares favorably with any vessel of her class ever built by the navy, both in model and mechanism, and is claimed to have cost for labor in constructing very much less than the days' work twin vessel, which is scarcely more than half as far advanced.

The builder of the "Enterprise," Mr. Griffiths, has had a ripe experience of more than fifty years in the ship yard, twenty of which has been spent in the several navy yards; and he is about the ablest writer on nautical matters and ship building in the United States, in our opinion. His last service rendered the government, previous to building the "Enterprise," was the erection of machinery and buildings for bending ship timber at the Charlestown yard, of which machine he is the inventor. This was also built by contract, giving, as in the case of the "Enterprise," abundant satisfaction to the government and to the officers commanding that station under Rear Admiral Stedman, who inaugurated the contract system, being impelled from what he then saw to recommend that the government built its vessels by contract, keeping its yards supplied with materials, and contract its work to the best responsible builders, believing that were such a course pursued there would no longer be occasion for the remarks of Senator Anthony in the U. S. Senate when speaking of the cost and inefficiency of our navy; "one hundred millions and nothing to show for it."

The Bureau of Construction acted wisely in having three of these steam sloops built on the same model and specifications,—one by the day in the usual manner; the second by contract for labor in the navy yard, the materials and facilities of the yard furnished as required; and the third built by contract outside of the navy yard. This outside vessel is being built at East Boston by Mr. Donald McKay. Mr. S. H. Pook, constructor of Charlestown yard superintends Mr. McKay's ship, and Asst. Constructor Phillip Hichborn superintends the construction of the "Enterprise." The principal dimensions of the vessels are as follows: 185 feet between perpendiculars, 35 feet extreme breadth, and 16 feet, 2 inches deep; internal capacity, 640 tons.

City Valuation.

The Board of Assessors report the valuation of the city to be $6,284,158, of which the real estate amounts to $3,126,140; shares in banks $979,578; stock in trade $920,358; mills, etc., $334,000; money at interest $316,344; land 146,896; wharves 46,360; bridges $40,000; carriages $34,616; aqueduct $32,500. The number of polls is 2304; number of dogs 223, including 27 female canines. There are 572 horses valued at $56,118, 75 oxen $6314, 502 cows $15,060, 19 neat stock $394, and 20 sheep $80.

Mt. Olivet Baptist Church have engaged the services of Rev. Mr. Tate, formerly of Virginia, and more recently of Haverhill, Mass., as their pastor. He will act as treasurer of the society. Services are held every Sunday afternoon and evening at the usual hours at the south ward room.

The Court Street Christian Society closed its Strawberry Festival on Friday evening. Its patrons were entertained by Harlow's orchestra and strawberries and cream, ice cream, lemonade, etc., were among the temptations offered to the palate. The managers of this Society evidently have a keen sense of the rights as well as the wishes of those who patronize their Fairs, Festivals, or such like entertainments, and conduct them in a style that will induce one to go again.

The Naval Band is engaged to play at Boxford, Mass., on the 4th of July, the occasion being celebrated by the dedication of a soldiers' monument.

The Boston Herald has arranged for a regular Sunday train on which to send its Sunday issue to Exeter. The train will leave Boston at 8 A. M., and leave Exeter for Boston at 5 P. M. Sunday trains are very much needed on the Eastern Railroad to accommodate through and local trade.

Base Ball.

The Granite State Base Ball Club played a game with the High School Club, Saturday afternoon, for a new ball, the score being as follows:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	Total
Granite State	3	5	6	2	5	5	8	1	6	—41
High School	2	0	2	2	0	3	1	0	1	—11

Scorer, George Wallace; umpire, John Cunningham. Time of game, three hours. Charles Hall, a twelve-year-old member of the Granite States, made six runs and two outs,—the second best record any member of the club has made.

Proscription of Republicans as a Party Policy.

[Alabama Journal.]

The Alabama Press Association is now in session at Birmingham. The association is composed exclusively, as far as our information extends, of democratic and conservative editors. In this it is an anomaly outside Mississippi. In that State republican editors, being refused admission to the democratic Press Convention, established one of their own.

It has already been boldly proclaimed in Georgia that no one shall be considered a gentleman who joins the republican party, and passion-blind zealots in Alabama would put into successful operation the same tactics here. And yet, while this is the settled purpose of the party, and it is in full blast of successful experiment—as is evidenced by the publication of Ben Hill's panacea in all the democratic papers of the State—they would pretend to extend hospitalities to Northern editors for the purpose of having their minerals, manufacturing and agricultural facilities written up for Northern eyes! And why? As an encouragement to Northern people to come here, and by their contributions of money and muscle, to assist in building up this democratic-cursed section! And yet when people do come here from the North, and contribute their full quota to the building up of the State, is it not notorious that they are expected to surrender their political and personal independence as the condition of popular favor, and to avoid the social ostracism which is their inevitable doom if they shall dare think their own thoughts as every freeman should? But the device is too thin. It smacks too much of ostrich wisdom. We do not object to every possible courtesy being extended to Northern visitors. On the contrary, we cordially commend hospitality to whomsoever extended. But the New York Press Association is composed, we apprehend, of both republicans and democrats. Suppose that half of these Northern visitors shall be found to be republicans.

Is it pretended that they are as more worthy of personal or social, or honorable attentions than their equals in every respect located in the South? And if not how comes it that it is proper for the same persons and associations, located in our midst, to show Northern republicans honors and courtesies, at the same time that they pretend that Southern republicans are unworthy of gentlemanly recognition merely because they happen to be republicans? Is it only to get their influence in our behalf? If so, is it not a species of deception perpetrated upon those who shall be induced, by the representations of those thus entertained, to come among us? We can imagine the baffled rage with which the average democratic editor will meet this exposure. They will doubtless resort to their usual refuge of misrepresentation, but they cannot truthfully affirm that it is not facts which we proclaim. It seems to us if there was a real desire and an honest purpose to be tolerant of Northern men not democrats, the best way to show it would be by commencing at home and making the demonstration among those already located in the South. But we all know there is no such intention among the average democrat. What they want is for Northern men to come here, and buy lands at high prices, or to build up manufactures, and add wealth to the community and State, then to forsake their own old-time and inalienable habit of doing their own thinking, by selecting some democratic oracle to do it for them, and implicitly obeying instructions.

HENDERSON & CO.,
ANNOUNCE THEIR
SPRING OPENING
— OF —

Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.

The Largest Stock, The Latest Styles, The Lowest Prices.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay as the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

From One Cent to One Dollar.

Hats, trimmed,

From 50 cts. to $10.00.

And five dollar Trimmed Hats will compare favorably with any ten dollar one in the city.

FRAMES . . . . . 13 cents each.

Blessings on the Boys.

Blessings on the boys. Not the young, healthy, rosy-cheeked, male savages of thirteen or sixteen years. They cannot help being boys, and deserve no special credit or condemnation for it. But blessings on those hale old boys of forty or forty-five, or even sixty years, who bend their broad shoulders to the burdens of life, but who do not let those burdens crush their hearts; whose eyes are quick to catch the light of merriment over a droll story, and quicker to fill with tears of sympathy for a friend's distress; who retain boyish love and reverence for all that is womanly; whose boyish confidence in humanity as a whole, though often shocked, never dies; who watch eagerly for the bright spots of sunshine on life's carpet, and seat themselves where it falls brightest and warmest. They rarely grow very rich, for their boyish generosity is too careless for that; they may not command the awe of admiring crowds; they are not always systematic enough to be safely trusted with important office; but the nimble feet of childhood spring to meet them, manhood trustingly extends to them a wide-open hand, woman greets them with a confiding smile, and all through life they live and receive great treasures of pure love. God himself is very tender to these boys.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with despatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

JULY 31, 1874.
In announcing the Fifth and last of the series of Gift Concerts given for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, the Trustees and Manager refer with pride and pleasure to the four which have been already given: The first, December 16, 1871, the second, December 2, 1872; the third, July 8, 1873; and the fourth, March 31st, 1874.
Under their charter, granted by a special act of the Kentucky Legislature, March 16, 1871, the Trustees are authorized to give One More, and Only One More Gift Concert. With the money arising from this Fifth and LAST Concert, the Library, Museum, and other departments are to be enlarged and endowed with a fixed and certain annual income. Such an endowment fund is desired, as will secure beyond peradventure, not only the maintenance of this magnificent establishment, but its constant growth.
THE FIFTH GIFT CONCERT
for the purpose mentioned, and which is positively and unequivocally announced as the Last which will ever be given under this charter and by the present management.
Will come off in the Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,
Friday, July 31, 1874.
At this final Concert everything will be upon a scale corresponding with its increased importance. The music will be rendered by an orchestra consisting of one hundred performers selected for their fame as different bands, and the unprecedented sum of $2,500,000
divided into twenty thousand gifts, will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, scarching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

The Game He Didn't Understand.

[New Orleans Picayune.]

The best poker hand we ever heard of was held by old Weasel the other night. Weasel didn't know much about poker, but he wanted to learn, and every now and then (the party was playing euchre) he would show his cards and ask if that wasn't a good hand. Once or twice he bet, but somebody always beat him, because he knew so little about the game. After a while, as Weasel was dealing, and when he had thrown the cards around to each one, he stopped and looked at his three. He looked a good while. Then he got excited.

"Now I know this is a good hand. I've learned something about poker in the last two hours, and I'll bet $25 on these three cards. It's just the best hand I ever saw."

Jones had beaten Weasel on this sort of a banter already, and so he took up his cards. He had three aces—a pretty good hand for three cards. Nobody could have a full or fours, and his threes were the biggest in the deck. He bent a pitying smile on old Weasel, and said, "I think I've got something pretty good here, but I couldn't bet less than $50 on it. We're not playing poker, you know, and these outside issues are irregular. I bet $50."

"Done!" said old Weasel; "what have you got?"

They put up their money, and then Jones showed his hand.

"Here's three aces, you old mutton-head! You can't beat that with any three cards on earth. You ought to know better than to—"

"Hold on," cried old Weasel, throwing down the king, ten and seven of hearts. "That's a flush, ain't it? When you've got all of a suit that's a flush I believe, and a flush always beats threes. I don't know much about poker, but it seems to me I've got the best hand out of jail."

Jones had forgotten about flushes. In fact, the whole party rather underrated old Weasel because he was a religious man not supposed to know anything about cards. But they kept a very watchful eye on him after that, and when he spoke of poker hands they all insisted on sticking to the game they were playing.

—"Do you like the piano?" some one asked Theophile Gautier. "I prefer it to the guillotine," was the reply of the poet.

—They've just had a beer trial in New York, where Mr. Schwartz, editor of The Brewer, was put on to the stand to testify what lager beer is made of. His answer was "water, malt, hops, sugar, coriander seeds, paradise seeds, Irish moss, isinglass, and cocculus indicus." It has a pleasing and melodious sound.

—A writer in the Milwaukee Sentinel deserves the respectful sympathy of all gentlemen who give out their washing. He says: "It is awfully annoying to have some other fellow's clothes left in one's room by the washerwoman. Saturday we put on another fellow's shirt, but couldn't wear it. Although it was ruffled around the bottom, the sleeves were too short to button cuffs on, and there was no place for a collar."

TUESDAY, JUNE 16, 1874.

The Civil Rights Bill.

A southern correspondent of the New York World describes as follows the feeling against the civil rights bill in the south:

Education, the greatest need of the South in her present anomalous and most wretched state, will be annihilated by it, and "the barbarism of slavery" will be enlightenment itself in comparison with the direct consequences of Sumner's pet measure. The States have an aggregate of over 4,000,000 illiterate persons ten years old and over, being five-sevenths of the total illiteracy of the country. To combat this the South has made what must be considered, with her limited means, a herculean effort. Think of Virginia adding 2,900 schools to her number in a single year! Think of Alabama increasing her school-taxes $200,000 in two years. This progress, this struggle, this desperate effort to dispel the clouds of ignorance is instantly paralysed if the Civil Rights bill should pass.

So far as the rest goes the bill does not amount to much. The travelling public will not be much affected by it, nor will the dead turn in their coffins on account of it. The Baltimore hotel clerks are very jolly on the subject, but the barbers take it as grand serieuz. "By zoun," says Ferrandini, "if a nigre come to my place to get shaved, so he shall. But he will not be wise to come if he have some pimples on his chin.' The Civil Rights bill say nothing about keeping sharp razors for Messieurs, the gentleman of color." At the Carrolton this morning I asked an oiled and curled Assyrian bull in the office, with his hair parted exactly in the middle and his shoulders thrown magnificently back, what they proposed to do in case the collud gemmen tried to enforce the Civil Rights bill on them. "Do!" he cried, with sublime disdain, "why take 'em in, of course, and do for 'em! The traveller selects the hotel, me boy, and in doing so gets all the law allows him. But the landlord selects the room he goes to after he gets in, and the waiter selects his food! See me? Is there anything in the Civil Rights bill to prevent me from sending our colored guests to the main trucks, three or four stories higher than the elevator goes? Imagine a darkey with a good appetite paying $4 a day and trying to masticate and digest one of our civil rights beefsteaks for breakfast! Is there anything in the bill to prevent us from feeding darkies on chuck and whitleather? How often do you think Sambo will come back after a visit to our house? He likes to get his money's worth as well as the next man, and he's sensitive, too, Sambo is; he won't like being put in a place where the waiters are either so deaf they can't hear his orders or so familiar they spill hot soup down his back. I tell you this whole civil rights business is a humbug! Talk about introducing their brown carcases into our cemeteries, for instance. Why, a dead nigger would come to life sooner than be buried among white folks here! You know how terribly afraid they are of body-snatchers? Well, there's a league of young doctors and medical students here pledged and sworn to resurrect every nigger that gets himself buried in any of our cemeteries. And they'll do it, too. Is there anything particular in the Civil Rights bill against Ku-Kluxing dead darkies? Not if I know it, there ain't." And the magnificent creature turned impatiently away, evidently disgusted to find me so simple.

Readables.

Sallie Smith, aged 17, a student of the female school at Oakland, Ky., was fatally burned, Thursday night, during a school exhibition. She was standing on the stage near a coal oil lamp, which exploded, and enveloped her in flames. She rushed among the audience, causing great confusion, most of them escaping by the windows and doors. Her father in endeavoring to save her had his hands seriously burned.

Miss Clara Morris, the New York actress, is going to Europe to learn how to poison herself in style by taking a few lessons from Mlle. Croizette of Paris. Clara is to appear in "The Sphinx" next year, and like a faithful devotee to her art, doesn't mean to be outdone even in dying, by any foreigner.

They have a machine attached to the gas lights in Pittsfield, Mass., with which by a push the gas is lighted and the works are set to run just as many hours as is desired, at the expiration of which time the machine itself shuts off the gas. It is the invention of Mr. Dunbar, the superintendent.

There is an enterprise on foot in Mobile, Ala., to push the civil rights question to its logical conclusion. The plan is to take a dozen rough, dirty plantation negroes and start on a Northern tour via Louisville and Cincinnati. The party will apply for admission into palace sleeping-cars and first-class hotels all along the route. If refused, as they doubtless will be, actions for damages will be instituted in every case.

State News.

The new hotel at Dixville Notch is rapidly approaching completion.

There is a row in the graduating class of the Dover High School, and the Supreme Court will be asked to pass upon the right of the school committee to compel them to hold their graduating exercises at the City Hall.

The storm of Sunday week had some singular effects in New London, the most marked being the changing of the leaves on the maple trees from the fresh green of the season to a sickly yellow color, the change being produced probably by an excess of ozone in the atmosphere.

A man named Rowe, of Epping, sent a man to Newmarket with a load of barrels in a hay-rack drawn by two horses. He also sent with him a letter telling the purchaser not to pay the man the money for the barrels, but to put it down to his credit. The man whom he sent tore open the letter and substituted therefore an order for the purchaser to pay the money to him (the bearer). The ruse was successful, and man, money and team have departed for parts unknown.

In this State there are sixty-four savings banks, having 92,788 depositors. The aggregate amount of deposits is now $28,829,376,73, being an increase of $866,835,85, the past year.

As Mr. O. F. Stacy and Afton Titus were coming through the "Whittemore opening," the other side of the Dixville Notch, a few evenings ago, they were startled by seeing a full-grown gray wolf cross the road about 25 or 30 rods ahead of them. They fired three or four shots at him from a revolver, but failed to disturb him.

The reports of the County Commissioners and the County Treasurer are for the year ending May 12, 1874, and give a very full exhibit of the state of the finances of Rockingham County. It appears that in the May previous the number of inmates of the almshouse at the County farm, was 166. During the year 15 died. The insane were 31, idiotic 18, blind 11, able to work 28. The report of the County Treasurer shows that the County debt has been diminished $18,352 for the year. This is gratifying. The various County reports make a pamphlet of 47 pages, and the work should be widely circulated in the County. The County debt was $151,350 in 1870, $141,050 in 1871, $115,927 in 1872, and was $107,327 the past year. The expenses for paupers at the County farm were $50,161.63 in 1869, $34,772.57 in 1870, $22,087.29 in 1871, $21,073.63 in 1872, and $21,101.02 in 1873.

He Died With His Boots On.

[Helena (Ark.) World.]

Bob Reed, well known in this city and surrounded country as a desperate and rough man, was sent to the land that the earthly never see, this morning at half-past one. Elisha Cannon, Reed's partner in the restaurant and saloon business, did the work, and the place where Reeds's light went out is on the pavement in front of the cigar store of E. Ehrman. It seems that Reed and Cannon were constantly engaged in broils, and, notwithstanding their association, were never friends. They came to this city about two years since, from the mouth of White River, where they had kept a wharf boat boarding house, and where Reed became notorious in consequence of his unlawful way of living. Tis said that Reed, during his residence at the mouth of White River, would oftentimes get on a spree and take charge of the town, and if any resistance was made would not hesitate to shoot down any one in his way. He once attempted the capture of the steamer Belle Lee, which was lying at the mouth of the river taking on coal, in company with a man of his kind. He was shot in many places and was glad to get away with his body filled with the pistol shots of the officers of the boat, and leave his companion on the boat, stark and stiff. Such is the kind of man that Reed was before he came to Helena. Since his arrival in this city his career has been as fearful as it could be, being a succession of rows and brawls hideous to hear and think of. Scarcely a month passed without Reed being prominent in rows in houses of ill-fame or other places not more reputable. Not more than a year ago Reed and Martin McDonough got into a drunken row, and McDonough was laid upon the ground a corpse. The affair occurred in Reed's saloon, and probably all the details were never brought to light. For killing McDonough, Reed was acquitted. Reed was noted for his neatness in dress and quiet manners when on the streets in the daytime. Elisha Cannon is quite a young man, not being more than twenty-one years of age. Nothing disreputable that we know of has marked his career, and during his residence at the mouth of White River and this place his appearance has indicated the better class of saloon keepers. He never seemed out of order, but was, so far as the public knew, a man who deported himself well. Since their hotel was closed out it is known that Reed made many threats against Cannon. Last evening at twelve o'clock they met at the saloon of Moses Tinney, in South Helena, and drank together. Afterwards Reed made some remarks of a violent character, and Cannon, leaving the party, proceeded up the street to the Metropolitan Hotel, and procured a double barrelled shotgun. In the meantime Reed, in company with James Creamer, walked up Main street as far as Porter street, and was returning when Cannon jumped out of the Metropolitan Hotel entrance, and calling to Creamer to get out of the way, fired and ran up stairs. Reed fell and expired in three minutes. When called upon by Mr. Creamer to say what he had to say, he uttered an oath, with the words "he has got me?"

Justice Burnett held an inquest upon the body this morning. Verdict, that the deceased came to his death through a shotgun in the hands of Elisha Cannon.

Cannon, after the killing, departed and is not now in the city, nor will he be in attendance on the funeral.

The authorities are not going to spend any vast amount of wealth in searching for Cannon. They seem to say silently, 'tis well.

Marblehead Dialect.

(John W. Chadwick, in Harper's Magazine for July.)

The hoarse refrain of Whittier's ballad is the best-known example of the once famous Marblehead dialect, and it is not a bad one. To what extent this dialect was peculiar to Marblehead it might be difficult to determine. Largely, no doubt, it was inherited from English ancestors. Its principal delight consists in pronouncing o for a and a for o. For example, if an old-fashioned Marblehead wished to say "he was born in a barn," he would say, "I was barn in a born." The a also was turned into a, and even into o, and the e into w. "That vessel's stern" became "that wessel's starn," or "storn." I remember a school-boy declaiming from Shakespeare, "Thou little walliant, great in williany." There was a great deal of shortening. The fine name Crowninshield became Grounsel, and Florence became Flurry, and a Frenchman named Blanepied found himself changed into Blumpy. Endings in une and ing were alike changed into in. Misfortune was misfartin, and fishing was always fishin. There were words peculiar to the place. One of these was planchment for ceiling. Crim was another, meaning to shudder with cold, and there was an adjective, crimmy. Still another was clitch, meaning to stick badly, surely an onomatopoetic word that should be naturalized before it is too late. Some of the swearing, too, was neither by the throne nor footstool, such as "Dahst my eyes!" and "Godfrey darmints." The ancient dialect in all its purity is now seldom used. It crops out here and there sometimes where least expected, and occasionally one meets with some old veteran whose speech has lost none of the ancient savor.

Business Notices.

Plain English.

There is no good reason why an English speaking people should be doctored in Latin. If we should describe the properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in the jargon of the profession, not one reader in twenty would understand what it is good for. We prefer to say in simple words that it possesses strengthening, regulating and purifying qualities of the highest order; that the vegetable ingredients of which it is composed are eminently wholesome and salutary, and that the stimulant which is combined with them is the purest that can be manufactured. We prescribe it, not in garbled Latin, but in the good old mother tongue, as a remedy for languor, debility, nervousness, indigestion, liver complaint, fever and ague, constipation, rheumatism and low spirits, and as preventive of every disease produced by foul air, whether it stagnates in crowded workrooms or imperils life and health in swampy districts and new clearings. So the masses say, and so they have been saying for the last twenty years.

"Happiness, is the absence of pain," says Jean Paul Richter, and 20,000 greatful patients bless the ANAKESIS of Dr. Silence is the only infallible cure for PILES ever discovered. It is purely scientific, combining the best methods of the French, English and American surgeons, acting as an instrument, poultice and medicine, and not only affording instant relief from excruciating pain, but performing an absolute and permanent cure. All Doctors approve it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. Depot, Walker street, New York.

Helmbold's Buchu is still in the zenith of its popularity. Notwithstanding the absence of Dr. Helmbold, the celebrated medicine is still manufactured at the laboratory in Philadelphia, and is sold by all respectable druggists. It is warranted for all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Beware of counterfeits. Genuine has proprietor's private stamp. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

French Fashions have ruled the world, because of the readiness with which the French people adopt all that is most pleasing, most beneficial, or most economical. In the matter of beverages, French Vanilla Chocolate has always been esteemed a luxury that strengthened instead of enervating; yet at the Paris Exposition our old Boston house—Walter Baker & Co.—bore away the first prize for excellence from the whole world, and at the Vienna Exposition was awarded the Medal of Merit.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public, that in addition to being Agent for the famous "DOMESTIC," whose merits are so well known, that I am the only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity for the following first-class sewing machines:

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has overcome the weak points of the former invention, which I am prepared to explain to all who will favor me with a call.

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON."

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.
2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.
3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.
4. Runs for years without Repairs.
5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.
6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.
7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of cog-wheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; has the new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.
8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skillful and experienced mechanics, at the celebrated Remington Armory, Illion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited for the last two years.

Is the only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle "self-setting;" the needle being straight and self-setting much of the perplexity and trouble usual to beginners or inexperienced operators is avoided, as the needle cannot be set wrong.

It has a positive thread controller and tension, enabling it to sew with equal precision from the most delicate texture to the heaviest material, and to use with equal facility, silk, linen or cotton thread. It uses the same size thread on the under as on the upper side, and sews across the heaviest seams, or from one to many thicknesses of cloth without change of needle, tension, or threads.

The machine is made of the finest material, and of most perfect finish, and no pains or expense is spared to make the machine in all its points fitted to meet the wants of every family wherever introduced. The "Victor" has met with universal favor; and so great has been the increasing demand the past year, that the "Victor" Sewing Machine Company have been compelled to build a new and extensive factory, and to more than double their facilities for supplying the wants of the sewing machine trade. With its recent improvements it is a simple, durable and complete family sewing machine, and I guarantee it will give the purchaser satisfaction.

THE DAVIS.

Since the organization of the "Davis" Sewing Machine Company, nearly five years ago, its business has increased to an astonishing degree. Its sales for the first year amounted to one hundred machines, and each succeeding year its sales have doubled those of the preceding one—an increase of one hundred per cent. per annum.

The "Davis" sewing machines sold in Portsmouth and vicinity during the past few years have given good satisfaction; but the "Davis" machine of the present day has a number of essential points of superiority over the old "Davis" machine, namely:

Among the various improvements we call attention to the Milled Shank Needle, by which device all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same position in relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use. A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having a positive motion and entirely noiseless. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small needles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes' time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machines are new and differ widely from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the wheel feed, and the ratchet, or four motion feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is automatically moved forward at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four motioned movement produced by cams beneath under gear. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to also take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot in both cases comes down on the goods and holds them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be obvious that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser-foot is retarding or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must necessarily be pulled or gathered on to the upper to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must snap wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the pulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors discard their use in seams requiring strength.

This great defect has existed since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and presents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conclusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity, I remain yours faithfully,

SAMUEL M. JOY, Agent,

Wanted at the CHRONICLE Office, to complete files, GAZETTES of Feb. 5, and March 19, 1874.

The cable steamer Faraday is expected in a few hours. She was taking in 800 tons of coal at Halifax, Saturday. An attempt at mutiny by some of the crew had been made. The Ambassador is daily expected and the shore end of the cable will be laid with ceremonies soon after her arrival. The revenue cutter Levi Woodbury returned to the lower harbor on Sunday. Preparations for the proposed banquet are being made by a committee of the city government and citizens.

Bully Bingham seems to have lost caste among the democratic legislators since he was worsted last week by Mr. Kent. There seems to be a growing jealousy at Concord among the leaders of the democracy, each endeavoring to foil the schemes of the others. Bingham's assumption of leadership brought the combined opposition to oppose him, and his wings were clipped. Hatch is as tickled with the Speakership as a fly with a big lump of sugar, and now dares entertain the notion that he would be an available candidate for U. S. Senator two years hence! The cute Sinclair rejoices in the downfall of Bingham and winks at the idea of Hatch pretending to dispute with him for the office he is so confident of obtaining. Our good-natured and able friend Frink encourages Hatch's Senatorial ambition, and has both eyes on the Congressional nomination for this district, while Jones will be content with the gubernatorial nomination.

Hon. Virgil Delphini Parris, Buchanan's naval store-keeper at this station in 1858, whose sympathy with rebellion was so open that he was advised to leave Portsmouth to escape a coat of tar and feathers, died at Paris Hill, Me., Saturday, at the age of 67 years. He was a member of Congress from Maine in 1840.

The Times affects to ridicule the "cat in the meal" referred to in the CHRONICLE of Friday; but that cat has got a very long tail, and may commit such havoc in the democratic meal-barrel that the democratic cake won't bake half so well as they hope, next September.

A letter from Gen. S. G. Griffin received by Mr. Samuel Dodge announces with regret that the proposed Reunion of the veterans of the 2d New Hampshire is necessarily postponed for the present, and will not probably take place this year.

The dead body found in the water at Newington last week has been identified as that of a marine named Barr, who has been missing from the barracks about four months. The clothing marked "William King" was part of a lot sold at the navy yard before Barr's disappearance, and was purchased by him at the auction.

Col. William H. Hackett on Saturday sold National Mechanics' and Traders' Bank stock at auction, at $131.50 and $131.75 per share.

Mr. A. Shaw Waldron, the well known Christian Shore devotee of Terpsichore, was agreeably surprised on Friday afternoon by being presented with an elegant and costly trombone, the gift of a few personal friends.

Already a democratic surveyor has put himself in training for the office of City Lot-layer, having sold his theodolite and things as being entirely inadequate to the work of running the democratic ward-boundaries, and purchased a corkscrew and a two-gallon jug of whiskey with the proceeds. He hopes to be able to trace the devious paths of the democratic party of this city with the corkscrew, but if that fails him he is confident the whiskey will enable him to go over the ward-lines without difficulty.

Several car-loads of lumber received from Burlington, Vt., via Concord railroad, will be shipped from this port by schooner to Staten Island.

Brig Josie A. Deveraux, in coming up the harbor, Monday afternoon, ran into the schooner Ida & Annie at Pier wharf, carrying away the latter's bow-sprit and jib-boom.

Schooner Raswell, in coming up the harbor, Monday afternoon, ran into Fernald's wharf, slightly damaging her bow.

Tom Collins lives in Ward 6.

Schooner Sharon, at Concord Railroad wharf, is loading with lumber shipped from West Lebanon by Messrs. French and Peaslee of Concord, and destined for York beach, to build Summer cottages.

"You're Another."

That is what our democratic neighbor, the Times, says in reply to our little notices of the proposed democratic gerrymander. It says the democrats have "got to do it,' and then proceeds thusly:

"It has been done before, and you know 'history repeats itself.' You fellows fixed things to suit yourselves some years ago, and it doesn't look well to 'cry baby' now that we are about to follow the example set us."

So, that's what all the democratic professions of the last seventeen years end in! "What a fall was there." Here have our democratic brethren been for years wailing piteously over republican misdeeds, "violations of the sanctity of the ballot-box," "partizan legislation" and "proscription," "caring more for the interests of their party than for those of the state and nation," and all that sort of thing,—and with blushing ingenuousness acknowledging that the only way to reform all such abuses and lift municipal, State and national politics and legislation above the debased plane of political trickery and tricksters was to put the democratic party in power. We have been told a thousand times and in a thousand different ways that the democratic party had an immense stock of purity and political morality on hand,—and we didn't know but what it might be so, as that party never used up any political morality in the public service when in power,—and now to have the democrats plead "the example set us" by the republicans as an excuse for the most outrageous piece of "partizan legislation" and ignoring of the sacred "supremacy of the ballot" which ever disgraced a New Hampshire legislature, is humiliating in the extreme. From what our local contemporary says we can only gather that democratic "reform" means merely the adoption and exaggeration of the worst and most savagely denounced measures and "principles" of the republicans. "O tempora! O Moses!"

The Bottom Fell Out.

Civil Engineer Chandler, of the navy yard, objects to having the idea go abroad that he doesn't know enough to keep him from walking into a hole in broad daylight with his eyes open, (as might be inferred from the published account of his walking off the bisected bridge at the end of the Franklin ship-house on Friday,) particularly when the hole was made under his own orders and he was of course aware of its existence. It seems he did not walk overboard at all, but happened to tread on a piece of plank about five feet long and fifteen inches wide, which had been deprived of support except at one end by being sawed off; and immediately the Civil Engineer, the treacherous plank and a crowbar went through the hole and started on a brief but spirited race to see which should get into the water first, the lookers-on reporting the result a dead heat. Mr. Chandler swam ashore and clambered out of the water, somewhat annoyed and considerably wet and bruised; but was able to be around on Saturday afternoon, and we hope will experience no serious inconvenience from his fall or his landing in the water.

Suspected Thief.

City Marshal Johnson and Asst. Marshal Shannon, on Sunday evening, while searching for a boat-thief, in a house of ill-fame found a man who answered pretty well the description of the man they were after. On searching him a handkerchief marked William Johnson was found, about five dollars' worth of postage and revenue stamps and seventy dollars in ten, fifteen and twenty-five cent script. The man gave his name as James Higgins, and was taken before the court on Monday on a charge of fornication, and bound over in the sum of $200. He had on a rough fisherman's suit of clothes, outside, and underneath them a very nice suit. He is supposed by the Marshal to have broken into and robbed some country store in which is a post-office. He is about five feet four inches high, of dark complexion, and has dark hair, black whiskers which appear to have been recently cut short, and large grey eyes. His good clothes consist of light coat and pants. In addition to the script and stamps above mentioned, he had two dollars in silver.

A Suggestion.

Messrs., Editors:—I noticed an account in your paper recently of a runaway, caused by a horse taking fright at a train of cars on or near Portsmouth Bridge. It has long been a wonderment to many why the Eastern Railroad has not had proper signals used at each end of the bridge to warn persons coming or going of the approach of trains, (a still greater wonder being that more accidents have not happened, the highway and railroad running side by side for such a distance,) and I hope the company will take some action in regard to this matter, for the safety of the TRAVELLER.

—A Sunday-school inquiry and answer may be told as follows: "Tommy Howell, can you tell me what is meant by the word miracle, so often used in the Bible which you now hold in your hand?" "Yes, Miss Harvey, I think I can. Ma says if you and Captain Smith, who was with you at the Presbyterian picnic, don't marry pretty soon it will be a miracle."

HENDERSON & CO.,

ANNOUNCE THEIR

SPRING OPENING

— OF —

Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.

The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

From One Cent to One Dollar.

Hats, trimmed,

From 50 cts. to $10.00.

TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1616 to '20; the settlement Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's island, &c.

The other, a bird representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a time picture of days when the sailing packets were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such historical scenes of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the enclosed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," now deceased, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.

Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

Loneliness of the Ocean.

One who has never travelled upon the ocean expects to find it somewhat thickly populated. He thinks of the vast travel and traffic that goes over the waters, and he is ready to imagine that the great deep is alive with its hurrying to and fro of the nations. He reads of lands "whose commerce whitens every sea," and he is ready to think that the ocean itself is as full of sails as the harbor of some mighty metropolis. But he finds his mistake. As he leaves the land the ships begin to disappear. As he goes on his way they soon all vanish, and there is nothing about him but the blue sea and the bended sky; sometimes he may meet or overtake a solitary ship during the day; but then, again, there will be many days when not a single sail will cross the horizon. There are spaces measured by thousands of miles, over which no ship has ever passed. The idea of a "nation's commerce whitening every sea" is the wildest fancy. If all the ships that have ever been built were brought together in a single fleet they would fill but a hand's breadth of the ocean. The space, therefore, that man and his works occupy on the sea is as small in extent as the hold on it by his power is slight and superficial. Both together are as nothing. The ocean covers three-fourths of the surface of the globe, and by far the greater part of this vast expanse is and ever has been entirely free from his presence and visitation.

—A Burlington Board of Trade man got into trouble by letting his business weigh too heavily on his mind the other night. His wife heard him murmur in his sleep, "Ella, dear Ella," fondly and tenderly, and as her name is Mehitable, she woke him with a bald end of the hair brush and asked him who? "I was thinking of Ella Vator," the wretched man said calmly, and chuckled off to sleep again.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with livelier expansion, falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and sound—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable odor, and for its soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
DYSPEPSIA- DEBILITY- DROPSY AND HUMORS,
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its invigorating effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Human Relics on the Ocean Bed.

[William C. Wykoff, in Harper's Magazine for July.]

The dream that afflicted the wretched Clarence, after due allowance is made for poetic exaggeration, probably gives a fair though sombre representation of what was till lately supposed to be the condition of the ocean bed. It were easy to show by abundant quotations that the sounding seas were supposed to wash beneath their surface the bones of unnumbered hapless mariners, and that the highway of nations was believed to be paved with the relics of disaster. To this picture there was afterward added a yet more weird feature. The notion, derived from experiments on the compressibility of air, gained acceptance that water at great depths was rendered so dense by pressure that nothing could sink to bottom in the ocean. According to this theory, each substance would descend only to a certain point, determined in each case by its specific gravity. Thus, while the victims of a shipwreck might rest at a few hundred feet below the surface, the heavier articles of the cargo would remain at various distances below them; but in the greatest depths even the anchor itself would never reach the ocean floor. And thus the sea became a mausoleum more strangely occupied than that in which Mohammed's coffin hung suspended, mid-water being substituted for mid-air.

Each of these conceptions is exactly the reverse of fact. Water is not compressible, and does not at any known depth hold heavy substances suspended in it. Relics of humanity of any sort whatever are among the very rarest of curiosities obtained in deep-sea dredging. Professor E. S. Morse, in the course of a discussion on the evolution theory, has cited two good illustrations in proof of the latter statement. When the Lake of Haarlem was drained, on whose surface the commerce of ten centuries had floated and several naval battles had taken place, no trace of man or his works was found in the land redeemed from the ocean. In the course of twelve years dredging off the coast of New England, right in the track where sailing vessels constantly plied, one iron spike was the sole evidence of man's existence brought up from the bottom. The writer of this article had, however, the luck to be present on the occasion of one of the rare exceptions to this general rule. In a dredging cruise of the Blue Light, last summer, in Casco Bay, the trawl brought up, along with anemones, star-fish, skates, and sculpins, a shoe of modern manufacture, and only remarkable, if at all, as to its size. What seemed a still more singular coincidence was that the next haul of the trawl brought up the mate of this big shoe. The pair were in a very dilapidated condition, as shoes, but they took high rank as curiosities. The occurrence was so unusual that it has been suggested that perhaps there was legerdemain about it—that it was a neatly contrived hoax. To this the only reply must be that "seeing is believing." No one who saw the shoe taken out of the midst of the mud of the trawl pocket was troubled with the doubt that harassed King George about the apple-dumpling.

Hold Him.

Some person who has been rejected by a Boston girl thus vents his spite towards these young ladies: The Boston girl is of a medium height, somewhat cottony, has a pale, intellectual face, light hair, blue eyes, wears spectacles, squints a little, rather negligent in her dress, slight traces of ink on her right second finger, blue as to her stockings, and large as to her feet. Or physical beauty she is no boaster, but, of intellectual beauty she is the "paragon of animals." Gather a dandelion by the roadside, she will only recognize it as the Leontodo taraxacum, and discourse to you learnedly of its fructification by winged seeds. The Boston girl is a shell. She never ripens into the matured flesh-and-blood woman. She is cold, hard, dry and juiceless; an intellectual mummy. Gail Hamilton is a type of the Boston girl at maturity. Abby Kelly is a type of the Boston girl gone into seed. If Gail Hamilton will live as long as did Abby Kelly, she will carry a blue cotton umbrella, wear a Lowell calico, and make speeches on the wrongs of women and the abuses of the tyrant man. If the Boston girl ever marries she gives birth to a dictionary or a melancholy looking young intellect, who is fed exclusively on vegetables, and at the age of six has mastered logarithms and zoology, is well up in the carboniferous and fossiliferous periods, falls into a frog pond a few times, dies when he is eight years of age, and sleeps under a learned epitaph and the Leontodo taraxacum.

—Young men are so scarce in Memphis, that one is considered enough to take care of fourteen girls at a picnic.

—A verdant at a Troy hotel left his young wife in his room and went down to ask the clerk what time he lighted up. "Well," said the accommodating clerk, with a smile, "we usually light up at nine o'clock, but to accommodate you I'll light up immediately." He then sent a bell-boy up to the room of the verdant to light the gas. The young man from the country was profuse in his thanks, and would not go back to his wife until the clerk accepted a cigar.

The Legislature.

WON'T COME.

In the House, Monday, a message was received from Governor Weston transmitting a communication from Colonel Arthur McArthur Eastman, manager of the new American Atlantic Telegraph Company, extending an invitation to the Legislature to be present and witness the landing of the cable on the 15th or 16th inst.

Mr. Sinclair wanted the invitation accepted by a committee, but Mr. Burrows of Plymouth said he should oppose such a disposition of the matter for the same reason that a measure of his was opposed, last week, namely, that he did not expect to be on the committee.

Mr. Sinclair's motion was rejected. Mr. Sinclair moved to receive and accept the invitation, but the motion was lost. Subsequently, Mr. Burrows moved to receive the invitation, and express the regret of the House that the state of the public business prevented its acceptance.

ALTOGETHER NEW.

An important bill to reorganize the judiciary was presented. It provides merely for a change of name of the Supreme Judicial Court, to the Superior Court, with the same number of judges, whose duties and salaries shall be the same as now. One provision which it now provides for is the appointment of a referee in each county, who shall be "learned in the law," but not in practice. The referees are to hear and determine causes that may be assigned to them by the court, and are to be paid $10 a day with expenses, the whole to be paid by the county.

THE HEATHEN CHECKED.

Mr. Bailey, of Hopkinton, called up the bill amending the city charter of Concord from the table and moved to refer it to the Judiciary committee.

Mr. Jenks, republican, of Concord, called for a division, and as there was no quorum present the motion to refer was lost.

NOTICES OF BILLS.

By Mr. Burrows, of Plymouth—To abolish the present judiciary system and establish a new one.

By Mr. Greeley, of Salisbury—To regulate and restrict the sale of spirituous liquors.

By Mr. McQuestion, of Nashua—To amend the charter of the city of Nashua.

OUR TURN NEXT.

On Tuesday, the bill to amend the charter of Concord was indefinitely postponed. The bill to redistrict the city of Portsmouth came up for reference when Mr. Emery moved its reference to the Portsmouth delegation, which, after a lengthy discussion by Representatives Emery, Sinclair, Marcy, Kent and others, was lost by an aye and nay vote—153 for and 168 against. It was then referred to the Committee on Towns and Parishes.

Letter from London.

LONDON, June 3.

It was estimated last year that not far from 500,000 persons were present at the Derby race, and as to-day has been particularly pleasant, as many, probably, were out. Much depends upon the weather, as to the number likely to be present, as the race course is about fifteen miles out of London, and three-fourths of the spectators probably go by horse teams. This ride out and back is said to be the great feature of the day. The roads are completely thronged with every conceivable style of carriage loaded to their utmost capacity with pleasure seekers,—out for a day, and intent upon extracting as much pleasure as their own wit and others' patience will afford. So great has been the annual rush to these races that a railroad line with six tracks has been built expressly for this travel. To avoid the crowd we bought tickets for the noon trains, but upon our arrival at the depot we found the tide of humanity still pouring beyond the capacity of the frequent trains to accommodate. This being one terminus of the road all of the trains were empty. But train after train was loaded and moved out before we could get a seat. Before the trains could be placed alongside the platform and stopped, crowds would rush for the doors and flood every car before we could catch them. We succeeded finally in getting on board and we arrived at the grounds about 2 P. M.

The entire course was by this time packed forty deep. We succeeded in obtaining a raised seat where we had a good view of the race and also the crowd, by paying $2.50. At 3 the Derby race came off, bringing in the fourth horse on the list, George Frederick, first at the goal. The stakes at this race were 50 sovereigns each, and twenty horses contended for the prize. Three other races followed. We remained to two of them—the Stanley stakes and the Epsom Manor stakes,—from ten to twenty horses contending at each. The horses were beautiful and ran as lightly as foxes. Betting, though unlawful in London, was allowed by the London Police, being now in Epsom. From appearances I should judge that at least one-half the men had money up in favor of some horse.

Before the last race we went to the depot, hoping again to escape the violence of the crowd. But we found our departure much worse than our advent. It would be very difficult for me to adequately describe the general excitement attending this race. Men, women and children become infected with a sort of frenzy and rush around entirely reckless of their own lives or the lives of others. In some localities the police (who as a rule are remarkably efficient) found great difficulty in establishing order. After each race it would take them an hour to clear the course for another. At railway stations hats were demolished and coats destroyed in wild struggles for seats in the cars. Upon our return home from the depot hundreds of boys and girls with blackened faces ran beside the carriages, howling like so many hungry wolves, and holding out their hands for pennies.

One remarkable feature of the day must not be omitted, if it is a negative one: I did not see a single intoxicated person during the day. N. B. C.

Advices from France state that a resolution in the interest of the friends of a monarchy was rejected amid great excitement. The Bonapartists have apparently abandoned hope of success.

A story has come out that Fechter, just at the close of his last fiasco at the Park Theatre, got nicely thrashed by the burley stage carpenter. He had previously struck the carpenter for daring to tell him that there had been trouble on the stage.

At High Falls, N. Y., a young lady while crossing a field was knocked down by a ram, and the next time the damaged damsel saw her lover she informed that astonished youth that he might go about his business as she was disgusted with the sex.

Of Miss Skillings, the prospective heiress of untold millions, the Lewiston (Me.) Journal says: "Miss Skillings is said to be a young lady of rare beauty and fascinating manners—qualities which may assist to make her a formidable antagonist to the grave and venerable old buffers who will contest the claim when it is brought before a jury. It is reported that she has received an offer of marriage from a rising young politician of Portland since her pretensions to wealth became known. We understand that there are parties in this city (Lewiston) who claim to be heirs, and have been patiently waiting for 1891. Blessed is he who is not possessed of any real estate, for he shall not be troubled with claimants."

A few days since a young couple registered their intentions to be married at the City Clerk's office, Portland. The clerk recorded their names in due form, gave them a little of that excellent advice of which he has so bountiful a store, and pocketed the fee. Recently the intending woman told a friend that she was married and living with her husband. On cross-examination she described the ceremony that the clerk went through when she was as she supposed united to her true-love in the bonds of matrimony. At this recital she was informed that she had only been "registered," and could not be married until she received her certificate. This made trouble in the young woman's mind, and she at once started for her brevet husband and broke the awful intelligence to him. He was thunderstruck, and the once happy couple are debating what to do about it.

Cochise, the famous Indian chief, died on Tuesday of last week in Arizona. He had been sick a long time, and feeling satisfied that he was afflicted by witchcraft, refused to let the doctor administer to his wants. Cochise was head of the Coyotoros, a branch of the Apache tribe, numbering about 2000, and occupying the White Mountain district in Arizona. He and a few others survived a treacherous massacre by United States troops, and henceforth he was one of the bitterest enemies of the white man. Little effort had previously been made to pacify his followers, for down to 1870 no government officer had visited them or sought to improve their condition. From that time, however, government officials had several interviews with him, and General Crook at last succeeded in pacifying him, and Cochise promised to live at peace with the white settlers.

The Berkshire people who have lately been entertained by Barnum's "great morel sho" may be interested in the fact that Barnum has nothing whatever to do with it,—except to take the $35,000 which the actual manager gives him for the use of his name. The concern has lost $50,000 since its Summer tour.

Barnum's Hippodrome has been running in New York a month, and the average attendance has been 10,000 people at each performance. When the showman first erected the building, the knowing ones predicted a failure; but the old Phineas knew what he was about.

—If a railroad or any corporation or individual acts with its employees upon the presumption they are rascals and thieves, how long will it take to make them so? If anybody wants the honest fulfillment of a contract, they should not demand what is impossible or unreasonable. Honesty is good and should be encouraged; so is justice good, and should not be overlooked. A horse even can't work without fodder of some kind.

—Gerald Massey said, in one of his Boston lectures, that "The spiritualistic religion is going to conquer, because it is not afraid of any new facts that may be dug out of the earth, or drawn down from the heavens. It is going to conquer, because it is free-thinking is no longer on the side of negation. It is purely affirmation, only it substitutes visible facts for blind faith."

—The Brooklyn Argus says that the failure of Mr. Lent to secure Collins Graves as a circus rider causes much regret among the lovers of pure milk in the Hampshire Valley.

—Malden boasts the future Rothschild of America. He is now thirteen years old. Last winter he took the job of cleaning his father's door-steps for fifty cents, and sublet it to three other boys for ten cents each. The other day he had thirteen boys at work picking blue violets for which he was to pay one cent a bunch of one hundred violets, and the day after he took his violets in a basket to Boston, and on a street corner sold them all out for ten cents a bunch, making two dollars and a half by the operation.

Stars and Meteors.

At certain seasons meteors dart across the firmament between the earth and the fixed stars. But they quickly vanish, while the fixed stars remain. In the medical firmament the great vegetable invigorant, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has long been a fixed star of the first magnitude. Little meteors in the shape of imitations, bearing various names, now and then appear glimmering competition with it, but they soon disappear from the field of vision, leaving the glory of the true remedy unimpaired. The number of these will-o'-the-wisps that have come to grief within the last twenty years is beyond computation, and those now in existence are in the last agonies of extinguishment. The standard tonic and alterative that cures and prevents so many distressing diseases, and which no debilitated invalid ever took without receiving a wonderful accession of strength and vitality, only derives increased popularity from the attempts of charlatans to run their failures in the Hostetter groove.

PILES can be cured only by ANAKESIS, the greatest discovery of the age and the sole, infallible remedy for the worst cases of PILES. It is the happy discovery of Dr. Silsbee, a regular scientific physician, and Doctors of all schools endorse and recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere, and sent by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walder street, New York.

Cocoa is known the world over for its great nourishing and strengthening properties. It is often difficult to select the best preparations of an article of such universal use. If you wish the best, at the most reasonable price, ask your grocer for Baker's Chocolate.

—Dio Lewis has been investigating the effects of the prohibitory liquor law in Maine, and sends his conclusions to the Cincinnati Gazette. He says an earnest friend of the law told him that there were 300 places where drinks were sold in Bangor, simply because there is patronage for 300 places; and Bangor has only 15,000 inhabitants. Dr. Lewis says there has probably never been a town in Ohio where was a drinking saloon for every 50 of the inhabitants, and yet that is the proportion in Bangor. He continues: "And yet I did not see an open drinking place while I was in the State. There is no doubt that the traffic has been driven under cover, and there is not a shadow of doubt that the consumption of drinks in the State of Maine is enormous."

SPECIAL NOTICE!

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public, that in addition to being Agent for the famous "DOMESTIC," whose merits are so well known, that I am the only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity for the following first-class sewing machines:

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has overcome the weak points of the former invention, which I am prepared to explain to all who will favor me with a call."

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON."

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.

2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.

3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.

4. Runs for years without Repairs.

5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.

6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.

7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of cogwheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; has the new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.

8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skillful and experienced mechanics, as the celebrated Remington Armory, Illion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited for the last two years.

Is a only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle "self-setting;" the needle being straight and self-setting much of the perplexity and trouble usual to beginners or inexperienced operators is avoided, as the needle cannot be set wrong.

It has a positive thread controller and tension, enabling it to sew with equal precision from the most delicate texture to the heaviest material, and to use with equal facility, silk, linen or cotton thread. It uses the same size thread on the under as on the upper side, and sews across the heaviest seams, or from one to many thicknesses of cloth without change of needle, tension, or threads.

The machine is made of the finest material, and of most perfect finish, and no pains or expense is spared to make the machine in all its points fitted to meet the wants of every family wherever introduced. The "Victor" has met with universal favor; so great has been the increasing demand the past year, that the "Victor" Sewing Machine Company have been compelled to build a new and extensive factory, and to more than double their facilities for supplying the wants of the sewing machine trade. With its recent improvements it is a simple, durable and complete family sewing machine, and I guarantee it will give the purchaser satisfaction.

THE DAVIS.

Since the organization of the "Davis" Sewing Machine Company, nearly five years ago, its business has increased to an astonishing degree. Its sales for the first year amounted to one thousand machines, and each succeeding year its sales have doubled those of the preceding one—an increase of one hundred per cent. per annum.

The "Davis" sewing machines sold in Portsmouth and vicinity during the past few years have given good satisfaction; but the "Davis" machine of the present day has a number of essential points of superiority over the old "Davis" machine, namely:

Among the various improvements we call attention to the Milled Shank Needle, by which device all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same position in relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use. A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having a positive motion and entirely noiseless. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small needles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes' time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machine are new and differ widely from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the wheel feed, and the ratchet, or four motion feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is automatically moved forward at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four motioned movement produced by complicated under gear. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to also take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot in both cases comes down on the goods and holds them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be obvious then, that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser foot is retarding or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must necessarily be fulled or gathered on to the upper to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must snap wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the fulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors discard their use in seams requiring strength.

This great defect has existed since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and presents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conclusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity, I remain yours faithfully,

SAMUEL M. JOY, Agent,

Useless Queries.

The Rochester Courier says; "Mr. Albert R. Hatch, the speaker of the present reactionary legislature of New Hampshire, in his opening address, said, that all laws on the statute book 'not capable of enforcement are a disgrace to the State, and should be repealed.' How about the Ten Commandments? What is Mr. Hatch's opinion of magistrates who swear to enforce law, and do not? Are they an honor or a disgrace to a State? The incapacity of the prohibitory law is not in itself, but in the public administrators. It is an educator, even if it is not always enforced."

Get acquainted with Mr. Hatch, Bro. Folsom, and then see how foolish you were to propound such conundrums as those to him.

What It Means.

The bill for upsetting things in this city, introduced in the legislature by Hon. Daniel Marcy, means that the democrats—despairing of carrying the city by legitimate votes—propose to do so by trickery, and absolute fraud if necessary. The democrats plead in excuse for their reckless partizanship and disregard of even a show of political decency, that they are only doing as the republicans have done before; but—throwing aside the fact that one man's wrong-doing is no excuse for another's, and that the democrats have for years been proclaiming that they were not merely as good as the republicans but immeasurably better and more virtuous—we do not believe any measure so thoroughly and shamelessly partizan as this Portsmouth bill was ever passed or supported by a republican majority in the New Hampshire legislature, and we know nothing to compare with it has been since we first commenced to watch political moves. The invention of such miraculously crooked ward boundaries as the democrats have drawn out might possibly be paralleled by the doings of republicans regarding other cities,—not this one, certainly,—but placing all the check lists of a strongly republican city in the hands of noted democratic partizans is far ahead of the worst act which can be charged against the republicans, so far as we know or believe; and it means that every republican concerning whose absolute right to vote there can be brought a shade of doubt is to have his name kept off the check-list, and every democrat who by any stretch of faith, courtesy or the law may have a possible right to vote is to have his name put on the check-list.

But all this does not begin to have so dark a look to those who desire an honest election, as the proposition to repeal the law for closing the polls at a stated and reasonable hour. There is no doubt that this law does work against the democratic party; in fact, the last democratic mayor of this city was elected only by keeping the polls in ward three open till nearly midnight, thus enabling the supporters of the "temperance" candidate of the democracy to bring up the stragglers from the back slums and the low rum-holes, after the vote was declared in the other wards. No one can pretend that with seven voting places (or even three) there is any need of keeping the polls open later than six o'clock, if a fair expression of the popular will is all that is desired; but a fair expression of the popular will is just what the democrats do not want, as that would leave them in a minority. So the polls must be kept open until the majorities in the republican wards have been overcome by late votes (or skillfull counting) in the democratic wards,—and the style of men nominated as supervisors of election matters is strong presumptive proof that the democrats mean to carry the city at all hazards,—by fraud and ruffianism if no other means will do. But they will have all they want to do, anyway.

The democratic party has been famous (since it went out of power) for its loud-mouthed devotion to the "principle of local self-government" and its furious denunciation of anything which could be construed into an interference with it; yet the first thing attempted by these local-government devotees on finding themselves accidentally dressed in a little brief authority, is to govern this city from Concord and entirely ignore the local voters. Well, that's exactly as much as we expected the high-sounding professions of the democrats to be worth; but we should have fancied, in their selection of tools to do their dirty work, that they would have picked out the most decent-appearing ones available, and not have usurped the places of respectable men duly chosen by a majority of the legal voters, to replace them with the lowest of pothouse politicians (such as some of the precious lot named in the bill to secure control of Portsmouth to the democratic party) or men known to be unworthy of trust and whom the democrats themselves would not trust with a dollar of the party funds. One good thing, however, should result from all this,—we shall be spared hereafter from the hypocritical whinings of the democrats about the "purity of elections," for even democratic cheek can hardly reach such sublimity of assurance after this.

Laconics.

A bad egg—the P. & D. R. R. loan.

The poll tax is $2.31 this year.

The house formerly occupied by Mr. R. H. Beacham, on Mason's Hill, started on its travels last week, and on Sunday had got as far as the middle of the street, where it remained longer than some people thought necessary or proper. It having been announced that Mr. Beacham's family would occupy the travelling real estate until his new house is completed, we are requested to say that he and his family are domiciled at the Kearsarge House.

Mr. Thomas S. Nowell offers for sale his handsome and finely located residence on State street, opposite the Rockingham House.

The steamer Appledore commenced her regular trips between this city and the Appledore House at the Shoals on Monday, under command of Capt. Edwin M. Baker, who has managed her so acceptably in years past.

One of our inland exchanges says the U. S. S. Enterprise was launched on Saturday from the Franklin ship-house, "and got on some rocks while being towed into the harbor." Correct, except that she was pretty well up to the head of the harbor when she first took the water, and that she stuck on a mud-bank and not rocks.

Schooner Daniel Marcy, Moore master, arrived at this port on Tuesday from her first trip fishing, with 560 barrels of mackerel, said to be the largest fare of mackerel ever landed here.

Mr. Stephen L. Marston has been appointed master-plumber at the navy yard, vice Mr. Peter Pray, removed.

The Portsmouth bill will have a hearing before the committee on towns and parishes to-day at Concord.

Got Him!

The original and genuine "Tom Collins" was arrested in this city on Tuesday afternoon by Officers C. W. Rand and Geo. J. Fernald, and lodged in the station house after a hard tussle. Boston papers please copy.

P. S. The following was posted on the house corner Gates and Pleasant streets, Monday night:

"$25 reward, for the capture of 'Tom Collins.' [He won't be found.]
CITY MARSHAL"

As Marshal Johnson don't recognize that signature we suppose it must have been a bogus offer of reward for capture——and then the Marshal generally catches the rogues himself, rather than hire others to do it.

Goodness Gracious!

The Times of Tuesday evening, says: "while they [the republicans of this city] acknowledge that republican legislatures have altered the boundaries of the wards in this city no less than seven times, they declare it an 'outrage' for the democrats to contemplate such a thing once." This will be news to republicans, and no mistake. The number of wards in this city has never been altered by the republicans, and alterations in ward boundaries made but once by a republican legislature; the democrats laid the city out in three wards, and some considerable time after, when the city had grown a great deal and one ward had become much larger than it was at first, one single ward line (between wards one and two) was straightened and a piece of the overgrown ward added to the smaller one,—and the following year the republicans lost the city! This is the only republican "gerrymander" of Portsmouth's ward boundaries, and seems rather a small foundation on which to build up a "seven-story" edifice.

Further,—the republicans do not have much to say as to the "outrage" of a democratic gerrymander; that was expected, for the old-time reputation of the democratic party for unscrupulous gerrymandering is yet fresh in the memories of the republicans; but what they do declare an "outrage" and the most outrageous piece of political scoundrelism ever attempted by any party in regard to this city, is the appointment of eighteen democratic supervisors,—at least one-third of them of the most indifferent character,—over six wards of a strongly republican city, and leaving three democratic supervisors over the seventh one.

Kittery.

At the republican caucus held in Kittery, Monday evening, the following delegates were chosen:

To the State Convention, John J. Lambert, Jesse Patch, Chas. H. Bartlett, Jesse Frisbee, M. A. Safford, R. D. Philbrick, P. M. Langton.

To the Congressional Convention, John Wentworth, Wm. A. Fernald, E. C. Nealley, D. C. Norton, Joseph H. Seward, Wm. F. Pinkham, W. H. Sanborn, D. M. Shapleigh, Stephen Grant.

To the County Convention, Calvin L. Hayes, George D. Shannon, Chas. W. Cottle, Warington Paul, John E. Tobey, James Clark, John F. Goodsoe, Robert Briard, Hiram Tobey, T. J. Pettigrew, Alonzo Fernald.

On motion of Augustus Stevenson, seconded by Col. M. F. Wentworth, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, that the course taken by the member of Congress from this district, Hon. John H. Burleigh, on the important questions that have come before that body, meets with our unqualified approval; and we hereby instruct our delegates to use all fair means to secure his renomination, at the Convention to which they are elected.

DEATHS.

FERNALD. In this city, June 15, Mrs. Mehitable Fernald, wife of Mr. William D. Fernald, aged 67 years, 2 months.

The memory of a life filled to overflowing with acts of love and deeds of kindness is all that is left to the bereaved relatives and friends. A wife's devotion and a mother's care blessed for scores of years the home now so desolate, and each would have gladly borne if permitted the sorrow and pain of her closing days. Most fervent were her dying benedictions, encouraging the reverent listeners to wait patiently till the good angel shall call them to a reunited family in a better and far happier existence. She carries joy to those who preceded her to the unknown world, and though the parting here be sad and the grief too deep for utterance, the well-remembered and prophetic words she breathed will be a constantly increasing consolation, more precious year by year as the time swiftly passes which separates us all from those loved friends who have gone before.

HENDERSON & CO.,
ANNOUNCE THEIR
SPRING OPENING
— OF —
Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.
The Largest Stock,
The Latest Styles,
The Lowest Prices.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, adventuring with his company in boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1616 to '20, in extended Indians, in canoes lined on shore; Smith's anchorated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's Island, &c.
The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in the early days when the Lighthouse as its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1820—a true picture of days when the coastal ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the enshrined canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.
Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—The Buffalo Express cannot understand how so large a paper as the Providence Press can be printed in Rhode Island, and asks where the boys stand to fold it.

—In Germany, when the vote of the jury stands six against six, the prisoner is acquitted. A vote of seven against five leaves the decision to the court, and by a vote of eight against four the prisoner is convicted.

—A little six-year-old daughter of a Rutland clergyman watched Barnum's street parade with great interest, and finally said to her papa: "If I was't a minister's little girl I could go to the circus. But I suppose I must set an example to the whole church now."

—When a southern mayor wishes to resign his office,—which, by the way, is a very rare occurrence,—he usually writes a letter which leaves little doubt in the minds of his constituents of his earnestness of purpose, as witness the following epistle from the mayor of Floreyville, Miss., to Governor Ames: "I herewith beg leave respectfully to tender my resignation as mayor of Floreyville, to which office I was appointed by your high-headed predecessor, which, with the infernal greediness for office so characteristic of the American people, I was green enough to accept. In fans drawing off the judicial ermine I am governed alone by the fear of being inordinately rich if I continue to hold this lucrative position. Perhaps some other man and brother may be inveigled into the acceptance of this position, but your humble servant prefers to retire to the gushing serenity of private life."

—A couple of incidents out of the usual routine served to enliven the Presbyterian General Assembly in session at St. Louis. "Put yourself in his place," or "See how you'd like it yourself" was the appeal of a missionary brother to well-paid pastors of rich city churches, when it was proposed to make the missionaries in sparsely settled districts preach on Sundays and peddle books from house to house all the rest of the week. His appeal was respectfully heard. The spirit of Slavery will not be laid. It raised harsh notes of discord in the Assembly. One of the Southern ministers made a disparaging reflection on the Emancipation Proclamation and its effects, which brought a colored brother to his feet, and he polished off the ex-slaveholder in a handsome style that would have "brought down the house" had the listeners been less grave and reverend than they were. The indiscreet white man made a feeble reply, but the Assembly was in no mood to listen, and his mouth was remorselessly shut by the Moderator.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to fall off prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

FIFTH AND LAST CONCERT
IN AID OF THE
PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY.
JULY 31, 1874.
In announcing the Fifth and last of the series of Gift Concerts given for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, the Trustees and Manager refer with pride and pleasure to the success which has been already given: The first, December 16, 1871; the second, December 2, 1872; the third, July 8, 1873; and the fourth, March 31st, 1874.
Under their charter, granted by a special act of the Kentucky Legislature, March 16, 1871, the Trustees are authorized to give One More, and Only One More Gift Concert. With the money arising from this Fifth and LAST Concert, the Library, Museum, and other departments are to be enlarged and endowed with a fixed and certain annual income. Such an endowment fund is deemed, as will secure beyond uncertainty, not only the maintenance of this magnificent establishment, but its constant growth.
THE FIFTH GIFT CONCERT
for the purpose mentioned, and which is positively and unequivocally announced as the last which will ever be given under this charter and by the present management.
Will come off in the Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,
Friday, July 31, 1874.
At this final Concert everything will be upon a scale corresponding with its increased importance. The music will be rendered by an orchestra, consisting of one hundred performers selected for their fame in different lands, and the unprecedented sum of $2,500,000
divided into twenty thousand gifts, will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

The Sin of the Human Form.

[New York paper.]

I noticed a letter in your excellent paper the other day signed "Y. M. C. A.," in which the writer, who is evidently a young gentleman, protested against the indecency of promiscuous bathing at our watering-places, and the impropriety of ladies' bathing-dresses. I cannot help thinking that this young man is very young indeed. He evidently has the silly prudery which is not out of place in a very young girl, but which is very ridiculous in a man who intends to become at some day a husband and father.

As an old lady, I feel the right to speak on the subject of ladies bathing in public. My own daughters have always done it with my warmest approbation, and I should never consent to have them enter the surf unless in company with men who could look after them and keep them out of danger. I do not consider that there is anything indelicate about the bathing-dresses worn by women. They cover the form completely, and the fact that they permit the outlines of the body to be seen after the dresses become wet is a matter of no consequence.

The fact that woman actually have bodies is one which it is silly for us to pretend to ignore, especially in this age, when art has made us all so familiar with the human form. There is nothing immoral in our bodies, and the men and women who, as painters and sculptors, are constantly made familiar with the undraped form do not have their morals contaminated thereby. So far from objecting to the present style of bathing-dress because it reveals too much, I think it would be greatly improved if it were made with short sleeves and short legs, so that the wearer could secure more freedom of limb. If the Y. M. C. A. does not like it, he can easily stay away from the sea shore. And I will say, in conclusion, that he is to be pitied who, in standing on the beach in full view of the majestic ocean, can see nothing except the wet bathing-dress of some lady on whom he has turned his opera-glass.

The Moon as a Farmer.

[Washington County (Iowa) Press.]

A farmer tells us that he does not doubt that fully one-half of the farmers of the soil in this country believe in the good and bad influences of the moon in the development of vegetation, and year after year they follow the directions that have come down to us from far-off generations of men. The same remark will hold good for agricultural communities the world over. Products that fruit under ground, as potatoes, turnips, etc., are duly planted in the dark of the moon, while those that fruit in the light are planted or sown in the full of the moon. The same rule holds, they say, in the setting of fence-posts and the laying of shingles; if set in the dark of the moon posts will last longer, and shingles will not curl up as, they say, they will do if they are laid in the light of the moon. "Hitch your wagon to a star," is a transcendental sentence of Emerson's. Agriculturalists do not go so far as that—at least we never saw a wagon thus "hitched"—horses, mules, oxen, steers, cows, heifers, etc., being the usual motors; but half the agricultural world seem to take more stock in astrology than chemistry. They claim that there is a great deal in the moon theory. It is, furthermore, claimed that moonlight rapidly deteriorates meats and fish exposed in the beams of the Luna.

Frog Wisdom.

[Wilmington (O.) Journal.]

The crop of frogs this year is likely to be a failure. The young tadpoles are dried up, and havn't water enough to vegetate in, and hence die in the birthing. Our scientific readers know that a tadpole is a frog in its first state from the spawn; a porwiggle; and that a frog is described by naturalists as an amphibious animal of the genus Rana, with four feet, a naked body, and without a tail. It is remarkable for swimming with rapidity, and for taking large leaps on land. Hence the pertinency of the Indiana distich:

"I am going down to Kanketank,
Where bullfrogs jump from bank to bank."

In Jefferson township, on Friday last, we observed that the "ganglionic cells" of the tadpole's brains were much disturbed by the paucity of water in a ditch. They swam hither and thither with the velocity of a weaver's shuttle, evidently wishing for a copious shower to replenish the liquid, and thus enable them in due time to answer the end of their creation by becoming full-fledged bullfrogs. If unfortunately defeated in their aspirations there will be a great loss of mellifluous music in that locality.

The Richest of all our Presidents.

The Washington correspondent of the Troy Times writes the following as to President Grant's possessions: President Grant has just bought a large lot in the northwestern part of the city for his future town residence. He pays $22,000 for 15,000 feet and the house is to cost with the lot near $100,000. It is understood that the President, when he is released from official duties, will divide his time between his residences—on the St. Louis farm, at the sea shore at Long Branch, and in Washington. He will retire from public life in very comfortable circumstances. He has been since he entered the army in 1861, one of the luckiest of men. I am told by those who know the facts and are competent to judge in such matters that General Grant's investments have all been made with great wisdom, with the sole exception of the small venture in the Seneca Stone company, and even that concern is looking up of late. His investments here at St. Louis have turned out well. St. Louis people say that his farm in that vicinity will alone make him a large fortune, so rapid is the increase of its value.

According to the latest returns the vote for Governor in Oregon was about as follows: Grover, democrat, 9500; Campbell, independent, 7000; Tolman, republican, 9000.

It is stated that advices from the South agree in the conclusion that a powerful and wide spread movement for the repudiation of State debts is in active preparation there. The negroes are almost unanimously in favor of it.

The Legislature.

A very stringent railroad bill was introduced, by General Hoitt of Durham, a prominent democratic farmer in Strafford County. The bill limits fares on railroads in the State to two cents per mile, and freights to four cents per mile per ton. The bill was referred to the Railroad Committee.

A bill to sever a portion of Ward VI. and annex the same to Ward V., Nashua, and to make the Justice Court of that city a court of record for the purposes of naturalization, was introduced by Mr. McQuestion of Nashua. Mr. Marsh of Nashua tried to have the bill referred to the Nashua delegation, but the majority sent it to the regular committee.

The bill to repeal the statute of 1868, which forbid naturalizations by Police Courts, was taken from the table and passed to a third reading, after protracted opposition from the republicans. A bill of a similar political character, to disfranchise students at the literary institutions of the State, was also passed, after stout opposition from the republicans.

The judiciary bill presented by Mr. Burrows of Plymouth, which provides for a superior court of judicature and circuit court, the former consisting of three and the latter of four judges, it is understood was drawn by Hon. Ira A. Eastman. The bill presented, Monday, was the joint work of Messrs. J. S. H. Frink, William L. Foster and George A. Bingham. Another bill prepared by Speaker Hatch, proposes a system modelled on the English judiciary system. The knowing ones predict that the "Frink bill," as it is called, will be substantially adopted. This provides for a Superior Court of the same general character as the existing court, with a provision for the appointment of a referee for each county, but who shall not be a resident of the county for which he is appointed. This provision is due, it is said, to Hon. S. N. Bell of Manchester.

Louis Lameraux, the vicious driver of a coal cart in Nashua, who nearly pulled the tongue out of a horse belonging to Robert McLaren, by whom he was employed, was, on Saturday, in default of $500, committed to Manchester jail to await trial at the September term of court. The horse has been killed by its owner to end its sufferings, as it was impossible for it to recover.

—A Newfoundland dog in Detroit, which has been accustomed to call at a certain butcher's stall at the city hall market regularly every day for a piece of meat for himself, made his usual visit on Thursday, during the temporary absence of the proprietor. He dropped a ten-cent piece from his mouth and walked off with a whole sirloin steak. The butcher has usually regarded this dog as more than ordinarily intelligent, but he has now concluded that the animal is attaining his dotage, otherwise he would be able to distinguish a ten-cent piece of meat from a dinner for a whole family.

—In a Sunday School, when the basket was handed around for a collection for the heathen, the teacher was somewhat surprised to find a bank note in it. Closer examination revealed the fact that it was a counterfeit. The inquiry among the boys brought to the front one who acknowledged having handed in the spurious scrip. "Did you know it was counterfeit?" was the question. "Yes!" he said, "but I didn't think it made any difference to the heathen; they could pass it off."

—A London artist found a model beggar with a splendid long beard—dirty and unkempt—just such as he wanted for some venerable, saintly person he was going to put on canvas in the old master style. He gave the man twopence, and told him he could earn a shilling a day if he would call at his studio. The man called the next morning, and had cut off his beard to make himself tidy and fit for the artist's society.

—A veteran was relating his exploits to a crowd of boys, and mentioned having been in five engagements. "That's nothing," replied a little fellow. "My sister Agnes has been engaged eleven times!"

An Hour of Terror.

[Detroit Free Press, May 30.]

There arrived in the city Friday morning over the Grand Trunk railway a man named Patrick McArthur, who met with a thrilling adventure about six miles east of the junction, Thursday night. He is a laboring man, and having no money, and failing to get a chance to work his passage down from Port Huron on a boat, he started to walk down on the railroad track, and had nearly completed his journey when the adventure befell him. He laid by during the heat of the day, on Wednesday, and was walking in the evening to make it up. While crossing the track where a switch leads down alongside the main track, he got his foot caught fast in a "frog," and his efforts to extricate it were of no avail. He had on a stout boot, and it fitted so closely over the instep that he could not draw his foot out. In fact, the boot was wedged in the "frog" so closely that the man's toes were severely pinched. He pulled this way and that, wrenched and twisted, but the "frog" held the foot like a vise.

At length he could hardly move his leg for the pain, and he found that he must either be run over by the next passing train or make some one understand his situation. He shouted himself hoarse, but no one came. The nearest house was half a mile away, and if the farmer heard the wild calls for help he gave them no attention. After the man had been a prisoner for upward of an hour he heard the whistle of a down freight train. It was yet along way off, and he had a little time to think. He had a match box in his pocket, papers in his bundle, and the idea came to him to signal the train. Tearing the paper off his bundle and getting at a number of letters, he rolled them into a heap, and for fear that the flame would die out too suddenly, he added two flannel shirts from the bundle. The bundle was then made fast to the end of his walking stick, matches produced, and he waited till the head-light of the locomotive should appear up the track.

It finally greeted his vision, looking like a bright white star, as it glistened far up the track. The rumble of the train grew louder, the star grew larger and brighter. He struck his match. The flame blazed up brightly, but as he moved it toward the bundle a little gust of wind blew it out. Was there time yet? Up the track he could hear the thunder of a hundred heavy wheels, and the great light of the locomotive glared at him like the fiery eye of some wild beast. Another match, an instant of fear and doubt, and then the paper blazed up and curled over and around the bundle and swayed right and left with the night wind. He waved the signal of fire back and forth, and just when he was ready to believe that death under the wheels was certain, he heard the whistle for the brakes.

He could hear the wheels grinding and groaning, the hiss of steam as the engineer threw back his lever, and then the heavy train came to a stop with the great light shining down upon him, paling his dying signal. He was saved, but the engine had only thirty feet more to go to crush him. The fireman came forward, got a crowbar and released him, and he was taken back to the caboose. The train men were very kind to him, and yesterday he found acquaintances here who arranged for his board until he will be able to work. His foot is badly swelled and very tender, and it will be several days before he will be able to walk.

—Well, here is choloroform administered under entirely novel circumstances. A gentleman crossing the bridge at Fultonville, Montgomery county, N. Y., saw a small boy struggling in the river below. Down went the philanthropist to the rescue, but the small boy struggled so that both were in danger of watery death. Just then the gentleman remembered that he had a bottle of choloroform in his pocket. To take it out and to administer the anæsthetic to the wriggling lad was the work of a moment, and then the unconscious form was towed safely to the shore.

—Christopher Blake, of No. 34 Atlantic Street, Newark, was not the sort of a marksman that the younger Tell longed for that time the apple rested on the top of his head. Christopher went out on Thursday morning last into his backyard and swore, as he loaded her to the muzzle, that "that cat" should not longer render his individual share of night hideous. The gun was of an unfortunate make, and no sooner had Mr. Blake pulled the trigger than it diffused itself, like a lake that has burst its dam, all over Newark. To-day Mr. Blake is not as "four handed" as he was by three hands. The cat, thank you, never felt better in his life.

—The landlord of one of the leading hotels in Philadelphia has often had much trouble in converting new hands into smart waiters. His first order to raw recruits was, "Give the gentlemen soup before anything else." A recent arrival from the Green Isle had received his directions, and made up his mind to act on them. The first for him to try them on was a verdant countryman, who did not appreciate soup. Pat brought the soup. Greeny says, "Don't want it." Pat replies, "Take it, sur;" "Don't want it," says Greeny again. "Well, then, yees better take it, for the divil a bit will yees have to eat before yees swallow that."

—Sufferers, whose unhappy lot in life has been to live next door to a musical family, will appreciate a story that is told of Von Bulow, the eminent German pianist. An aspiring genius had been sent to him to receive some lessons in music. On the youth's return home, he was asked his opinion of the master. "Well," said he, "he is a great teacher, and gave me fine lessons, and, better than all, he is the most pious man I ever saw." "How do you make that out?" "Why, all the time I was playing, he would repeat, 'Good Lord, what sin have I committed to deserve this punishment?'"

[Territorial Enterprise.]

We yesterday afternoon observed "Uncle Pete" propped at ease against his favorite lamp-post, and overheard him holding forth as follows to a young man of the genus hoodlum: "Young man, don't you go strivin' for a big name or frettin' yourself to make a mark in the world. It's all vanity and vexation of spirit. You just turn philosopher. That's the lay I'm on. Say to yourself the world owes me a livin' and I'm bound to have it." That's a motto to live up to. To live without care is my philosophy. All else is wanity. What does a man git for doin' things, makin' inventions and the like? Nuthin'. Look at Christopher Columbus, young man, and let his fate be a warnin' to you. What does he git for the trouble he had in discovering America! He gits called a swindler and an imposture. He had all his trouble for nothin', for they have found out that he wasn't the feller that discovered America, after all. It was some Laplander or one of them fellers up north. What does William H. Shakespeare git for the trouble he had in writin' them plays o' his? He gits busted out entirely. They now say there never was no such man as William H. Shakespeare, and I believe 'em. No one man could a-done it. What was the use of William Tell shootin' old Geyser? He run a big risk of passin' in his own checks, and now they say thar never was no sich man. He'd better a-bin a philosopher and staid up in the mountains. See the life ole Robinson Crusoe led in that air solitary island! And now they say there never was no Crusoe. Young man, don't you never try to discover America, nor the steam engine, nor the telegraft—like old Moss did—cause you'll find out when its too late, and you've had all the trouble, that it wasn't you, but some other jackass that is dead and don't know whether he ever done anything or not. Now here's the latest instance: Supposin' you to be Vasquez, when you've gone and got up a reputation as Vasquez they find out you ain't Vasquez, but are somebody else Take my advice young man, and lead the life of a philosopher; get all you can out of the world and never do nothin' for the world; then you beat the world and are a true philosopher.

—"Now, Sammy, tell me, have you read the story of Joseph?" "Oh, yes, uncle." "Well, then, what wrong did they do when they sold their brother?" "They sold him too cheap, I think."

—"Six feet in his boots!" exclaimed Mrs. Beeswax; "what will the impudence of this world come to, I wonder! Why, they might as well tell me that the man had six heads in his hat."

Stars and Meteors.

At certain seasons meteors dart across the firmament between the earth and the fixed stars. But they quickly vanish, while the fixed stars remain. In the medical firmament the great vegetable invigorant, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has long been a fixed star of the first magnitude. Little meteors in the shape of imitations, bearing various names, now and then attempt a glimmering competition with it, but they soon disappear from the field of vision, leaving the glory of the true remedy unimpaired. The number of these will-o'-the-wisps that have come to grief within the last twenty years is beyond computation. And they now are nearly or are in the last agonies of extinguishment. The standard tonic and alterative that cures and prevents so many distressing diseases, and which no debilitated invalid ever took with out receiving a wonderful accession of strength and vitality, only derives increased popularity from the attempts of charlatans to run their failures in the Hostetter groove.

PILES can be cured only by ANAKESIS, the greatest discovery of the age and the sole, infallible remedy for the worst cases of PILES. It is the happy discovery of Dr. Sibbee, a regular scientific physician, and Doctors of all schools endorse and recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere, and sent by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walder street, New York.

Cocoa is known the world over for its great nourishing and strengthening properties. It is often difficult to select the best preparations of an article of such universal use. If you wish the best, at the most reasonable price, ask your grocer for Baker's Chocolate.

How London Strikes Bailey.

The Danbury News man says of the streets of London: "London is far ahead of New York in cleanliness, and were its buildings of the same cheerful hue as are those of New York it would be called just what it is—a marvellously clean city. Its streets are not altogether broad or straight, but they are well paved. And yet that hardly gives you an idea of their excellent condition. But when I say well paved I mean in this connection that they are as smooth as a floor, as hard as marble, as free of ruts as the brow of Venus, and as clear of filth as is the character of an honest man. The system of sewerage is perfect, or, at least, it works to the satisfaction of everybody, and that, I take it, is perfection, or a very good substitute for it. In the more important thoroughfares a line of lights extends through the middle of the street, with a stone-post-guarded enclosure about each lamp—a sort of temporary city of refuge for the pedestrian who is fleeing before the impetuosity of the hurrying teams. And then there is a policeman at every important crossing who stands among the crowding and struggling cabs, busses, and drays, like—like—(I forget the god's name) among the driving elements, and brings order and females out of chaos with a dispatch that is most commendable."

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has overcome the weak points of the former invention, which I am prepared to explain to all who will favor me with a call.

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON."

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.
2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.
3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.
4. Runs for years without Repairs.
5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.
6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.
7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of cog-wheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; has the new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.
8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skillful and experienced mechanics, at the celebrated Remington Armory, Ilion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited, for the last two years.

Is t e only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle "self-setting;" the needle being straight and self-setting much of the perplexity and trouble usual to beginners or inexperienced operators is avoided, as the needle cannot be set wrong.

It has a positive thread controller and tension, enabling it to sew with equal precision from the most delicate texture to the heaviest material, and to use with equal facility, silk, linen or cotton thread. It uses the same size thread on the under as on the upper side, and sews across the heaviest seams, or from one to many thicknesses of cloth without change of needle, tension, or threads.

The machine is made of the finest material, and of most perfect finish, and no pains or expense is spared to make the machine in all its points fitted to meet the wants of every family wherever introduced. The "Victor" has met with universal favor; and so great has been the increasing demand the past year, that the "Victor" Sewing Machine Company have been compelled to build a new and extensive factory, and to more than double their facilities for supplying the wants of the sewing machine trade. With its recent improvements it is a simple, durable and complete family sewing machine, and I guarantee it will give the purchaser satisfaction.

THE DAVIS.

Since the organization of the "Davis" Sewing Machine Company, nearly five years ago, its business has increased to an astonishing degree. Its sales for the first year amounted to one thousand machines, and each succeeding year its sales have doubled those of the preceding one—an increase of one hundred per cent. per annum.

The "Davis" sewing machines sold in Portsmouth and vicinity during the past few years have given good satisfaction; but the "Davis" machine of the present day has a number of essential points of superiority over the old "Davis" machine, namely:

Among the various improvements we call attention to the Milled Shank Needle, by which device all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same position in relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use. A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having a positive motion and entirely noiseless. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small needles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes' time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machine are new and differ widely from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the wheel feed, and the ratchet, or four motion feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is automatically moved forward at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four motioned movement produced by complicated under gear. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to also take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot in both cases comes down on the goods and holds them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be obvious then, that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser-foot is retarding or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must necessarily be pulled or gathered on to the upper to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must snap wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the pulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors discard their use in seams requiring strength.

This great defect has existed ever since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and presents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conclusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity,

I remain yours faithfully,

SAMUEL M. JOY, Agent,

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

Local Matters.

The Universalist Centennial.

The first Universalist preaching in Portsmouth was in 1773, by Rev. John Murray. A meeting was established and the society incorporated in 1794. Through the years of a century, for far the larger part of the time, the society has had pastors, some of them the most able and noted men of the denomination, such as Hosea Ballou, Sebastian Streeter and A. J. Patterson.

It is well to keep in recollection the past; the Israelites were commanded to remember the way they had been led forty years in the wilderness; surely then the history of a society for one hundred years may be worth remembering.

The Portsmouth Universalist Society had its centennial anniversary on the 16th and 17th of November last. The proceedings have been published in a pamphlet of 103 pages, with fine mechanical execution. The historical address by Rev. A. J. Patterson appears to be a very full history of the society, with an account of the succession of pastors, building of houses of worship, and whatever pertains to the workings of a society through varied scenes of conflict, shades of adversity and the sunlight of prosperity. An original hymn by Mrs. Patterson and one by Mrs. Marvin, used on the occasion, are inserted; also short addresses made by others, mostly ministers of Portsmouth.

J. F.

Spare the Trees.

Not to mention any love or appreciation of the beautiful, many stupid people or vicious boys appear to be ignorant that the law fixes a fine of one hundred dollars or one year's imprisonment for injury to any tree in a street or elsewhere; and a fine of five dollars to any person who shall fasten or hitch any animal to any public tree not having a hook or ring in it for this purpose.

Laconics.

Among the new harnesses that are being turned out in this city none attracts our eye more favorably than that of H. Eldredge & Son, on their finely matched black span attached to one of their brewery teams. We learn that this pair of double harnesses was made by Mr. John S. Tilton, Congress St. Surely, those in want of any goods in the above line need not go out of the city to find them.

Mr. Edwin R. Holbrook is appointed captain's clerk of the U. S. R. S. Sabine.

The Mayor, like a great many other citizens, doesn't believe in peddlers, whether of flowers or what not; but thinks that citizens, who pay rent and taxes, should have the trade. Encourage your own.

While driving a spirited horse, Wednesday forenoon, the 17th, at York, Washington Junkins, Esq., attempted to raise an umbrella, which frightened the horse, and Mr. Junkins was thrown from the wagon and dislocated his shoulder. He was attended by Dr. Hazen, and is now doing well.

There is every prospect of an abundant fruit crop in all parts of this State this year. The hay crop bids fair to be more than an average. The canker worm has commenced its ravages.

Schooner Daniel Marcy landed 560 barrels mackerel this week.

Committees of the republican and democratic parties went to Concord on Wednesday to appear against and for the passage of the infamous bill amending the charter of this city, a hearing being held on that day before the committee on towns and parishes, the majority of said committee having decided to recommend the passage of the bill for weeks before it was referred to them. Our republican friends who entertain the idea that a democratic legislature will accord them anything like justice, must now be convinced that they were wrong in thinking democrats inclined to give fair play.

Readville, Me., wants James Higgins, who was captured by the police, along with $70 worth of currency and stamps, recently.

—At a recent English wedding, while the bridal party were kneeling around the chancel, the groomsman poked the groom in the side; he laughed, the bride laughed, and so did the bridesmaid, and the clergyman retired in high dudgeon from the church; twelve o'clock came, after which no marriages are performed; so that they had to go home and spend twenty-four hours cultivating a serious frame of mind.

—An old lady in Massachusetts being informed that a dam above the village where she lived was likely to give way, immediately wished for a pair of clean white stockings, saying in explanation that she once saw a woman struggling in the waters and that she floated along feet upward.

—It is a beautiful sight to attend an Arizona wedding. The bride in white—the happy groom—the solemn minister—the smiling parents, and from twenty-five to forty shot guns standing against the wall ready for use, make up a panorama not soon forgotten.

—A man who was seen coming out of a Texas newspaper office with a split nose, with one eye and with one ear, explained to a policeman that he entered the office simply to inquire if the editor was in. "And he was in," the victim mournfully added.

—One of the professors asked a student to give him an example of mixed metaphor. The boy confidently spoke out: "When my tongue shall forget her cunning and my right eye cleave to the roof of my mouth."

—Brigham Young, Jr., according to the Salt Lake Tribune, has an original way of complying with scriptural injunctions. At a conference meeting last Sunday morning, he thus instructed the brethren: "I pray for our enemies, brethren, but I always pray that they may go to hell!"

TOM COLLINS.

Dying he lay on his little bed,
A chunk of ice at his favored head;
And while his labored breath came slow,
He murmured still, in accents low—
"Tom Collins!"

"I'm going fast, but would be resigned
To cut my cable and slip my wind,
If I could but once fairly see
The man that told such tales of me—
Tom Collins.

"I searched for him from dawn till dark;
From North Mill Bridge to Fuddle Dock—
From Greenland Road to the depots sent,
Ever upon his track I went—
Tom Collins.

"From the Station House to every Hotel,
The air went wild with my frantic yell,
The Rockingham and the Kearsarge, too—
I visited each and searched it through,
For Collins.

"And every one made the same reply,
As I went hurrying swiftly by,
'I asked, Tom Collins been here to-day?'
'Just gone this moment,' each one would say.
Oh! Collins.

"I am worn away to a shadow now,
And the dew of death is on my brow;
But I'd leave my coffin and walk around
If I thought Tom Collins could yet be found.
Ah! Collins!"

I laid him straight on his little bed,
And closed his eyes—for the man was dead;
But even then, as I wiped a tear,
I heard at the door, "Tom Collins here?"
"—— Collins!"

"De Pervisions, Josiar."

[Fayetteville Express.]

A sapient-looking Fayetteville darkey, oscillating between twenty and twenty-five summers, overtook an old negro on the street the other day, and wedging him in a fence corner, proceeded to acquaint him with all the gorgeous provisions of the Civil-Rights bill. Young Africa imparted to old Africa a fund of valuable information, "thusly:"

"Well, Uncle Billy, Sumner's Swivel Rights bill has passed de Senate ob de United States without a murmur."

"Is dat so, Josiar?"

"Jess so, Uncle Billy. And say, Uncle Billy, we colored pussons is gwine to see whose pervisions is in de pot. We are gwine to be allowed to ride free on de railroads, smoke in de ladies' car, and put our feet on de percussions ob de seats wheneber we dam please."

"What's dat you say 'bout pervisions, Josiar?"

"Well, Uncle Billy, as I was gwine on to state, de pervisions ob dat bill—"

"Stop right dare, Josiar. You say dare's pervisions in dat bill?"

"Stop right dare, Josiar. If dare's pervisions in dat bill, I want a sack ob flour dis berry minnit. Dam de smokin' in de ladies' car, and de gehography, and de Latin, and de italic coffins! I want der pervisions, Josiar. Dey's all dere is in de bill wuff a dam cent!"

—Seth Green says that the death of gold fishes that inhabit glass globes is due to one of three causes—"handling, starvation or bad water." A precious boy of eight summers attributes the death of a pet gold fish—his sister's idol—to the fact that it couldn't take a joke. He used to catch it occasionally with a bent pin.

New Publications.

Scribner, Armstrong & Co., New York, have just issued in cheap form Jules Verne's "Meridiana: The Adventures of Three Englishmen and Three Russians in South Africa," a work that will be generally read, for whatever may be Verne's real merits as an observer or scientist, he is a spirited, graphic, and interesting writer. The book is filled with illustrations, and put at a very low price.

Bret Harte will have a story for children in St. Nicholas for July, entitled "Baby Sylvester," and of course, there will be a great deal of curiosity to see how he will acquit himself in this new field of literature. "Baby Sylvester" was the pet of a mining camp;—no woman within forty miles. The story is illustrated by W. L. Sheppard and J. C. Beard.

Bonnets, Hats, Flowers and Ribbons.

The Largest Stock, The Latest Styles, The Lowest Prices.

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We Trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

From One Cent to One Dollar.

Hats, trimmed,

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John K. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of plendid strawberries produced.

The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the Isle of Shoals history, drawing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1614 to 20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antiquated bark at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's island, &c.

The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the white sail ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.

Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase—or inquire at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

A Jug.

The following is a leading editorial in the Middletown Constitution. The writer evinces a profound knowledge of his subject, which could have been acquired only by many years of observation, and which elicts our wondering admiration: "The jug is a most singular utensil. A pail, tumbler, or decanter may be rinsed and you may satisfy yourself by optical proof that it is clean; but the jug has a little hole in the top, and the interior is all in darkness. No eye penetrates it—no hand moves over the surface. You can clean it only by putting in water, shaking it, and pouring it out. If the water comes out clean, you judge you have succeeded in cleaning the jug, and vice versa. Hence, the jug is like the human heart. No mortal eye can look into its recesses, and you can only judge of its purity by what comes out of it."

Why Are Hotel Clerks' Heads Bald?

A Boston newspaper, as if aggravating conundrums enough had not been started already, wants to know "why two-thirds of the hotel clerks are bald?" If this be the fact, of which we are not sure, it may be because the forces of nature have been diverted from the scalp to the cultivation of supernatural cheek. Possibly these gentlemen sell their hair to raise money for the purchase of shirt-pins. Or the consignment of innocent and way-worn travellers to the sixteenth story may subsequently breed remorse, (though we doubt it,) and remorse may, in turn, produce the billiard-ball baldness. But it isn't a problem with which in this hot weather we care to grapple.

Directions for Restoring Persons Apparently Drowned.

[Massachusetts Humane Society.]

Convey the body to the nearest house with head raised. Strip and rub dry. Wrap in blankets. Inflate the lungs by closing the nostrils with thumb and finger, and blowing into the mouth forcibly, and then pressing with hand on the chest. Again blow in the mouth and press on the chest, and so on, for ten minutes, or until he breathes. Keep the body warm, extremities also. Continue rubbing—do not give up so long as there is any chance of success.

—A Chicago paper relates the following thrilling incident in the life of George Francis Train: He had someway got the impression that a child of American parents must be born in this country if it would not be debarred by the Constitution from holding the office of President! Having no doubt that any son of his would aspire to that lofty eminence, and having reasons for believing that he was soon to be gladdened by the face of a newcomer, Mr. Train hurriedly arranged his business in London and sailed with his family for New York. He was very anxious on the voyage, and joy unspeakable shone upon his classical countenance when he once more caught sight of his native land. All was well, and George Francis lifted his voice in thanksgiving and was satisfied. Not long afterward the child for which he had sacrificed so much was born. But it was a girl! Mr. Train was astounded. The possibility of such a mischance had never for one moment entered his mind. He vowed then and there never to take another trip of three thousand miles on such an uncertainty, and shortly after left for London to prosecute his tramway claims against an unappreciative British public.

—"Do you like the piano?" some one asked Theophile Gautier. "I prefer it to the guillotine," was the reply of the poet.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expansion, falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR
TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.
Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and heredity, cause the hair to become gray, thin, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.
AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.
As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is prized for its graceful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, so easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damaged and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Senator Jones's Fighter.

(Virginia Enterprise.)

Just previous to the Senatorial contest which resulted in his election, Hon. J. P. Jones had the following funny adventure in this city with a man who came to him to hire himself out as a "fighter."

Mr. Jones and several friends were in one of our first-class saloons sipping their wine, smoking and chatting, when a rather strange looking customer entered the place, and sauntering up to the group began the operation of "eyeing over" the gentlemen composing it.

He was a man of middle age and medium height, with arms disproportionately long, great, spreading hands and knotty fingers. His angular, ungainly form was poorly and scantily clad, and he was topped out with a curious little bullet head, set upon a very short allowance of neck. From the sides of his little, round head stood leaning out two great, pulpy ears, and all that appeared on his face in the way of beard, was a jet black stubbed mustache. This seemed to have been planted a hair at a time with a pegging awl and hammer, the latter coming down on the defenceless nose as each bristle was inserted, and so intimidating that organ that it had ever since remained crouched out of sight behind the hairy stockade. A large, livid scar described a semi-circle round one of his projecting cheek bones, and passing down entered the corner of his mouth, giving to the feature an ugly upward hitch on that side. Wabbling his little, glittering grey eyes over the party before him until said orbs rested upon the round form and rosy face of Mr. Jones, he pulled off the hirsute ten pin ball, which he would have called his head, a scrap of hat, and making an awkward bow, said:

"J. P. Jones. I believe?"

"That is my name, sir," said Jones.

"Correct," sententiously observed the strange visitor.

"Do you want to see me?" said Jones.

"About three minutes, and in private, if you please."

Mr. Jones led the way to a large private room in the rear of the saloon.

"Mr. Jones, sir, you don't know me," said the fellow, "but when you lived in old Tuolumne I war also in that part of California—in the adjinin' county. Mr. Jones. I'm the 'Taranterler of Calaveras;' I'm a war hoss from the hills and a fighter from h—l!"

"I don't dispute your word, sir," said "J. P.," "but how does your being 'war horse of the hills' concern me?"

"I'm here to tell you. Here, now, you are goin' into this here contest, and it's liable to be a very lively one. About election day it'll be all-fired hot. Now, what you'll need will be a good fighter; a feller to stand up, knock down, and drag out for you; a man what can go to the polls and knock down right an' left—wade through everything!"

Mr. Jones said he had not thought it would be necessary to have such a man at the polls on election day.

"Oh, but it will!" cried the man of muscle. "You see, you don't know about them things. I'll manage it all for you."

"So you want me to hire you as my fighter?"

"Jest so!"

"What would be your price from now till after the election? You see as I've never yet had occasion to hire a fighter, I don't know much about the value of such service."

"Well, I couldn't undertake the job short of $1,000; there'll be lots of work to do."

"Ain't that pretty high?"

"Of course it's a considerable sum, but thar's a terrible rough set over here. These Washoe fellows are more on the cut and shoot than is healthy. You see $1,000 is no money at all!"

"Well, come to look at it in that light, I don't know but your price is reasonable enough."

"Cheap! Of course it is. I rather like your style, or I wouldn't undertake the job at that figger. Come—is it a bargin? Am I your man at the figger named?"

"Well, not so fast. If I am to have a fighter, I want the best that is to be had. I don't want a fellow that will be kicked and cuffed about town by every bummer. I am able to pay for a first-class fighter, and I won't have anything else."

"Ain't I a' fighter?" rolling his eyes fiercely, and thrusting first his right, then his left straight out from the shoulder, ducking his head comically about, and poising himself on one foot; "will anybody kick and cuff me—me, the war hoss of the hills, the Taranterler of Calaveras? Not much."

"Have you ever whipped anybody?"

"Ever whipped anybody? Me—have I ever whipped anybody? You make me laugh. Next you will be asking if I was ever whipped? Show me your man—show me your men—for I ain't particular about 'em coming one at a time. Bring 'em on, and I'll whip all that can stand in this room in one minute by the clock."

"Well," said, "J. P.," "I think you'll do; but as I have said before, I want the best man in the country. My fighter must be a regular fighting-striker. Now I have another man in my eye. He is something of a fighter; has a graveyard of his own of considerable size. It lies between the pair of you. The best man is the man for my money."

"D—n your man! Bring him on. D—n me. I'll devour him! Show him to the Tarantelor!"

"Remain here two minutes and I'll bring him in."

Now, before comipg into the room with the fellow, Mr. Jones had observed James N. Cartter—commonly known on the Pacific coast as Big Jim Cartter—sauntering about the saloon. As is well known to everybody in this city, and pretty generally throughout the towns and cities of Nevada and California, Jim Cartter is a powerfully-built man, standing over six feet six inches in his stockings, a man who is "on the shoulder," and is at home with either knife or pistol, as more than one grave can testify. Calling to Cartter, Mr. Jones briefly made known the situation and invited him in to interview the "war hoss of the hills."

This was as good a thing as Cartter wanted, and into the room they went.

"Here," said Jones, as they entered the room, "is the other man. Nobody will disturb you here, and after all is over the best man is the man for my coin."

Jim waltzed into the room with his hat standing on two hairs and a wicked smile playing upon his features. Said he:

"Is this the blessed infant that has come to eat me up? Is this the Calaveras skunk that has come over here to set himself up as 'chief?' Move back the chairs."

With this Cartter began to wriggle from side to side in the effort to "shuck" himself of the long-tailed black coat he always wore, and in so doing he displayed on one side that famous old white-handled, sixteen-inch bowie knife, his constant companion, and on the other the butt of a navy revolver.

"So this is the lop-eared cur of Calaveras who comes here to set up as a fighter? Move the chairs to the wall!" cried Cartter, still wriggling at his coat.

"Mr. Jones," cried the mighty devourer of men, "Mr. Jones, this man is a friend of yours. I can't fight any friend of yours. With any friend of yours I am a lamb. I could not harm a hair of his head!"

"No friend at all. He is a fighter, like yourself. Besides, what has friendship got to do with a transaction involving $1,000? I want the best man I can find. If you whip this fellow, I hire you as my fighter. That's all there is about it."

"That's fair and business like, you skunk!" cried Cartter. "Peel yourself and waltz out here!"

"Mr. Jones," said the war-horse of the hills, in a mild, conciliatory tone, "I am satisfied that this man is a friend of yours. You might insult me and banter me and tear me all to pieces, but against a friend of yours I'd never lift a hand. Now, your friend is of the right stripe; I like his looks. There's no use of two good men a fightin' for nothing, so I'll tell you what you'd best do. You give him $500 and me $500 an' we'll work together. The two of us could chaw up the town—we'd be a terror to it."

"No," said Jones, "you won't do. You ain't game, you——"

"He's a dunghill," chipped in Cartter.

"I can't fight in a room," said the fellow; "I have never yet had a fight in a room. I don't like it."

"I guess you are not stuck after it anywhere," said Cartter.

"It is rather close to fight in a room," said Jones. Then turning to the fellow, whose eyes were still wandering in the direction of Cartter's coat tails, he handed him a $20 gold piece, saying, "Take this, I hire you for my open-air fighter. You are never to fight for me except in the open air, and where there is a good chance for to run."

"Thank you, Mr. Jones," said the fellow, pocketing the coin and making for the door, "Thank you, and if I ever see a show to put in a lick for you, I'll not forget to do it."

"Provided you have a chance to run," sneered Cartter.

Turning as he was passing out of the door, the fellow said:

"It's all very nice, Mr. Jones; but that is either Big Jim Cartter or the devil, and you can't ring him in on me."

The Legislature.

On Wednesday, the 17th, Representative Charles F. Caverly of Rochester was duly unseated and sent home, according to the programme prepared by the democrats long before the legislature met; reasons, Mr. Caverly is a republican and a strong temperance man, and was elected by only three majority.

In the House, the committee on towns and parishes reported the Manchester gerrymander bill, with a recommendation that it pass without amendment.—of course. Equally of course the report was accepted; and discussion on the subject was assigned for Thursday at 11 o'clock A. M.

An act to consolidate the Nashua & Lowell railroads was reported from committee, and laid on the table on motion of Mr. Briggs of Manchester.

The act to increase the capital stock of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad was ordered to a third reading.

Readables.

The republicans of the 3d Maine Congressional district renominated Hon. James G. Blaine, Thursday.

Bunker Hill Day (June 17th) was celebrated very generally, but quietly, in Boston and its neighborhood. Charlestown was the centre of interest. There were morning and evening concerts in the public squares, the Charlestown Cadets celebrated their tenth and the Prescott Light Guards their eleventh anniversaries with parades and dinner, and the Bunker Hill Monument Association held its annual meeting in the morning. In Boston proper the day was recognized by a grand Revolution party in Music Hall in the evening, Hon. Josiah Quincy, Jr., and Dr. George B. Loring making addresses, followed by a fine concert by distinguished talent. The monument which Braintree has erected to her deceased military sons was dedicated, the orator being delivered by General Banks. The towns of Barre and Ludlow observed their centennials, and the day was fitly observed in many other places throughout Massachusetts. In Fisherville, N. H., the Duston monument was formally presented to the State, and in Hartford, Conn., the Putnam statue was unveiled.

Hon. Nelson Dingley, jr., has been renominated as candidate for governor of Maine by the republicans.

Robbins, the murderer of the mate of schooner "Annie A.," has been adjudged guilty and will be held for extradition, as the schooner is a British vessel.

Copies of the New York Herald containing a letter written by Rochefort on his arrival in New York, were seized in Paris on account of the attack on President MacMahon.

A serious accident occurred on the South Carolina Central Railroad, Wednesday, an excursion train being thrown from the track, causing the death of several negroes and severe injuries to other negroes and many whites. No particulars can be given, as the railroad authorities don't believe in too much publicity.

The attention of our readers is called to the advertisement in another column of the new banking house of Messrs. Livingston & Co. This house proposes to do a thoroughly conservative business for Banks, Bankers and individuals, confined strictly to commission, acting as fiscal agents, receiving deposits and allowing 5 per cent. interest on same. They offer to the public all the facilities usual to incorporated Banks, with the addition that accounts current are rendered weekly, thereby keeping their correspondents fully advised of the state of their accounts. They also offer Bills of Exchange on London and all parts of the continent at favorable rates.

State News.

The annual meeting of the New Hampshire Bar Association was held in Concord on Tuesday, and the following officers were elected: Edmund L. Cushing, president; W. H. Y. Hackett, Harry Bingham, Alonzo P. Carpenter, vice-presidents; Josiah Minot, Henry W. Blair, Thomas Cogswell, Ruel C. Carter, Frank Hobbs, J. S. H. Frink, Clinton W. Stanley, Francis A. Faulkner, Henry Heywood, executive committee; clerk, William M. Chase; treasurer, Lyman D. Stearns.

The monument to Mrs. Dustin's memory, which was unveiled on the 17th, is on the highest point of the island where the Indians were slain and buried, and consists of a fine statue of a woman holding a tomahawk in one hand and scalps in the other, standing on a pedestal disfigured by doggerel rhyme and the names of the contributors to the monument, put there without their knowledge or consent.

The New London Scythe Company has just closed its business for the year, during which it manufactured 4,650 dozen scythes, a larger number than ever before made for a single year since the organizing of the company, forty years ago.

"Ways that are Dark."

[Concord Monitor.]

Certain episodes in the House on the 16th, revealed the fact that Bret Harte's "heathen Chinee" has some sharp imitators of the democratic persuasion in or about that locality. The fact came out in the course of the proceedings that some ardent democrat has been responding on every yea and nay vote to the name of Mr. Wheeler, of Berlin, who is at home sick and has been from almost the beginning of the session. The only other inference is that Mr. Wheeler has a dual existence, one self being at home under the doctor's care, while the other self vociferously follows the lead of Bingham when the yeas and nays are called. It also transpired that Mr. Tuttle, of Pittsfield, who is absent, having paired off with a democrat, had a democratic vote recorded in his name. This might have been accidental, but a few more such accidents will lead to grave suspicions.

"For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain
The heathen Chinee is peculiar."

—Charles Dickens said that "the first external revelation of the dry rot in man is a tendency to lurk and lounge; to be at the street corners without intelligent reasons; to be going anywhere when met; to be about many places rather than any; to do nothing tangible, but to have intention of performing a number of tangible duties tomorrow or the day after."

—Hope for a moment visited the heart of that convict, who, on being offered the choice of being taught one of several trades, chose that of a sailor.

Insane Freak.

[Biddeford Times.]

Mr. Benjamin D. Miller, a young man in the employ of Albert Peyser, expressman, has become deranged. On Saturday he went to Boston and missed the return train. Monday he acted singularly, and in the evening entered the stove store of R. P. Robinson. Mr. Staples, one of the gentlemen connected with the establishment, stepped to the back part of the store and was followed by Miller, who asked, "Have you seen him?" Mr. S. asked him whom he meant, when he replied, the fellow who had been dogging him about, and had followed him from East Boston. He had a revolver in his hand and flourished it about in unpleasant proximity to Mr. S., even pointing it at him. Watching a favorable opportunity, Mr. S. caught hold of Miller and Mr. Robinson came up and succeeded in securing the revolver. It was evident the man was insane and an officer took him away. The revolver was new, having been purchased that day in Saco, and an investigation showed it was unloaded. Mr. Miller belongs in Portsmouth, and his father was notified of the condition of his son and yesterday took him away.

Stars and Meteors.

At certain seasons meteors dart across the firmament between the earth and the fixed stars. But they quickly vanish, while the fixed stars remain. In the medical firmament the great vegetable original, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has long been a fixed star of the first magnitude. Little meteors in the shape of imitations, bearing various names, now and then attempt a glimmering competition with it, but they soon disappear from the field of vision, leaving the glory of the true remedy unimpaired. The number of these will-o-the-wisps that have come to grief within the last twenty years is beyond computation, and those now in existence are in the last agonies or extinguishment. The standard tonic and alterative that cures and prevents so many distressing diseases, and which no debilitated invalid ever took without experiencing a wonderful accession of strength and vitality, only derives increased popularity from the attempts of charlatans to run their failures in the Hostetter groove.

PILES can be cured only by ANAKESIS, the greatest discovery of the age and the sole, infallible remedy for the worst cases of PILES. Thousands of sufferers after trying in vain all manner of lotions, ointments, and internal remedies, have been instantly relieved and permanently cured by ANAKESIS. It is the happy discovery of Dr. Silabee, a regular scientific physician, and Doctors of all schools endorse and recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere, and sent by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker street, New York.

Cocoa is known the world over for its great nourishing and strengthening properties. It is often difficult to select the best preparations of an article of such universal use. The Chocolates and Cocoas of Walter Baker & Co., Boston, have stood the test of nearly a hundred years, with a constantly increasing reputation for excellence and purity in all parts of the world. If you wish the best, at the most reasonable price, ask your grocer for Baker's Chocolate.

With the Modern Elevator, an upper room is fully as desirable as a lower one, yet the popular American, House, Boston, has given notice of an advantage of a dollar a day to its class of transient guests who are willing to occupy such rooms. Every convenience for guests, and everything first-class.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public, that in addition to being Agent for the famous "DOMESTIC," whose merits are so well known, that I am the only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity for the following first-class sewing machines:

The Remington.

This machine is manufactured by the Remington Rifle Co., whose fame is well known in the United States and in foreign countries. They have a reputation for doing their work well, and they will not sacrifice their reputation in the manufacture of their new machine. Mr. Jones, the inventor of the "Remington," was also the inventor of the "Singer" sewing machine, and in this late invention he has overcome the weak points of the former invention, which I am pleased to explain to all who will favor me with a call.

The "Remington" was awarded the highest order of prize given to any sewing machine at Vienna, 1873, the Grand Medal for Progress. No sewing machine received a higher prize.

A FEW GOOD POINTS OF THE "REMINGTON,"

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested and secured by letters patent.

2. Makes a perfect Lock-Stitch, alike on both sides, on all kinds of goods.

3. Runs Light, Smooth, Noiseless and Rapid,—best combination of qualities.

4. Runs for years without Repairs.

5. Will do all varieties of work, and fancy stitching in a satisfactory manner.

6. Is very easily managed by the operator, length of stitch may be altered while running, and machine can be threaded without passing thread through holes.

7. Design simple, ingenious, elegant,—forming the stitch without the use of cog wheel gears, rotary cams or lever arms; has the new Thread Controller, which allows easy movement of needle bar and prevents injury to thread.

8. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skilful and experienced mechanics, at the celebrated Remington Armory, Ilion, N. Y. I warrant this machine to give perfect satisfaction. Call and examine this little household comfort.

The Victor

Sewing Machine has much to recommend it in its great simplicity both in construction and operation; also in its large range of work and ease of adjustment. It has taken the first premium of many State and county fairs, where exhibited for the last two years.

Is the only Lock Stitch machine that has its needle vibrate; "the needle being straight and self-setting much of the perplexity and trouble usual to beginners or inexperienced operators is avoided, as the needle cannot be set wrong.

It has a positive thread controller and tension, enabling it to sew with equal precision from the most delicate texture to the heaviest material, and to use with equal facility, silk, linen or cotton thread. It uses the same size thread on the under as on the upper side, and sews across the heaviest seams, or from one to many thicknesses of cloth without change of needle, tension, or threads.

The machine is made of the finest material, and of most perfect finish, and no pains or expense is spared to make the machine in all its points fitted to meet the wants of every family wherever introduced. The "Victor" has met with universal favor; and so great has been the increasing demand the past year, that the "Victor" Sewing Machine Company have been compelled to build a new and extensive factory, and to more than double their facilities for supplying the wants of the sewing machine trade. With its recent improvements it is a simple, durable and completely family sewing machine, and I guarantee it will give the purchaser satisfaction.

THE DAVIS.

Since the organization of the "Davis" Sewing Machine Company, nearly five years ago, its business has increased to an astonishing degree. Its sales for the first year amounted to one thousand machines, and each succeeding year its sales have doubled those of the preceding one—an increase of one hundred per cent. per annum.

The "Davis" sewing machines sold in Portsmouth and vicinity during the past few years have given good satisfaction; but the "Davis" machine of the present day has a number of essential points of superiority over the old "Davis" machine, namely:

Among the various improvements we call attention to the Milled Shank Needle, by which device all sizes of needles occupy precisely the same position in relation to the shuttle, and cannot be set wrong for use. A new shuttle made from a solid steel block and hardened, with very few parts, and none that can be broken or disturbed by use. A new "Take-up" having a positive motion and entirely noiseless. An adjustable Needle Plate for serving with large or small nesttles. We also have added simple appliances by which all "lost motion" from wear by long use, can be taken up, and by which any one, in a few minutes' time, can adjust any part of a worn machine to its original position.

The mechanical principles involved in the "Davis" sewing machine are new and differ widely from those commonly in use, combining simplicity, strength, durability, economy and an adaptation to a large range of work.

The Feed is, perhaps, the most important, if not the vital point connected with any sewing machine, as upon its accuracy of movement depends the regularity, strength, evenness and perfection of stitching. The Feeds commonly in use in other sewing machines are known as the wheel feed, and the ratchet, or four motion feed. The former consists of a revolving wheel which is automatically moved forward at each stitch, the little teeth of which project sufficiently above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the fabric. The latter usually consists of a horizontal under feed bar, which has a four motioned movement produced by complicated under gear. This feed bar is also furnished with teeth, which rise high enough above the bed of the machine to take hold of and carry forward the work. A presser foot in both cases comes down on the goods and holds them firmly to the surface of the feed. It must be obvious then, that as the feed moves, it must carry the under ply faster then the upper, for the simple reason that the presser foot is retarding or holding back the upper ply while the feed is moving forward; hence, it is impossible to have both ends of the goods connect even—the under ply must neccessarily be pulled or gathered on to the upper to some extent, so that when the strain is put upon the seam the stitches must may wherever it is gathered any, or wherever the goods are more elastic than the thread. It has therefore become a common practice among large clothing houses to cut the under ply longer than the upper one, to allow for the pulling, so that both ends shall come even. This defect has brought a well merited reproach upon sewing machines and forms the main reason why first-class tailors discard their use in seams requiring strength.

This great defect has existed since the first introduction of sewing machines, and until the invention of the "Vertical Feed" principle (the patent for which is the exclusive property of this company) which is unlike any other feed, and presents one of the distinguishing features of the "Davis" machine.

In conclusion, I will state, that any of the above mentioned sewing machines will be sold on the instalment plan, but to cash customers I shall deduct a more liberal percentage than I have previously done. I offer nothing to the public except goods that are first-class, and am willing to fully warrant the same.

Hoping to have (as heretofore) a liberal share of the patronage of residents of Portsmouth and vicinity,

I remain yours faithfully,

SAMUEL M. JOY, Agent,

Local Matters.

The Gerrymander Bill.

Agreeably to a vote of the city government, Mayor Miller and City Solicitor Hackett on Wednesday went to Concord to protest on behalf of the city against the carrying out of the patent scheme for enabling minorities to rule majorities, as exemplified in the bill proposing to divide Portsmouth into seven wards and put every check-list entirely into democratic hands. A number of others went up to remonstrate against the passage of the bill; and a delegation of democratic devotees of a pure ballot and local self-government were also on hand, to advocate its passage.

The hearing on the bill, before the legislative committee on towns and parishes, commenced in the Senate chamber at half past 7 o'clock, P. M.

Mr. George E. Hodgdon produced plans of the city with the wards as proposed, and the estimated voting population and number of ratables in each ward; claimed that the check-lists were in republican hands and the democrats could not get their men on for want of time; that the lists were too large to have each voter personally known to the selectmen, etc. No evidence was adduced,—nothing but general statements. Mr. Hodgdon claimed to appear for a large number of voters who desired a change, but admitted that no petition for any change had been presented.

James McClure gave his experience at working on the navy yard, and claimed that he was discharged for political reasons, but utterly failed to prove his assertions.

Speaker Hatch of the House appeared as counsel for the bill, cross-examined the remonstrants and made a number of statement, several of which were plainly contradicted by gentlemen from Portsmouth who opposed the bill.

City Solicitor Hackett stated that by unanimous vote of the Board of Aldermen a committee had been appointed to remonstrate, and that this committee were unanimous in opposing the repeal of the law for closing the polls at a stated hour. He then presented a protest signed by a majority of the committee, as follows:

To the Committee on Towns and Parishes:

The undersigned committee unanimously voted from the Board of Aldermen of the city of Portsmouth for this purpose, respectfully protest against the passage of the bill now before the Legislature relative to the new division of the city of Portsmouth into wards, and amending the charter (viz., House Bill No. 23).

First, Because said contemplated amendment largely increases the expenses of holding elections, drawing jurors and like expenses.

Second, Because it largely increases the number of officials in a city where less than ten thousand inhabitants reside, by enlarging the number of overseers of the poor, clerks, etc., who will be paid for services that can as well be performed by a smaller number of officials.

Third, Because the officers of the city have been chosen for a year from the 1st Tuesday of April, and in some instances have given bonds, and the act impairs the contract with some of these officials, and may tend to litigation and embarassment in the future.

Fourth, Because the city has founded at considerable cost three ward rooms, comfortable for all purposes for election of officers, and within the lines of existing wards; and the cost of new voting places, or the inconvenience of voting places unsuitable for such business, must be apparent.

Fifth, The committee unanimously protest against the change of the act relating to the closing of polls approved July 3, 1873, as it has been admitted by persons of all political parties to be fair and salutary in its working.

Sixth, The repeal of the act relative to the veto power of the Mayor should, if insisted upon, be so far modified, as to allow the veto on road cases or laying out streets, where a bare majority may inaugurate an expensive system of street projects, against which the check of the Mayor's veto at times might be of much protection to the treasury of the city.

Hon. H. P. Rolfe appeared, he said, for as many persons as Mr. Hodgdon had said he did and four hundred more, being a majority of the voters of the city. He said there was no need of mincing things; the whole question was entirely a political one—such a question as the democratic majority in the legislature was spending nearly all its time over; and he would ask if there was not honor and sense of fairness enough in the democratic party to give the majority one man out of three selected for supervision of the new wards. This was so manifestly proper that although Messrs. Hatch and Hodgdon both disclaimed any authority to make the proposed change, and there seemed to be no one claiming the paternity of the bill, at a hint from the chairman of the committee one democrat was withdrawn from the proposed selectmen in each ward, and a republican named in his place.

Considerable badinage passed between the opposing delegations, but as it was not evidence and was irrelevant to the question at issue, we shall not trouble ourselves to give much of it. Hon. Daniel Marcy and Postmaster Peirce had one little bout; the former asked Mr. Peirce if he ever promised a man named Lowd (Dexter Lowd) a job on the navy yard if he would vote the republican ticket. Mr. Peirce replied that he never did anything of the kind, but that Lowd had told him that Mr. Marcy had paid him (Lowd) $6 for voting the democratic ticket, and that then he had "gone back on him." Several interesting questions and answers on such matters must have convinced the third ward representatives that they were not so well posted as they had imagined themselves to be, and that others knew more than they were supposed to. But all such questions were evidently intended more for the amusement than the instruction of the committee.

Mr. Hatch complained that there were more names of voters on the check-lists than there were poll taxes paid. Mr. Hackett said he was glad to be able to corroborate one of Mr. Hatch's statements; there were on the check-lists the names of men who did not pay even their poll-taxes, and among them were the names of two of the proposed democratic supervisors, who had not paid their poll-taxes for ten or twelve years!

Mr. Rolfe argued that the legislature had no right to turn out officers elected for a term until the term expired, and said his opinion was coincided in by the highest judicial authority and experience in the State.

Mr. Hatch claimed the closing argument (the first time in the history of the State where the Speaker of the House has declared himself the special champion of any bill or measure), and promised to be brief. He did not attempt to refute Mr. Rolfe's argument, but cited precedents for the proposed action of the democrats.

By the amendments secured by the republican committee sent to Concord to oppose the bill gerrymandering the city, Mr. Chas. Dwight Hanscom is named to call a meeting and act as selectman in the first ward in place of William Alton; Robert King instead of Lewis Green, for the second ward; Rufus K. Oxford instead of Samuel Langdon, Jr., for the fourth ward; Edwin H. Leslie instead of Hiram F. Williams, for the fifth ward; Nathan F. Mathes instead of Thos. J. Sheehan, for the sixth ward; and Richard H. Waldron instead of Arad Tibbetts, for the seventh ward.

Arrival of the Ambassador.

The cable ship Ambassador came into the lower harbor, Thursday morning at eight o'clock, and moored to the government buoy. Col. Arthur McArthur Eastman and representatives of the pres s were soon on board, and after a brief call went on board the revenue cutter Levi Woodbury, which soon went to sea, the smoke of a large steamer, which proved not to be the Faraday, being seen outside. The cutter returned after a few hours' absence.

A second party of newspaper men from this city and Boston boarded the Ambassador, and the officers and electricians afforded every opportunity possible for information desired. The party is under especial obligations to First Officer Burnett, R. F. Boulter, Esq., who has been with the ship on her cable laying trips for years, and Messrs. Fraser and Minstedt. From these gentlemen we learn that the Ambassador, which was built in 1872, has recently been engaged in laying a cable 300 miles in length, between Cape Cabahno and Santo Catharina, Brazil, the operation being performed in a month's time. The Ambassador, which is chartered by the Siemens Brothers, has been running between Calcutta and Liverpool via the Suez canal. After leaving the Brazilian cable she sailed for London and took on board the shore ends of the cable for this country, sailing from London on the 2d June. The passage occupied eighteen days, two days running being lost by reason of fogs. The weather was bad and the voyage a long one, the officers and crew sighting land on the 17th with more than ordinary satisfaction.

The Ambassador has a crew of thirty-nine men and is officered as follows: Godfrey Matthews, Captain; J. P. Burnett, 1st Officer; A. J. Manning, 2d Officer; Thos. Johnson, 3d Officer. The cable is in charge of three electricians, Messrs. Julius Minstedt, John Fraser and Frederick W. Nevett, whose duty it has been to test it twice a day during the passage, every test proving eminently satisfactory. There are three large tanks in the vessel, the first of which contains 14.788 knots of wire rope for grappling the cable should it be lost at sea. The second tank contains 33.578 knots of the shore end of the cable to be used at Nova Scotia; and the third has 18.177 knots of the shore end to be landed at Straw's Point, which weighs 15,000 lbs. to the knot. The discrepancy in the various accounts given in the newspapers is accounted for by the confounding of the term "knot," with the term "mile." A statute mile is 1760 yds.; the telegraph knot is 2029 yds.; and the nautical knot is 2027 2-3 yds.

The time of laying the shore end of the cable is yet a matter of mere conjecture on account of the non-arrival of the Faraday, which should now be at hand. Col. Eastman is making the necessary arrangements for the landing, which may take place tomorrow or within the next three days. In this connection, it is amusing to notice the "enterprise" of Harper's Weekly for June 27th, that issue having a fair picture of Straw's Point and the Faraday, and the cable men in the act of landing the wire in surf, surrounded by a multitude of spectators. The Weekly gravely informs the public that the cable was successfully landed on the 8th inst., the fact being that the Faraday buoyed the cable fifteen miles from Straw's Point on that day. Major E. R. Morse of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Weekly is the only artist on the ground and does not depend on imagination for his sketches.

"Republican Laws."

The Times, referring to the resolution passed by the Board of Mayor and Aldermen requesting our Senator and Representatives in the legislature to use all honorable means to have the compulsory-pilotage law repealed, says:

Pilot Commissioner Sise knew as well last year as he knows now, that the law is "unjust and injurious to the interests of the city," and he as one of the commissioners has done what he could to make it still more obnoxious. [See regulations which the commissioners have published.] It is laughable to see how quick some of these republicans change front as soon as the democratic party get into power. All of a sudden the republican laws are "unjust and injurious to the interests of the city."

"Republican laws," in this connection, is decidedly rich. The compulsory-pilotage laws were passed by a democratic legislature and approved by a democratic governor, long before the republican party commenced its existence; and the pilot commissioners can only make rules for the guidance of the pilots under the State laws, not make the laws themselves,—nor can they fix or alter the rates of compensation for pilotage. The whigs did so far modify the democratic laws as to exempt from compulsory pilotage vessels under 125 tons register, and the republicans afterward extended the exemption to vessels of 150 tons. The bill repealing the unjust imposition of compulsory pilotage has passed both houses of the present legislature, and will without question receive the approval of the governor, as it should; but why the pilot commissioners or any one of them should be blamed for enforcing the laws of the State so long as they continue in force, or how the acts of democratic legislatures can be considered "republican laws," we cannot conceive,—even if those laws are "unjust and injurious to the interests of the city."

Laconics.

The Eastern Railroad now runs two trains each way on Sundays between Boston and Salem.

The Naval Band is not engaged to play at Boxford, Mass., on the 4th of July, notwithstanding a Massachusetts paper says it is.

Ten years ago to-day the Kearsarge sunk the Alabama. A half-dozen of the Kearsarge crew now reside in this city.

Murray's circus is expected in this vicinity about the last of this month. Ben. Maginley's circus gets as far as Boston the first of July.

The brakemen and baggage masters o the Concord Railroad, appeared Wednesday morning with neat silver badges on their caps, consisting of a band entirely around the cap, with a plate designating the position of the wearer, on the front of the band.

Any one whose business or pleasure has recently led him within a mile or more of the Band room on Congress street, of an afternoon, and obliged him to hear the intolerable tooting of the trombonist who is evidently determined to master or "bust" that instrument or perish in the attempt, will be inclined to exclaim with Von Bulow, the eminent German pianist who suffered indescribable tortures at the hands of an execrable player to whom he was giving a lesson, "Good Lord; what sin have I committed to deserve such punishment!"

The beauty of Henderson's opening is you are not obliged to turn your purse inside out, and pull out the bottom dollars to pay for a

NEW BONNET.

It is a well known fact that HENDERSON sells everything in the Millinery line full 25 per cent. less than any other house in the city, and the question is often asked "How can he do it?" We answer:

First. We are not dependent on our Millinery trade alone for a living. We do an extensive business in DRY and FANCY GOODS, and our Millinery is sold with our other goods at a cotton cloth profit, so that you are not obliged to pay us the fancy prices charged by dealers doing an exclusively millinery business.

Second. Our business in STRAW GOODS having increased so enormously (our sales in the summer of 1873 being nearly three hundred cases of Bonnets and Hats, the largest retail trade in the State,) that we buy entirely of manufacturers, thus making a saving in this way alone of fifteen per cent., which goes to the benefit of our customers.

Third. We trim Hats free of charge; you all know that this one item saves you half a dollar. We have opened a larger stock than ever before, and keep the finest as well as cheaper grades of goods.

Hats, not trimmed,

From One Cent to One Dollar.

Hats, trimmed,

FOR SALE.

TWO original historical OIL PAINTINGS, nearly three by four feet, in heavy gilt frames. One, the famous Capt. Smith of the isle of Shoals history, advancing with his company in a boat toward what is now called Fort Point at Newcastle, about the years 1630 to '20; the astonished Indians, in canoes and on shore; Smith's antagonist and back at anchor near Wood Island, which at that period is said to have been covered with woods and connected above water with Gerrish's island, &c.

The other, a vivid representation of Fort Constitution in its palmy days, the Light-House at its original height, and a lively sea view, at about 1830—a true picture of days when the wind and ships were flowing into the Piscataqua with their rich cargoes from foreign ports—days when Portsmouth ranked well in commerce. Such reminiscences of the past cannot fail to interest the present generation, and speak from the embalmed canvas with still greater interest to coming generations, particularly of this romantic locality. They are the works of a devoted son of old "Strawberry Bank," so called, and will tell their own story, whether in the parlor, counting-room, saloon or City hall, for either of which they are adapted.

Friends are invited to call soon and examine them whether disposed to purchase or not—at the author's Music Room, opposite the Post-office.

A Deadly Ice-Chest.

[St. Louis Republican.]

Of all places in the world to select as a retreat from the scorching heat of a June day, an ice-chest is perhaps the last, and yet George Straubel did it. George had formerly been bar-keeper at Apollo Theatre, but on Monday was living at 615 South Fourth Street. He had been suffering to some slight extent from colic, and was also perspiring profusely. Do what he would, he could not keep cool. The more he tried to keep cool, the more he perspired, and at last the brilliant idea struck him that a brief retirement in the ice-chest would set him up all right. It did the lager good, and why shouldn't it do George Straubel good, too? So he got into the ice-chest, and very soon felt cool enough. The perspiration was checked, and when Straubel got out of the ice-chest the perspiration didn't return. On the contrary, he couldn't get warm, and he continued to get colder and colder, until in a short time George Straubel was not only as cold as death, but he was dead.

Colt Breaking in Kentucky.

[Dayton Journal.]

When in Kentucky we saw a two-year old colt broke—dead broke—in a half hour, so that he worked as amiably as a trained horse. The colt had never been bridled. He was attached to a curricle called a "break-dray," and put through astonishingly quick. The break-dray is nothing more than a strong broad tread dray, with long shafts, the tail omitted, and a spring-seat between the wheels. The harness was strong, and so arranged over the hips as to prevent the possibility of high kicking, and the colt was hitched so far from the dray that his heels could not possibly reach the driver. The process of hitching was of course very delicate, as a colt is excessively ticklish, and is apt to let his heels fly awkwardly. All being ready, one man held the colt, and another took the seat and reins. The colt was then let go to plunge as he pleased. The break-dray—which was so broad that upsetting seemed out of the question—was pushed upon the colt, and the colt pushed sideways until he started. A few plunges settled him; he went as he pleased; up hill and down hill, and so on, until he finally struck a sober trot, and was thoroughly broke. The confused and bewildered look of that colt was pitifully amusing. Mr. Bob Strader was giving directions, and upon one of the breakers raising his hand to slap the colt to urge him, Mr. Strader said: "Don't do that. Never strike a colt when you are breaking him. Push him sideways, or any way. Let him go just where he will and how he will. Let him fall down if he will, but don't strike him." When the colt was taken out of the shafts, he was as wet as if he had been in water, and a child could have handled him. He had not been struck a blow. The dray, we believe, was invented by Mr. Strader.

—Don't swear. Mr. Sands, of Lockport, was standing on a board cursing away, when the board broke and he was drowned. The same board had just held up three who didn't swear.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care. Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong. As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable. Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS. This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA- DEBILITY- DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, so easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon. This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, imparting strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon no iron Constitution. Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial. See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Snoozer and his Hose.

[Cincinnati Commercial.]

A man living on Main street, not over a thousand yards from the court-house, whose name our reporter, after a diligent search in the directory, had not found, but which is supposed to be Snoozer, went home last evening filled up to the collar with benzine. Feeling rather "warm for the season," Mr. Snoozer took off his coat and boots, put on his slippers, and getting the garden hose, went out to sprinkle the street, so as to make things cool around there. Now, it takes a quick, discerning, calculating eye and a steady hand to properly manipulate a hose in the daytime. At night the difficulties are multiplied. But Mr. Snoozer's mind was simply on the subject of sprinkling. He gave the hydrant wrench twists, and had on a full head. After a few crackles and spirts, a steady stream was let fly right on the boots and white linen pants of a man with a red rose-bud on the left lappel of his coat, who was coming up from a call on Fourth street. The man stopped suddenly in surprise, and Snoozer, noticing the mishap, in the true spirit of a thoroughbred gentleman, advanced to render an apology, when the nozzle was turned a quarter of an inch to the larboard, and poured in a stream right against the stranger's immaculate bosom. The latter might have got red-hot at this treatment, and shown fight, were it not impossible to do so under the cooling influences brought to bear, and to avoid further disaster, the rose-bud and linen pants popped around the corner into an alley. Mr. Snoozer was then proceeding quietly to cool off the bricks of the pavement, when a gentleman with two ladies, two shawls, and one sore boil on his arm, walked up from a Vine street beer garden. To prevent another catastrophe, the hoseman turned the squirting apparatus toward the open street, without the least intention of pouring about four gallons of Ohio river water down the backs of a lady and gentleman who were riding by in a tilted-top buggy. The gentleman, in words usually expressed in print in dashes, told of his displeasure, and uttered threats against Snoozer's life. Mr. Snoozer said it was purely accidental—that he was willing to take it all back—that there was no sense in crying over spilled water. While thus engaged in an explanation, he was perfectly oblivious of the nozzle in his hand. He was as innocent as an unborn babe of knowing that a stream, running at the rate of forty knots an hour, was sailing through the open window of a second-story bedroom in the adjoining house, where a man and his wife were sleeping. He never dreamed of such a thing until female shrieks were heard and a man in white raiment appeared at the window and fired off seven shots from a revolver. Then Mr. Snoozer thought he would shut off steam. But he had mislaid the wrench. He, however, kept the gathering mob at bay until his wife rushed out, hauled him into the house, and prevented riot and bloodshed. No arrests.
